Beefalo Hold Key To Olson Farm Operation

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

After going into partnership with his father in 1975, Scott Olson found that raising beef cattle at prices prevailing at that time left him with little more than a couple of big manure piles, red figures in the farm account book and an Excedrin headache. He did, however, have the company of the cattle all year. But such social contact was not enough.

Like most businessmen who like to show a little profit for their efforts, Scott and his dad (Gordon) took a close look at how to improve their operation. That look brought them face-to-face with a relatively new development in the cattle industry. . .beefalo.

"The first thing I liked about beefalo was that they were selling at a 15 cents a pound premium over regular beef," Scott said. "With another 15 cents on the hot carcass weight of a 1,000 pound steer, I could see $75 a head that would make the profit and loss statement look a whole lot better."

What is beefalo anyhow? A pureblood beefalo is defined to be an animal with three-eighths buffalo blood and five-eighths domestic cattle blood. This combination produces an animal with good fertility, high conception rate, rapid development and excellent table meat.

American cattlemen had been trying for 75 years to cross breed buffalo and domestic cattle but were stymied in their efforts because the hybrid offspring were consistently infertile. This sterility mystery was solved by D. C. "Bud" Basolo Jr. as the result of a 15-year, million dollar effort. The secret is carefully kept — as might be expected — and the Basolo hybrid beefalo has a heavy corner on the market.

The first successful crossbreed to produce fertile bulls was accomplished in 1966. The optimum ratio of three-eighths buffalo and five-eighths domestic cattle was established in 1970 after additional extensive research. Most of the full-blood beefalo sires have one-fourth to three-eighths Charolais breeding.

Once the decision was made to switch from commercial beef production to commercial beefalo production on the Olson farm, breeding to beefalo sires began in 1977. Scott attended an artificial insemination training school and serves as the herd technician, purchasing beefalo semen in 50 ampule lots at a price of about $10 per service.

In 1978 the Olsons had their first beefalo cross calves produced on the farm. Scott particularly appreciated the calving ease with beefalo calves, and he recorded 21 unassisted deliveries, one assisted and only one pulled. Six of the 23 cows freshening were first calf heifers. Survival rate of the calves was 100 per cent.

This year Scott and Gordon are expecting about 50 calves in the beef herd, 30 of which are beefalo. Only one of the 20 beefalo calves born this year did not survive, and that arrived nine days earlier than expected and was born outside in seven degrees below zero weather.

"Beefalo calves are much smaller than the commercial calves we have been producing," Scott said. "They probably average only 50 to 55

LOTS OF ROUGHAGE goes into the diet of these half-blood beefalo calves at the Gordon and Scott Olson farm west of Thief River Falls. The bulls in the top photo are expected to be ready for market at 1,000 pounds by June 1 at about one year of age.

Heifers in the bottom photo will produce their first calves next year. Bred to beefalo bulls, they will produce three-fourths blood beefalo calves carrying stronger beefalo traits.

THIS HUSKY BULL, less than a year of age, is growing at the rate of about three pounds a day, according to Scott Olson, who with his father Gordon has turned from conventional beef cattle to producing beefalo — a cross involving domestic cattle and buffalo. The cross produces cattle with rapid weight gain on a high roughage feed, easier calving, earlier weaning, hardier stock and meat high in protein and low in fat which dresses out with less waste.

Sparby Won't Seek Reelection To School Board

At least one new member on the Thief River Falls board of education will result from the election to be held Tuesday, May 15. Wallace Sparby, who has served on the board for the past nine years, confirmed today that he will not seek reelection to the board.

Filings for the board of education opened March 31 and will remain open until Monday, May 14. Filings are to be made with Kenneth Murphy, clerk of School District 564, or may be made at the school district service center.

Sparby said that his involvement in other business interests has reduced the time available for school board service, and that although he has enjoyed the opportunity to participate in school district policy making, he believes it is time for someone new to fill the position.

Clyde Christensen, whose term also expires this year, was out of town and not available to comment on his potential candidacy for reelection. He was appointed to the unexpired term of Edgar Naplin in 1973 when Naplin resigned after being elected to the county board of commissioners. Christensen was reelected to three-year terms in 1973 and 1976.

SOCIETY and CLUBS

Rebecca Jean Krohn And Steven Mikkelson Wed

Miss Rebecca Jean Krohn became the bride of Steven Ernest Mikkelson on Saturday, March 10, at 3 p.m. at a wedding ceremony at Zion Lutheran church at Viking.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Duane Krohn of Viking. Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Mikkelson, Lake Park.

Rev. K. David Gabrielson officiated at the ceremony. At the organ was Gloria Ness of Viking, who played the traditional wedding marches. During the ceremony, Debbie Ballard, Lake Park, a cousin of the groom, sang "Colour My World," and "Wedding Song." Following the lighting of the unity candle and the marriage communion, Lynne Krohn, a sister of the bride, and Karen Kjensrud of Holt, a friend of the bride, sang, "Devoted To You." Acolytes were Brian Noreen, St. Hilaire, a cousin of the bride, and Rick Bothun, Viking, a friend.

The chancel was graced with candelabra decorated with white spiral candles, palm branches and pink satin ribbon. On a separate table was the unity candle surrounded by pink roses and greenery.

The bride, given in marriage by her parents, was attired in a gown of white chiffon over taffeta featuring a fitted lace bodice with high neckline and a raised waistline. Her full, chiffon sleeves were gathered into wide lace cuffs; and her flared skirt, of chiffon over taffeta, flowed into a chapel-length train. Completing her ensemble was a cathedral length veil of bridal illusion secured to a cap-styled headpiece of lace over taffeta. Matching lace motifs were appliqued across the veil. She carried a cascade of red sweetheart roses, pink and burgandy pixie carnations, ivy and babies' breath.

Karen Krohn of Viking, a sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Marge and Lynne Krohn, Viking, sisters of the bride, and Naomi Mikkelson, Lake Park, a sister of the groom.

Their identical gowns of cranberry qiana were fashioned with fitted bodices with lace inserts, high necklines and long full sleeves, edged with lace, matching the lace that enhanced the midriff. They carried cascades of white starburst mums, red sweetheart roses and pink and burgandy pixie carnations, accented with ivy and salal foliage.

Wearing a cranberry qiana gown with lace inset, matching the bridesmaids' gowns, was the flower girl, Stacy Anderson of Viking, a cousin of the bride. She carried a nosegay of white starburst mums with pink and burgandy pixie carnations and ivy.

The rings were carried by Robert Ballard, Lake Park, a cousin of the groom. His boutonniere was a red sweetheart rose with babies' breath.

Attending the groom as best man was Scott Mikkelson, Lake Park, a brother of the groom. Groomsmen were Cecil Ballard, Lake Park, a cousin of the groom; Dan Giefer, Lake Park, a friend, and Ken Krohn, Viking, a brother of the bride. The ushers were Darrell Anderson, Hallock, uncle of the bride, and Rodney Ballard, Lake Park, a cousin of the groom. All wore gray tuxedos with pink ruffled shirts and pink carnation boutonnieres. The groom was attired in an all-white tuxedo accented with a red boutonniere featuring three sweetheart roses.

The mother of the bride was attired in a cranberry red gown styled with a floor-length pleated skirt. The groom's mother wore a blue floral gown with a matching sheer jacket. Their peek-a-boo corsages were composed of pink carnations and red sweetheart roses.

Similar corsages and boutonnieres were worn by the bride's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Krohn, Viking, and Mr. and Mrs. Gunnar Anderson, Stephen; and the groom's grandmothers: Mrs. Bessie Mikkelson and Mrs. Marie Johnson.

A reception in the church parlors followed with Gary and Jean Anderson of Viking, uncle and aunt of the bride, and Mick and Lois Ballard, Lake Park, cousins of the groom, as hosts and hostesses. Rhonda Fincher, Crookston, a friend of the bride, presided at the guest book. At the punch bowl were Sheri Mikkelson, Fargo, a sister of the groom, and Dan Hunt, Fargo, a friend.

Centering the serving table was a four-tiered wedding cake, iced in white and topped by a silver Christogram. Surrounding the base were pink silk flowers and greenery. The cake was cut and served by Janice Noreen, aunt of the bride, and Pam Cossette, a cousin of the groom. Elaine Jacobson, aunt of the bride, and Nancy Ballard, cousin of the groom, poured the coffee. The groom's cake was distributed by Kinzie Anderson, Viking, and Tammy Cossette.

Waitresses were Wendy and Lollie Noreen, Tammy Jacobson of Minot, N.D., and Linda Bothun of Larimore, N.D. The gifts bearers were Roberta Anderson of St. Paul, and Lisa Cossette.

Following the reception, the bride's parents hosted a supper at their home for the bride and groom and about 50 relatives and friends. Highlighting the evening, was the opening of the wedding gifts by the bride and groom.

The groom's supper, hosted at the church by the groom's parents, followed the rehearsal.

A corsage of pink roses complemented the bride's going-away attire.

The couple is now at home at Ogema. The bride is a graduate of Marshall County Central high school and Moorhead Area Vocational-technical school, department of sales and marketing. The groom is a graduate of Lake Park high school and Detroit Lakes AVTI, diesel mechanics. He is currently employed by Kohler trucking. Photo, LeMar Studio, Crookston of St. Catherine in St. Paul and will provide delegates a practical application of Americanism and good citizenship through establishment of a self-government for the 450 girls attending.

"They will be informed about the duties, privileges, rights and responsibilities as American citizens in order that they may better understand and participate in the functioning of their government, and to help them grasp the meaning of some of the responsibilities which they must assume when they become adults," Mrs. Johnson said.

"The constitution and statutes of the state of Minnesota are the patterns from which the fundamental laws of Minnesota Girls State have been developed. Participants learn government by living it in mythical cities, counties and state. They campaign for office, form party platforms, participate in caucuses, elect officials and pass legislation.

"They will also spend one working day at the state capitol," Mrs. Johnson said. "The entire program is nonpolitical, non-partisan and non-sectarian."

Power Company Advances Made In Experiment

Otter Tail power company's experimental use of calcium carbonate in grit form to minimize slagging in power plant boilers has resulted in some positive effects. Inquiries on the experiment have been received from utilities and industries in various parts of the country.

The experiment is being conducted at Otter Tail's Hoot Lake generating station in Fergus Falls. Every two hours 150 pounds of calcium carbonate (limestone) are fed into pulverizers (coal-crushing units). The contents are then fed directly into the boilers. Plugging in plant boiler tubing results when high-sodium coal is burned and the grit softens the ash, thus preventing the slag from sticking.

Hoot Lake unit 2 was initially used when the experiment began January 24. The positive results led to a decision to implement use of the grit in unit 3. Calcium carbonate is also used as part of the experiment at one of Otter Tail's smaller generating stations in Ortonville, MN. A detailed analysis will be made following completion of the Hoot Lake unit 2 overhaul in April.

"Thus far we're delighted with the positive aspects of the experiment," notes Verlin Menze, Otter Tail's environmental manager. "There's been nothing negative to report, and we're also pleased the experiment has generated some interest from other utilities and industries."

Otter Tail first learned about the technique two years ago at a lignite symposium. More information was obtained when Menze and two other Otter Tail officials visited the boundary dam station in Canada where grit was being used by the Saskatchewan power corporation. "If the grit could do the job for them we figured results could be the same for us," Menze recalled.

The grit experiment is being conducted by Otter Tail in conjunction with the Grand Forks, N.D., energy research laboratory, affiliated with the U.S. department of energy. The Grand Forks based station is closely observing the tests at Hoot Lake plant. Other interested organizations include Basin electric power cooperative, Martin-Marietta chemicals of Baltimore, Maryland, and Babcock and Wilcox company, a boiler manufacturing firm.

If Otter Tail decides to implement use of the calcium carbonate grit on a full-time basis a more sophisticated method will be developed, Menze stated. The calcium carbonate is the same substance sold by chicken grit suppliers. Another benefit through use of the grit at power plants is possible savings in soot blower maintenance and other costs.

CETA Program Effective Again During Summer

Secretary of labor Ray Marshall has announced that one million economically disadvantaged youth, 14 through 21, will be hired this summer under the summer youth employment program.

The secretary said that more than $706 million is being apportioned among 460 state and local governments serving as prime sponsors under the comprehensive employment and training act (CETA). The funds are estimated to provide 1 million summer jobs of about 10 weeks duration at the minimum wage of $2.90 an hour.

Marshall is urging prime sponsors to begin planning early in order to provide for an enriched summer program, one that offers a variety of employment and training activities aimed at meeting the needs of unemployed youth in their communities.

In making the announcement Marshall pointed out that stringent steps are being taken to make certain that the 1979 program is run as efficiently as possible.

"I recognize that there have been problems with the summer youth program in the past," the Secretary said. "However, I believe that this is a good program, one that provides needed jobs for perhaps the hardest to employ segment of our population. The money that participants in this program receive for their work is often the only way to make the family budget stretch in these inflationary times.

The Secretary said that the employment and training administration (ETA), which administers the summer jobs program through the office of youth programs, will station a team of monitors in the 10 largest cities conducting the program to make certain that the intent of the program and the rules and regulations governing the program are not abused.

The 10 cities that will be monitored have not been selected.

"I believe that we should learn from the errors of the past. That is why I feel the steps that we are announcing are vital. I am convinced that this program can work only if the labor department applies a strong guiding hand to the program. We will continue to work in this direction to assure that youth this summer and in future years are provided meaningful work and job training."

The summer jobs program will supplement the various activities and programs now underway under the youth employment and demonstration projects act. These programs are administered by the employment and training administration's office of youth programs.

Last summer, one million youth were employed approximately 165,000 worksites under the summer program. At that time, the program was titled summer program for economically disadvantaged youth (SPEDY). ETA defines "economically disadvantaged" as one who is a member of the family that (1) receives cash welfare payments; or (2) has a family income that, in relation to family size and location, represents 70 per cent of the lower living standard income level issued by the department's bureau of labor statistics, or poverty levels established by the office of management and budget, which ever is higher.

Preparing Child For Trauma Of Death Reviewed

Time to prepare a child for the tauma of another person's death is long before the event occurs. In order to assist families in explaining death to children, the Pennington county extension service is offering an open meeting on "Helping Children Understand Death." It will be held on Tuesday, April 10 at 1:30 p.m. at Northwest regional library in Thief River Falls.

Senator Objects To Delay In Income Bill

Senator Rudy Boschwitz has registered an official protest in the Congressional Record against delaying the enactment of tighter restrictions on a senator's outside income.

A new earnings limit had been scheduled to go into effect, but the senate recently decided to put it off until 1983. Limits under the new code would have put a ceiling of $8,825, or 15 per cent of a senator's salary, on the amount he can earn from outside activities, including speechmaking. Thursday's vote means that senators will continue under the old code, which allows them to earn up to $25,000 in honorariums.

"We were expecting a recorded, roll-call vote on the issue," Boschwitz said, "but instead it was quickly settled by a voice vote without advance notice to all the senators."

Although his protest in the Record will not have any effect in changing the outcome of a vote already taken, Boschwitz said he wanted to go on record in opposition to the move.

"Undoubtedly, many senators who are not independently wealthy do suffer from the limit on outside earned income. There are a lot of costs connected with public service here for which they aren't reimbursed.

"However, the senate's procedure last week is bound to inflame cynicism among voters who see their public officials, after election day is over, figuring out ways to raise their pay.

"Eventually, I prefer a provision that will discourage senators from conflicts of interest or from neglecting their official duties," Boschwitz concluded.

Dedication Of Handbells Set

Handbell set will be dedicated at St. John Lutheran church in Thief River Falls Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Robert Eckstein, Tami and Tom Eckstein, Mrs. Barrie Henke, Mrs. Elaine Idso, Shari Idso and Mrs. Ruth Jensen serving as handbell choir for the day. The group will play the 37-bell set for the 10:30 a.m. worship service Sunday performing "Ode to Joy", "Sun of My Soul", and "Easter Chant."

The bronze bells were acquired through gifts received from Mr. and Mrs. Gary Finke of Thief River Falls, Ruth Furstneau of St. Paul and the family of the late Joseph Panek of Thief River Falls.

The dedication service will be held in conjunction with other festvities at St. John on Palm Sunday including the children's procession, of palms, distribution of palm lapel crosses to all worshippers and athems by the three Sunday choirs. The public is invited to worship with the St. John congregation Sunday and take part in the handbell dedication service.

Award Received To Study, Help Jobless Youth

Congressman Arlan Stangeland of the seventh district announced recently that the rural Minnesota concentrated employment program has been selected by the U.S. department of labor as one of only five areas in the nation to receive a grant for studies to reduce unemployment among young people.

"I have accepted, on behalf of rural Minnesota CEP and the seventh district of Minnesota, a grant of $1.25 million provided for young people to participate in the youth-in-jobs demonstration project. Many of our young people have difficulty in obtaining the necessary skills and work experience to obtain good jobs in the private sector, and are forced to turn to public jobs. This project is designed to determine how best to prepare young people for the job market," said Stangeland. He added that the project will also provide congress with information needed to effectively fund jobs programs, and reduce wasteful spending in existing programs.

Youth-in-jobs is an experimental project designed to serve economically disadvantaged and unemployed young people between the ages of 16 and 21. The project will provide work for 25 weeks for 240 participants who live in 19 of the district's 28 counties. The goal of the project is to study the relationship between public and private employment, and the quality of training each provides. To collect the necessary data, half of the young people will be employed in private sector jobs, while the other half works in public sector. It will then be up to St. Louis' center for urban programs and the Minnesota rural concentrated employment program to measure the differences in capabilities and preparedness of the participants, and their abilities to find jobs on their own.

"Historically, public jobs have not prepared people sufficiently for jobs in private sector, and I am pleased to see that the department of labor is investigating ways to improve the unemployment situation by working with the private sector. I am also pleased to see that the seventh district project will be directed by Larry Buboltz of Detroit Lakes. He is a very capable person, and is dedicated to providing people in the seventh district with an opportunity to learn and find good jobs." He added that Buboltz's superb management of public jobs in the seventh district is a good example of how these programs can be operated, and he suggested that the government study his program as an example. The counties include: Lake of the Woods, Stevens, Pope, Grant, Douglas, Todd, Morrison, Crow Wing, Traverse, Wadena, Otter Tail, Wilkin, Clay, Becker, Hubbard, Cass, Mahnomen, Clearwater and Beltrami.

Century Farm Families To Be Honored

Minnesota state fair and The Farmer magazine will continue to co-sponsor the Century Farm recognition program in 1979, honoring Minnesota families who have owned the same farm for 100 years.

1979 designees will be awarded certificates of recognition and plaques provided by The Farmer. Information provided by applicants will be forwarded to the Minnesota Historical Socity.

Qualifications for designation are: 1) the farm must be at least 100 years old according to the abstract of title, land patent, original deed, county land records, court file in registration proceedings, or other authentic land records; 2) "family" is defined as father, mother, uncle, aunt, brother, sister, son, daughter, first cousin, and direct in-laws (father-, mother-, brother-, sister-, daughter-, son-in-law); 3) continuous residence on the farm is not required, but ownership must be continuous; 4) the farm must consist of 50 or more acres.

Applications are available from the Minnesota State Fair, St. Paul, Minn. 55108, phone (612) 645-2781, and must be submitted by July 15. Families previously recognized should not reapply.

Century Farm program was begun in 1976 as a Bicentennial event and has been continued to include farms as they become eligible. In the past three years, over 1,600 families have been honored.

Environmental Council Seeks Five Members

Renae Sherman of Roseau, chairperson of the Region 1 environmental education council, said recently that applicants are being sought to fill five vacancies on the council.

Interested persons should contact either Howard Teague, Northern Minnesota regional coordinator, at 1705 hwy 2 west, Bemidji, MN 218-755-2732, or any council member.

State environmental education board and 13 regional councils were established in 1973 by the Minnesota Legislature. Law mandates that each 12-member group include representatives of seven major segments of society: kindergarten-12th grade education, post-secondary education, voluntary organizations, business-industry, agriculture, labor, elected local officials and regional development commissions. Applicants representing the categories of business, industry and agriculture and regional dev. commissions are currently needed for Region 1, which serves the counties of Kittson, Marshall, Norman, Pennington, Polk, Red Lake and Roseau.

Appointing power, which previously was vested in the Governor, has been transferred the chairperson of the Minnesota environmental education board, Jean Replinger of Marshall. However, Replinger has said she will rely heavily on the recommendations from the regional councils and other interested organizations in the regions.

In addition to the need to meet requirements regarding broad-based representation of major segments of society, there are several key factors which will be considered prior to appointment, Replinger said:

(1) an attempt will be made to provide equitable balance of members regarding sex, age and geographical location

(2) strong consideration willl be given to persons who demonstrate a deep interest in environmental education and a willingness to serve and become involved in council activities.

(3) familiarity with the state and regional environmental education organization and the Minnesota state plan for environmental education, while not required is nevertheless desirable.

Application forms of interested individuals not appointed at this time will be kept on file for reconsideration whenever a vacancy occurs.

Following persons are currently serving on the Region 1 environmental education council: Judy Alderson, Holt; Orren Bendickson, Thief River Falls; Peggy Henry, Crookston; John Holmgren, Salol; Betty Johnson, Roseau; Albert Koop, Thief River Falls and Renae Sherman, Roseau.

File Estimated Tax Returns By April 16

Individuals who do not have enough tax withheld, must make the first installment of estimated 1979 federal income tax no later than April 16, the internal revenue service said.

Generally, taxpayers having estimated tax of $100 or more and estimated gross income not subject to withholding which exceeds $500 must file form 1040-ES, declaration of estimated tax for individuals.

Taxpayers who filed an estimated income tax last year will receive form 1040-ES tax packages by mail. The package includes a set of instructions, an estimated tax worksheet, and four declaration vouchers, the IRS said.

Those persons who do not receive form 1040-EF tax packages, but are required to file a declaration of estimated tax, may obtain them from local IRS offices or by writing P.O. Box 43556, St. Paul, Mn 55164.

A handy IRS pamphlet, publication 505, "Tax Withholding and Declaration of Estimated Tax" is available free from local IRS offices.

MN. Defensive Driving Week Set April 1-7

"Defensive Driving Saves" is the theme of Minnesota Defensive Driving week, to be observed April 1-7, according to the Minnesota safety council coordinator of the defensive driving program in this state.

"Defensive driving does save wasted time and money, and has prevented accidents which cost us so terribly in needless suffering," said Leonz M. Schooley, manager of traffic services for the safety council.

Defensive driving course (DDC) is an eight-hour classroom training course for licensed drivers which teaches the basic skills required to avoid accidents before they happen.

Schooley said that through DDC, drivers are taught easily and quickly how to avoid almost every potential pitfall which can confront them in city or rural traffic situations. Course uses a textbook, visual aids and films to support lectures given by trained instructors. Home study version uses tape cassettes and workbooks to teach the same concepts.

Minnesota safety council began offering regularly scheduled courses in the Twin Cities and Duluth in March, giving Minnesotans an opportunity to join the over 10 million U.S. drivers who have completed the defensive driving course. Minnesota safety council won top honors in 1977 for training the greatest number of students by a state safety council, and topped its own training record in 1978 with over 12,000 Minnesotans trained in DDC that year.

For information on enrolling in or sponsoring a defensive driving course, contact the Minnesota Safety Council, 145 Hamm Building, St. Paul 55102, or its northern area service office at 318 Missabe Building, Duluth 55802.

Disaster Aid Reaches $8.4 Million Mark

Well over $8 million in state and federal grants has been distributed to persons and communities suffering property damage from the floods and tornadoes that struck 17 Minnesota counties last summer.

"The grants total $8,431,111," said Roy Aune, acting director of the division of emergency services, part of the Minnesota department of public safety.

About $1,875,000 went to individuals and families who were unable to get help from any other agency, he said. The individual and family grant program approved 1,340 applications, more than half from Olmsted county, where Rochester was the area hardest hit by flash floods.

Grants totalling $6,466,111 went to local governments to repair damage to public property, such as roads, bridges and buildings, said Aune. "We approved 216 projects for public assistance grants."

Federal officials have praised Minnesota's natural disaster response plan as "one of the best." They said the pre-disaster planning and well-handled relief programs "helped greatly to reduce suffering and the loss of lives."

4H CLUB

Star

The Star 4-H club's monthly meeting was called to order March 19 at the Eklund Dining Hall. President Leann Holen called the meeting to order, followed by the flag pledges and parent's pledge. Roll call was to answer "what are your parents doing for the program tonight?" After the secretary and treasurer's reports were given, a brief report on Leader's Council was given by Adeline Parnow. Deborah Matero also explained supplemantary food records to the club. Share-the-Fun was beiefly discussed and since there was no old or new business the meeting was adjourned.

The following parents participated in the evening's demonstration and entertainment: Mrs. Roger Solberg showed her selection of woodwork picture frames and decopaged pictures; Mrs. Harvey Troska showed how to use measuring cups; Mrs. Paul Mutnansky showed how to thread a needle; Mrs. Orlin Hanson and Paul Mutnansky demonstrated the fiddle and guitar and also favored us with several numbers. Mrs. Clarence Peterson along with Jodi and Paul Mutnansky sang several songs with Mrs. Peterson accompaning on the uke. They also had everyone join in with a couple of songs. Mrs. Robert Parnow and Mrs. Orlin Hanson had earlier held a bread and rolls baking project for 7 girls and also served them supper. These products were conference judged by Deb with each girl, followed by a quiz on bread baking by Mrs. Orlin Hanson. Mrs. Earnest Swanson also had a part in the program with her garden project members. She asked them questions on what they had done previously at their vegetable, indoor, and flower garden project meetings that evening.

The evening climaxed with everyone having the privilege of sampling all the "goodies" that the girls had baked along with a delicious lunch served by the Sand family.

Present at the meeting were 15 4-H members, 13 4-H parents, and 2 visitors.

Offer Safety Training For Preschoolers

If "Stop", "Look out" and "Don't" pop up frequently in training your pre-schooler, the Minnesota safety council has a teaching aid that will help take the "no-no" out of teaching safety to your youngster.

Child Safety club is a comprehensive safety training program designed especially for children between the ages of three and five. Materials provided to members of the club help parents to teach basic accident prevention information in an atmosphere of fun. Safety training becomes a game with positive results when adults have the opportunity to help children learn to identify hazardous situations, overcome vulnerability in the early formative years and mark the first step of their growth into a strong, healthy, safety-conscious adult.

Accidents are the leading cause of death to children between the ages of one and four, according to the safety council. Child Safety club provides teaching aids in the accident areas where those children are most vulnerable — motor vehicles, falls, drowning, fires, burns, poisoning.

Club is available on a membership basis. Membership includes a five-book series of child-centered educational materials. Each book in the set features stories, puzzles, paper pop-out projects and realistic practice activities designed to make safety a personal experience as well as a family affair. All five books are directed to step-up levels of comprehension, physical coordination and tactile capabilities based on age of child, exposure, experience and recall.

Children registered in the club receive their first book on or soon after their third birthday. An add-on book is issued every six months through the child's fifth birthday. Children may be enrolled any time between birth and three years of age, but they will not receive the first book until their third birthday.

Information on Child Safety club membership may be obtained from the Minnesota safety council at 145 Hamm Building, St. Paul, Minnesota 55102. Membership, which covers a child from age three to five, is $15.00.

Letters to the Editor

To The Editor:

This letter is my opinion in regard to the community college teacher's strike.

The state offered a 14 per cent increase in wages over two years. The teachers want any increase to be computed using as a base, the arbitrated pay granted them in 1977. However, this was lowered by the legislature. A District Court rules the state acted unfairly.

This is the basic reason for the strike the way I see it. Everyone certainly wants to keep pace with our inflated prices. Nobody likes to strike — it creates hardships on everyone involved. Some of our present state political leaders have advocated the students to go to other schools. Unfortunately, most students cannot or would not choose to do this. The financial cost of moving and relocating would be a major problem to most. The principals involving the issue is another. Only a minority of the teachers and students have crossed the picket lines.

The fundamental basis of our Democracy is majority rule. Another, just as important factor is for the minority to be heard. These principals seem to be presently demonstrated. Even though the students are not attending classes, they may be getting a very good education on principals and issues. I certainly hope they keep this in mind when they go to the polls to cast their vote next time.

If after this disagreement is resolved — maybe those who have not honored the picket lines could donate any pay increase to a charitable organization of their choice.

Sincerely,
A concerned citizen on Union Labor Policies,
-s-Robert N. Reed

To The Editor:

A few weeks ago on a bitterly cold day, an elderly resident of the Valley home fell on the ice while taking his daily walk outdoors. He realized he could not move his leg so he lay on the street until three young boys happened by on their noon hour at Lincoln high. They evidently called the ambulance and waited.

Since the ambulance didn't arrive within 15 minutes, they gently lifted him into their car and took him to the hospital. I'm sure they were aware of the risk involved, moving him with possible fractures, but it was 27 below and they did what they had to do. This took real courage.

Since these boys didn't identify themselves, we thought they might like to know that Mr. Bakke is recovering from surgery of multiple fractures of the left leg and hip. With the progress he is making with his walker, he may be ready for the outdoors by the time the lawns are green. We would like to thank Tony Hoglo and who ever else assisted our dad.

Sincerely,
-s-FloydandDoloresBakke

P.S. If these boys should like to stop by the Valley home sometine to say hi to him, I'm sure he would like to thank them in person.

To The Editor:

It seems that the only thing that makes U.S. American people sit up and take notice is when something hits us in our pocketbooks, so now that most of us know how much the Panama Canal "Giveaway" (or maybe "payaway" is a better word) is going to cost us, perhaps more people will pitch in and try to help save our canal in Panama.

I thing that most of our people know that to give our canal to that dictator in Panama will cost somewhere in the scope of $10 million dollars, right off the bat; then will, in all probability, run into many billions of dollars by the time we put our air bases on islands near Panama (which we haven't used for years) back in top shape, which is only one of the many conditions that Panama is reading into that treaty that President Carter drummed up last summer.

Then there is the extra cost, to each of us for the price our car gasoline and fuel to heat our homes, that will be added to defray the loss of our Alaskan oil, which must be shipped through the canal. There is talk to the effect that the Alaskan oil may have go be sold to Japan because of the projected cost of moving it through the canal, once it is taken over by Panama. All this will, of course, make the U.S. more dependent on foreign oil, and bring up the price to the U.S. taxpayers.

I know that some people will throw up their hands and say "That what we have those Representatives in Washington for." and how right they will be! But — we must tell those Representatives in Washington what we want them to do.

The power of letters to our Congressmen can work wonders if we taxpayers will just take the time to write a few lines and ask them to not O.K. that "Payaway" of our canal. It is a fact that if the Representatives refuse to appropriate the money to pay that dictatorship in Panama, the Carter treaty will be voided and we can keep our canal.

But we must act now as the house will be acting on the "Payaway" in April.

Write to our congressman Arlan Stangeland, House of Representatives, Washington, D.C. 20515 and also ask your friends and relatives no matter where they live in the country to do the same.

Also write to: Committeeman Carrol Hubbard, Subcommittee on the Panama Canal, 3576 House Annex No. 2, Washington D.C. 20515 and ask how to bring your views before the full house.

And, don't let anyony brainwash you into thinking that our canal in Panama is obsolete, because it is not! Just as some of our airports are not able to accommodate the big Concord plane so also our canal is not able to accommodate some of the largest ships but is that any reason to give them to unfriendly countries?

I sincerely hope that the readers of this paper will realize the urgency of the issue.

Mrs. L. Carpenter

To the Editor:

In regard to the strike at Northland Community College, everyone seems to agree that the "strike leaves the college students in a tough spot" as stated in your front page headline of March 21, 1979. Having been students, we can sympathize with their situation.

But we would also like to express our sympathies to the striking teachers here and across the state who have repeatedly been left in a tough spot after negotiating contracts that were not honored by the state legislature. It disturbs us to hear of the teachers being blamed for putting the students in a tough spot. It seems to us that the teachers have been very patient in continuing to work four years at salaries that were less than they had in good faith negotiated.

If anyone is going to blame others for putting the students in a tough spot, let's be fair and share that blame with our state legislators who have not hesitated to put our teachers in a tough spot and keep them there.

Yours truly,
-s-Lloyd A. Heroff

CHAROLAIS AND HEREFORD cross cow in the Gordon and Scott Olson herd west of Thief River Falls is the dam for this half-blood beefalo calf. Charolais influence is evident in the appearance of the animals. Since full-blood beefalo bulls are often three-eighths Charolais, that breed becomes more dominant when offspring are also from cows with Charolais background.

pounds. It's kind of scary at first because you wonder if a runt like that's going to make it. But a small live calf is a lot better than a big dead one. It seems like the gestation period is almost a week shorter than with domestic cattle. That may account for the smaller size."

Beefalo calves are born with a working rumen and are nibbling on hay in a few days. By the time they are two weeks old they are chewing cuds just like their mothers. The small calves are also amazingly strong and hardy. Most are up and moving around half an hour after birth, compared to a couple of hours for most domestic calves. In one unusual circumstance last year, Scott said one calf got to its feet and stood unassisted in 45 seconds after being born.

"There seems to be good disease resistance in beefalo," Scott added. "We had pinkeye in the herd last year but none of the beefalo got it. We have had no scouring problems with beefalo calves. Since we started using a marker bull for heat detection we have had a 90 per cent settling rate, and that's awfully good. That percentage will probably catch up with us."

Scott and Gordon expect to market their first half-blood beefalo about June 1 when last year's bull calves will be just over a year old and tipping the scales at about 1,000 pounds. They will market the animals locally for slaughter and plan to charge 10 cents a pound above the beef market on the day they are sold. Price will be based on hot carcass or hanging weight — the weight of the animal after it has been dressed but prior to curing shrink.

THREE-FOURTHS BEEFALO heifer on the Gordon and Scott Olson farm west of Thief River Falls carries some of the traits of the buffalo in its background breeding. Long guard hairs are evident and the body conformation bears a resemblance to buffalo. This heifer is the result of breeding a beefalo bull to a half-blood beefalo cow.

Beefalo promotional material notes that beefalo will dress out 62 per cent, compared to 50 to 55 per cent for domestic beef. Yield grades are one and two and the meat is said to be "high in protein, low in fat, fine grained, tender, succulent and flavorful".

While claims are made that beefalo can be raised to slaughter weight on good grass or roughage without being fed grain, the Olsons have been feeding grain to their half-blood beefalo. "I guess it's partly because I can't get used to raising beef without feeding grain," Scott said, "and right now grain is pretty cheap."

Developing a full beefalo herd will take either a lot of time or a lot of money. Each succeeding generation increases the percentage of beefalo in the offspring, but it takes two years to produce a new generation, assuming that each breeding results in a heifer calf.

Progeny of a half-blood beefalo cow and full-blood beefalo bull is three-quarter beefalo. Bred a year later to calf the following year, that animal would produce a seven-eighths beefalo. If it is a heifer, bred a year later to calf the following year, the offspring would be fifteen-sixteenths beefalo and eligible for registry.

It is quicker to take advantage of someone else's breeding program and buy full-blooded beefalo stock. It is also expensive. The Olsons aren't aiming for full-blood beefalo in a hurry. They intend to produce three-quarter blood heifers for sale as brood cows and three-quarter blood steers for slaughter.

Because of the stated ability of beefalo to be finished on roughage instead of grain — along with the other desirable characteristics such as ability to withstand extreme temperature ranges of heat and cold — they are considered to be the meat animal of the future. Time will tell if this projection is true, and if it is, Scott and Gordon Olson could see a big reduction in their Excedrin bill.

AT TWO WEEKS OLD this half-blood beefalo calf is well filled out and growing rapidly. It shows evidence of Charolais breeding in its background since both the beefalo sire and crossbred Hereford and Charolais dam transmit Charolais characteristics. Beefalo thrive and finish well on a high roughage and low grain ration and a calf this age is already a placid cud-chewing animal.

GOOD DISPOSITION is a desirable trait of the beefalo cattle being raised on the Gordon and Scott Olson farm west of Thief River Falls. This half-blood beefalo cow and her first calf — a three-quarter blood beefalo heifer — were not at all alarmed by a stranger in the cattle yard. The calf is about a week old but was already eating hay as well as taking its normal lunch break as shown above.

Hockey Schedule Is Changed

For only the second time since 1970-71, a Twin Cities area opponent will not appear on the Lincoln high school hockey schedule in 1979-80. The Prowlers, who are still looking for a game to fill out next year's schedule, were the losers when Roseau accepted an enviable invitation that will include stops at Edina East and Edina West next winter.

Since the 1970-71 season Thief River Falls and Roseau have normally worked together in scheduling a pair of Christmas time foes — usually from the metropolitan area.

That mutual scheduling started with Anoka and St. Paul Park in 1970-71 and included Anoka and St. Paul Hill-Murray in 1971-72, along with Mounds View and Henry Sibley in 1972-73. Those games were actually advertised as a holiday tournament, scheduled at Thief River Falls and Roseau on alternating years.

The scheduling relationship was severed in 1973-74 but resumed the next year when Thief River Falls and Roseau swapped opponents — a system that lasted through the 1978-79 season. It was Bloomington Lincoln and Duluth Central in 1974-75; Minneapolis Henry and Anoka in 1975-76; Aurora-Hoyt Lakes and St. Paul Academy in 1976-77; Minneapolis Roosevelt and St. Paul Johnson in 1977-78; and Benilde-St. Margaret's and St. Thomas Academy in 1978-79.

However, absence of a metropolitan area team won't be a total loss for the Prowlers who have added a game with Fergus Falls. That's an attractive addition since the Prowlers and Otters have become keen Section 8 hockey rivals in the last couple of years when they met once during the regular season and again at tournament time.

Rest of the 1979-80 Thief River Falls schedule will remain unchanged from this past winter. In addition to Section 8 assignments, Thief River Falls will play games against Grand Forks Red River and Grand Forks Central in the sports arena while traveling to Greenway-Coleraine. Thief River Falls will open its season Dec. 8 in the sports arena against Mount St. Benedict.

The 1979 preseason Section 8 jamboree will be played Dec. 1 at Crookston.

Hockey News

In other hockey-related news:

+ Gary Hokanson of Roseau has been named to succeed Terry Schercliffe of Moorhead as president of the Section 8 high school hockey coaches organization.

+ Ken Anderson has submitted his resignation as head hockey coach at Detroit Lakes high school. He is the second Section 8 coach to step down following the 1978-79 season; the first was Buzz Olson of East Grand Forks.

+ Joe Dee, a senior defenseman in the 1978-79 Lincoln high school hockey team, will attend the Air Force Academy next year where he'll play hockey under former Thief River Falls head coach John Matchefs. Head coach of the Prowlers for three years, Matchefs directed Thief River Falls to a Region 8 title and a state tournament consolation championship in 1959 before moving on to Eveleth where he had been a high school star. MVP of the 1953 NCAA tournament as captain of the Univeristy of Michigan squad, Matchefts was a member of the silver medal U.S. Olympic team in 1956. He served in the U.S. Marine Corps before moving into the coaching ranks here. He coached from 1960-66 at Eveleth, 1967-71 at Colorado College and from 1971 to the present time at th Air Force Academy located near Colorado Springs, Colo.

Track Season Underway For Lincoln Girls, Boys

First Thief River Falls spring sports event of the 1979 season featured the Lincoln high school boys and girls track teams Monday as the Prowlers competed in an indoor triangular meet in the Winter Shows building at Crookston.

Girls

East Grand Forks was an easy winner with 65 points in the girls competition, followed by Thief River Falls with 36 and Crookston 29.

The Prowlers weren't at full strength for the unannounced early season meet, but nevertheless came up with four individual winners, including Connie Hedlund who matched a building record with a 10.4 in the 70-yard hurdles.

Other Thief River Falls winners were Fawn Hawkinson who ran a 15:42 two-mile, Lori Swanson who ran a 6:23 mile and Stacey Ehrenstrom who tossed the shot 33-3.

The Prowlers' Brenda Lund was second in the long jump with a 14-9½ effort that was a mere one-half inch behind the winner. Thief River Falls' 760-yard relay unit of Beth Hallstrom, Hedlund, Lund and Patty Langlie was also a second place finisher.

Thirds came from Hedlund in the long jump and Patty Blackstad in the hurdles.

The Prowlers are coached this spring by Tom Schafer, assisted by Bonnie Kluver.

Boys

Host Crookston took top honors in the boys portion of the meet with 71 points, followed by East Grand Forks with 55½ and Thief River Falls 28½.

Senior Jeff Oseid was a double event winner for the Prowlers with a 5-10 high jump and an 18-7¾ long jump. He also finished second in the 70-yard high hurdles and was third in the 70-yard intermediate hurdles to complete a busy and productive night.

Thief River Falls also had a winner in senior Mark Larson who ran a 10:46.6 two-mile.

Freshman Tom Ose, juniors Keith Wheeler and Greg Ness and Larson were second in the sprint medley relay.

Ness turned in a 5:10.4 mile to finish third in a close race that also featured a 5:13 by Thief River Falls' Bruce Johnson, top performance in the freshman portion of the meet.

Junior Jim Thompson completed the Thief River Falls place finishes with a fourth in the intermediate hurdles.

"We couldn't expect much more," mentioned Thief River Falls coach John Kopari. "We're unable to work hard indoors and it's tough to work outdoors when it's this cold. I'm just looking for steady improvement. That's the only way we can look at it."

Seniors Tom Brosseau and Jim Shirley should join Monday's scorers as Thief River Falls point producers this spring. Brosseau, a middle distance runner, is the team captain. Shirley, the squad's top sprinter, did not run at Crookston.

Thief River Falls will return to the Winter Shows building Tuesday for the 1979 Northwest Athletic Conference indoor track meet, scheduled to start at 4 p.m.

Keith Breiland Of TRF Heads Minnesota-Morris Net Squad

Keith Breiland of Thief River Falls is one of five returning letter winners on this spring's University of Minnesota-Morris tennis team and a top contender for the No. 1 singles spot in the Cougars' line-up, a UMM official reported this week.

Morris, hoping to mold a nucleus of veteran performers with some talented newcomers, will launch its 1979 season Saturday with a triangular indoor meet against Concordia college and North Dakota State University at the Fargo Racquet Club.

Highlighting the season for the Cougars will be the annual Northern Intercollegiate Conference (NIC) meet in St. Cloud May 3-5 when Morris will be looking to improve upon last year's fourth place finish.

"We're optimistic about the season," said Morris coach Bob Wagsness. "Our players have worked hard at practice and are looking forward to their first match."

Anchoring the Cougars are five lettermen, including co-captains Tony Davis and Bob Florine, along with transfer George Crossman of North Hennepin community college and freshman Glenn Britzius.

Gone from last year's squad which fashioned a winning dual meet season and came within an eyelash of a third place NIC finish are four-year player Rick Ronning and Veteran John Straka, now working with Wagsness as an assistant coach.

Returning letter winners include Breiland, who seems to have inherited Ronning's No. 1 singles spot; David, a junior from St. Francis; Florine, a senior from Stewartsville, Dean McKenna, a junior from Burnsville; and Bruce Eckhart, a junior from Redwood Falls.

"We will be looking to the veterans to provide leadership," said Wangsness who added that only one freshman — Britzius — seemed destined to break into the line-up. Britzius was a ranked player as a prepster last year at Minnetonka.

The squad has been working out weekly at the Augusta tennis club near St. Cloud since early January.

At Fargo this week Breiland will probably encounter longtime tennis rival Brent Reichert of Crookston, Concordia's No. 1 singles player.

Only One Senior On The Squad . . .

Veteran LHS Tennis Team Still Has Youthful Look

Missing only a pair of doubles players from last year's Section 8 championship squad, the Lincoln high school tennis team will open its 1979 season Saturday with deserved confidence when the Prowlers face Brainerd, Fergus Falls and South St. Paul in a quadrangular indoor tournament at Brainerd beginning at 11 a.m.

Led by multi-sport standout Bill Jury, Thief River Falls' singles line-up returns intact from a year ago when Jury played No. 1, Mitch Rustad No. 2 and Bill Michalek No. 3. Jury won the Section 8 singles title as a sophomore last spring after a runner-up finish in 1977. Rustad was also a state meet performer as a sophomore in 1978 with a third place Section 8 finish. Michalek, the only senior on this year's still-young squad, made the state meet field in 1977 as a doubles partner of Chris Kays.

Kays and Steve Minor were the only seniors on last year's Thief River Falls squad that continued to dominate northwestern Minnesota tennis, giving the Prowlers their second team title in four years. In addition to championship performances in 1975 and 1978, the Prowlers were runner-up to a St. Cloud Tech team in 1977 that had won a state crown the year before.

In 1978 Kays was teammed with Tom Bjorkman in first doubles and Minor was paired with Bill Holmes in second doubles. Finding the right doubles partners for Bjorkman and Holmes, both juniors, is coach Whitey Olson's biggest — and maybe only — concern this spring.

"It's always a problem to find two kids who are compatible," explained Olson who puts as much emphasis on the mental part of the pairings as he does on the actual tennis talents. "The doubles teams we put together will make the difference when the going gets really tough," he warned.

"All five of our kids we have coming back will be improved," promised Olson. "Our strength is moving up in grades. The junior class we have now is a talented group of athletes in many sports. They say you make your biggest improvement athleticwise between your sophomore and junior year in high school. If that's the case, we should really be an improved tennis team this spring. We hope they all would have made a stride or two improvement over last year."

Many of those players will be working with junior varsity coach Gene Jurgens.

Thief River Falls was a fourth place finisher in the 1978 state tournament.

"I think we're going to be a stronger team than we were last year," said Olson.

"Whether we are able to perform as well at the end of the season depends on our schedule," he said in reference to a budget-dictated slate that eliminates long overnight trips needed to reach the tougher competition which "would have been beneficial to us," he noted.

Post-season tournament structure has once again been changed. Thief River Falls will have to overcome Bemidji, Crookston, East Grand Forks, Moorhead and Detroit Lakes in North Sub Region 8AA play to reach the Region 8AA championship match. "If they put their best kid up against our best kid, there's not going to be much in it for them," said Olson about the North Sub Region 8AA tournament field. "But if they start sandbagging — dropping kids down — they could give us a tough match."

St. Cloud Tech, led by basketball-playing John Schwanberg, is expected to be the dominant force in South Sub Region 8AA. And Olson is worried that a tougher regular season schedule might give the Tigers an edge on the Region 8AA trophy.

Individual advancement to the state meet as also become tougher, with just the top two singles and top two doubles finishers in region competition moving into the state field. Top three used to advance.

UND Football Clinic Slated April 12-13

University of North Dakota spring football clinic, designed to assist coaches on all levels of competition and featuring outstanding championship coaches from the state and the pro ranks, has been scheduled on the UND campus and Westward Ho Motel in Grand Forks, according to head football coach Gene Murphy.

"We believe we have an excellent instructional staff of visiting coaches and these men will present valuable information for all coaches.

Murphy urged pre-registration. The fee is $17, which includes a smoker and luncheon. Registration on the day of the clinic is $20.

North Border All-Conference Squad Named

Roseau, Lake of the Woods, Warraod and Badger all placed two players on the 1978-79 North Border Conference high school basketball all-conference team announced this week.

The all-conference picks included seniors Lynn Behl and Mike Singer of Roseau, senior David Furbish and junior Todd Robinson of Lake of the Woods, senior Bryan Modahl and junior Bob Dostal of Badger and seniors Loren Johnson and Joe Day of Warroad.

Also named to the honor squad were senior Jim Sethre of Marshall County Central, junior Randy Larson of Grygla and sophomore Scott McKeever of Middle River.

Four seniors given honorable mention status were Kevin Anderson, Marshall County Central; Todd Peterson, Middle River; Bob Kramer, Roseau; and Martin Heggedal, Badger.

McKeever led the North Border Conference in scoring this winter with a 23-point average. Robinson scored at an 18.8 clip, Johnson 18.5 and Modahl 18.4.

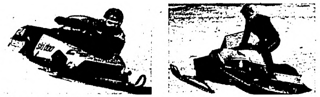
Roseau was the North Border Conference champion with an 11-1 record, finishing one game ahead of District 32 tournament champion Lake of the Woods.

Women Softball Players Meet Monday Night

A women's slow pitch softball meeting will be held Monday at 7 p.m. in the card room of the Thief River Falls city auditorium.

All women interested in playing softball this summer are asked to attend the general meeting.

Dave Goltz's 2.50 ERA in 1978 was fifth-best in the American League and the lowest for any Twins' hurler since Camilo Pascual's club-record 2.47 mark in 1963.



ALLEN DECKER (left) captured the No. 1 position in Sno Pro snowmobile oval racing season point standings this winter while Gerard Karpik (right) rode the rugged trails to the international cross country snowmobile federation season championship. Both drivers were members of the Ski-Doo factory teams.

Decker, Karpik Rank As Top Snowmobile Drivers

Decker Karpik

Rookies virtually never make it big in their first or even second season of professional motorsports competition.

But a pair of rookie professional snowmobile racers, 22-year-old Allen Decker of Marshfield, Wis. and 25-year-old Gerard Karpik of Eveleth, proved exceptions to the rule this winter when they captured the number one spots in season points in Sno Pro oval and international cross country snowmobile federation (ICCSF) competition, respectively.

Decker, in his first season on the Ski-Doo factory Sno Pro team, won six events and finished so consistently in the top three that he piled up 128 points for the number one position on the Sno Pro professional snowmobile oval racing circuit.

Karpik, setting a new season record of five victories, more than doubled the point production of his nearest competitor to win the ICCSF season crown in his second season with the Ski-Doo factory cross country team. He ran off four successive wins at the end of the 1977-78 season to narrowly miss the scoring title in his first year with the squad.

Decker and Karpik piloted drastically-different Ski-Doo snowmobiles for their season point crowns. Decker's 250, 340 and 440cc Blizzard machines for the ovals are low-slung with a wide 40.5-inch ski stance and powerful liquid-cooled Bombardier-Rotax rotary valve engines. Karpik's cross country machines are RV340cc sleds adapted with special cross country kits and air-cooled engines.

Until the 1978-79 season, the 5-9, 145-pound Decker competed with the Decker family racing team out of Marshfield in super stock and super mod oval events. He was high point driver in super stock I in 1977-78. He and his brother, Mike, earned their first pro factory assignments with Ski-Doo this winter.

Karpik began racing snowmobiles in 1970 on ovals but switched to cross country races five years later, winning his first pro factory ride 1977-78. The 5-11, 165-pounder's nine victories over two seasons is a mark that may be tough to top on the rugged 50 and 100-mile and longer ICCSF events over a variety of terrain.

BSU's Bald Eagle Learning Center Has Full Program

Bald Eagle center, near Cass Lake, is rapidly becoming the most popular base in the upper Midwest for environmental-outdoor programs.

Each year, winter and summer, this former Job Corps center plays host to thousands of students from junior high school through college, from educators to amateur hobbyists. Now part of Bemidji state university, the center has been developing an ever-expanding curriculum of outdoor programs to meet the needs of all levels of education.

This spring and summer will result in even more expansion. Center will offer four separate programs, beginning March 23 and running through early October.

Natural history and environmental studies curriculum will begin the spring with a course in blacksmithing March 23-25. This will be followed by outdoor biology instructional strategies April 20-22; introduction to log cabin building, April 27-29; introduction to wild foods, May 25-27; wild foods, June 24-30; nature photography, June 25-29; north country wildflowers, June 29-July 1; forest management for private landowners, July 12-16; introduction to topographic maps and aerial photographs, July 16-23; a process approach to environmental education July 22-27; and log cabin building, August 3-11.

Each of these environmental studies courses is offered for undergraduate or post baccalaureate credit. Most are for one credit, through the advanced techniques courses and instruction course are for three credits. Costs vary.

Three individual adventure programs are part of the 1979 curriculum, taking students to all parts of the world.

Spring-summer adventure series starts with an orienteering course April 13-15. On April 20 a series of four rock climbing programs will be offered. The April 20-22 and 27-29 courses for beginners are identical while the May 4-6 and 11-13 courses are advanced technique training for students seeking further practice.

Kayaking on May 11-13 heads a list of three fast-water boating classes. Kayaking will be followed on May 18-20 and 25-27 by Whitewater canoeing classes. Fiberglass kayak construction will be taught July 6-10 at the Bald Eagle center.

These adventure weekend classes are all one credit for undergraduates or post baccalaureate study.

Shortly after the weather warms and the techniques weekend classes are over, the wilderness inquiry program begins. These popular, extended wilderness trips take students into the White Otter wilderness in Ontario and the Boundary water canoe area.

The first White Otter trip will be from June 10-30. June 11-25 a second expedition will paddle, portage and rock climb through another part of Ontario.

On July 1 a special long trek will begin at Dryden, Ontario and go by water to Ely, traversing three wilderness areas and ending July 21.

July 27-31 there will be a kayaking tour of the BWCA.

Women's canoe expedition of the White Otter wilderness will leave the center August 5 and end on the 25th. A final BWCA canoe voyage will run from August 11-18.

These intermediate wilderness adventure programs are also for undergraduates or post baccalaureate study and vary from three to eight credits.

This year, for the first time, the Bald Eagle center will have a special adventure series for the students who really want to do it all.

Canyonlands river rafting expedition will be the first, starting down the Green river in Utah May 27. Raft trip will wind through Canyonlands national park and end June 11.

June 21 the second annual Norway backpacking expedition will leave for the fjords and mountains of the Jotenheim region. Tour returns to the U.S. July 5.

The magnificent marshes and lakes of the Churchill river in far-northern Saskatchewan will be featured in a canoe expedition leaving July 7 and ending August 5.

Back at the Bald Eagle center the Wilderness Use Education association will offer an intensive training program July 15 - August 14 for individuals with a strong background in canoe camping expeditions. This will be a certification track for wilderness leaders.

Late in August the first Scotland highland expedition will backpack along the steep western coast of Scotland. Early in September the second Missinabi river expedition will run the 300 miles of the Missinabi river into the base of the Hudson bay — a trip for experienced canoeists only.

For more information about these spring and summer programs through the Bald Eagle outdoor learning center, write the center at Cass Lake, Minnesota 56633 or phone 218-665-2241.

Court Decides 19 Cases Thur.

Nineteen cases were decided in a regular session of Pennington county court held Thursday, March 29, including 10 cases brought by the Thief River Falls police department, one Pennington county sheriff's department case, six Minnesota highway patrol cases and two cases decided by court trial.

Among the police department cases were: Neil Anderson, Roseau, defrauding an innkeeper, $100 fine and 10 days jail with $75 and the jail term stayed; Gary W. The message of Holy Week is not a sad one. Rather, it is the most joyous news we will ever hear! The glory of the resurrection could not have happened without the stark tragedy of Good Friday . . . and because Christ overcame death, we are assured of eternal life. It is certain that we will live again and forever, in a new way that God has planned for us.

Jesus strove constantly to make this blessed truth plain. Time and time again we are told of God's great love, and of His constant concern for the world and people He created.

The highest point of Christ's ministry was the cross. Because of its tremendous power we, as Christians, have been given a ceaseless source of comfort. Come to the church of your choice.

Parents Can Speed Child Development

How much can you teach your infant or toddler at home? Plenty, according to child development specialists at St. Paul children's hospital.

In fact, the first three years are crucial in a child's development. Young children need interesting surroundings plus the warmth and closeness of parents to make the most of their in-born abilities.

Infants can have their senses developed with mobiles, toys and other objects to kick and bat, activities which increase their feeling of "hey, I caused that to happen."

Older babies, around four months, are eager to grasp at anything. This is the time to stimulate their sense of touch, providing them with objects of different textures and shapes so they learn to feel the difference.

"When you do this," said Cynthia Hobbie, pediatric nurse associate, "children increase their awareness of their environment."

Talk may be cheap, but it pays large benefits when given in large doses to young children, even before they seem capable of understanding what is said.

Talk while pinning on diapers, talk while feeding and bathing. Normal conversation can teach many concepts. An orange is "Hard." Bread is "soft." Jeans are "blue." Socks belong in the "top" drawer.

Keep "No's" to a minimum for toddlers; talk to them instead about the "how's and why's" of what they find. Children between 8 and 13 months can usually be controlled through distraction tactics. Children from 13 to 18 months require distraction as well as removal from circumstances at times.

Playpens should not be overused, according to Hobbie. "Children need to have different kinds of experiences throughout the day," she said. "Playpens offer one kind of experience but they should not be used as confinement. Playpens are handy for emergencies when a safe place is needed momentarily, but if a child spends all his time in a playpen with the same toys that will certainly retard his development."

Parents who take time to answer questions and enjoy an experience with their children become a resource to them, someone they will turn to for years to come.

Reading readiness is influenced at a very young age. Infants and very young children exposed to books and magazines learn language more easily and become better readers in later years. Read labels, signs, cereal boxes, all readily available in most homes.

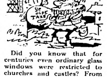
Young children also need to develop big and little motion skills. Cups and water for filling and dumping, lids and jars to fit together, boxes or objects for stacking and spools to string all aid small muscle development.

Dancing to radio music, climbing in and out of large boxes and jumping and hopping through the house develop large motion muscles.

"There is so much going on around children all the time," Hobbie said. "You just have to take the time to teach them."

The result of these simple everyday activities and surroundings is a higher learning capacity than the child would have otherwise.

GLASS Facts & Fancies



Did you know that for centuries even ordinary glass windows were restricted to churches and castles? From 1697 to 1851, Englishmen were taxed for each window they had in their homes over the allotted six.

Just as windows are no longer taxed, cleaning them need not be taxing. In seconds, windows and washable surfaces all around the house can come sparkling clean with Glass*Plus® glass, appliance and cabinet cleaner. Just spray surfaces to be cleaned and wipe dry with a paper towel or lint-free cloth.

The use of glass for decorative purposes goes back to ancient times. The Athenians used opaque glass to decorate floors and ceilings. The Romans made the first windows and used them in the luxurious Pompeian baths.

Another Bargain

Last weekend's presentation of the Thief River Falls recreational skating association's "Fantasy on Ice" has to rank with the Northland college and Lincoln high school musicals as a real community entertainment bargain.

The array of talent displayed by Thief River Falls area youngsters was impressive — doubly so when one considers the age of the performers and the poise displayed as they skated in front of thousands of spectators in the two performances. They exhibited a confidence in their own abilities which can only be achieved through dedicated effort and countless hours of what must be tedious practice.

We heard a couple of spectators say that the show was worth the price of admission just to see Todd Phelps skate his Uncle Sam number. We agree. There aren't many nine-year-olds in any part of the country who can match his showmanship on ice.

And there aren't many nine-year-olds in this community who turn out of the sack for 5:30 a.m. practice time three or four times a week. Nor are there many who will skate six hours a day for eight weeks in Colorado this summer as Todd will do.

Another highlight of the show was the pairs performance by Bob Nelson and Joyce Phelps. Bob, a 15-year-old sophomore, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Nelson. Joyce, Todd's sister, is an eighth grader who just turned 14 and is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Phelps. Bob and Joyce practice every morning at 5:30 a.m., as individuals and in developing the pairs routine.

We point out these performances and the dedication of the performers to illustrate that the skating show was an exhibit of a number of extraordinary young people. What the spectators saw was not only imaginative and colorful costuming and pageantry but the culmination of unusual effort.

Recognition should go to Bob Ekeren for the effective work done on music for the show and to Linda Worth and others who worked on choreography. Whenever individuals are pointed out there is the danger of overlooking others whose contributions may have been similarly significant. We mention Ekeren because his efforts were behind the scenes but vitally important and Mrs. Worth because her absence in future years because of moving to another community will be assuredly felt here.

Perhaps the attitude projected by the skaters taking part in the show was stated most eloquently by Todd Phelps before he skated out for his number Saturday night. His mom had just finished straightening his tie and wishing him well when he said, "I just want to make lots of people happy."

You certainly did, Todd, you certainly did.

Caught In The Middle

Newspapers and other members of the media have maintained for some time the necessity to be able to protect the identity of their news sources and the material received from them. Another angle in the confidentiality of news-related material is discussed in this editorial from "The Quill", published by Sigma Delta Chi, the society of professional journalists:

Serve up another subpoena, judge. This one should go to a John Lopinot. Tell him to turn over all 274 of the photographs he has of the open-heart surgery he witnessed three years ago.

You'll forgive John Lopinot and his editor if they felt just a bit disturbed by Judge Kapner's order to comply with this subpoena.

In 1976, Lopinot, chief photographer of the Palm Beach (Fla.) Post, was on assignment at a local hospital to shoot pictures of an open-heart operation. According to Thomas Kelly, editor of the Post, Lopinot was in the operating room at the consent of everyone involved — the patient, the doctors, the hospital. All had agreed in advance to cooperate in a feature story on the hospital's new open-heart unit.

Since the operation was not successful, Kelly decided to drop his plans for a news feature. The story was never written. The photographs were never published.

"They have remained in a file drawer all these months like a ticking time bomb," Kelly explained to his readers. "It is extremely doubtful that these photographs will show anything that will prove or disprove the case of either party to this action. But the judge, instead of requiring the plaintiff to show the relevance of the subpoenaed material to his case, instead has put the burden on the newspaper to show that the phtotgraphs are not relevant."

As Kelly sees it, the judge had forced the Post, a nuetral observer, into the position of taking sides in a legal contest. As Kelly sees it, stories of this nature will be harder to do from now on. "Which doctor or hospital will be daring enough to allow newspaper, television or movie cameramen into operating rooms in the future if there is a chance that the photographs may explode in their faces years later in a lawsuit? The ultimate loser, of course, will be the people and their right to know about surgical progress."

Kelly said his paper did all it could to try to convince the judge to deny the subpoena, but to no avail. Kelly said that after considerable anguish and deliberation, the Post concluded that this case was not the one on which to make the supreme legal effort.

As it turned out, the plaintiff decided she needed only a dozen photos. The paper sold them to her at its regular rates, and the case was settled out of court.

But none of that made Judge Kapner's order any less serious to the Palm Beach Post. Kelly feels Lopinot and the paper still lost.

About 3M Profits

Following editorial appeared recently in the "Megaphone", a monthly publication for employees of the 3M company in St. Paul:

"Embarrassing," said one government economist.

"A catastrophe for the anti-inflation program," said the administration's chief inflation fighter.

"Unnecessarily high," sighed a chief White House aide.

All were referring to recent news that U.S. corporate profits "surged" — or "leaped," depending on the headline writer — by 26 per cent in 1978.

The "catastrophe" comment, the "embarrassing" judgement and the news of 26 per cent profit gains for U.S. companies generally were all on the front pages just when employees and stockholders were receiving a new annual report about 3M's 36 per cent earnings increase last year.

Should we blush? And beat our breasts in shame over 3M's profit performance?

Quite simply: NO!

Better that we keep the political rhetoric about profits in perspective and maintain our pride in the hard work that produced 3M's 1976-77-78 results. Improved efficiency and cost control remain the better way to fight inflation, to curb unemployment and to correct the U.S. trade imbalance. In business this means higher profit. In government, it would mean a balanced budget.

Total reported profits may be up, as one business weekly says, but "the average U.S. manufacturing company earned just 5.4 cents per $1 of sales in 1978, compared with the 6.6 cents in the mid-1960s. The average company managed to eke out a scant 5.5 per cent return on its assets last year against 7.6 per cent a decade ago."

Percentages are tricky, of course. If your own earnings dropped from $10,000 to $5,000, that would be a 50 per cent decline. Suppose that later your earnings increased by 50 per cent. Would you be back up to $10,000? No chance. Your 50 per cent increase above $5,000 would bring you up to $7,500 — still far from your previous earnings rate.

Something like that has happened to most U.S. companies. The 26 per cent profit gains in 1978 brought them only another step closer to earlier profit levels of the kind needed to modernize and to compete in world markets.

That 3M did better than average and operated with its normal profit margins is nothing to apologize about.

We did it largely through productivity gains and not through price hikes. And the resulting profits are being put to good use in the fight against inflation, through continuing investment in people, processes, machines and better places to work.

When government spokesmen blow smoke about business not assuming its full responsibility to fight inflation, while continuing to ignore government's own inability to live within its income, then we have a real catastrophe of truly "embarrassing" proportions.

The best advice we can offer is: Don't apologize. Don't blush. Don't beat your breasts in shame about 3M profits. And finally, DO your best to do it again in 1979. . .both for your own sake, and as a loyal inflation-fighter.

Borrowed Nonsense:

Easing into traffic at an intersection, the armored truck found itself in the middle of a funeral procession. Several blocks down the street an onlooker noticed the truck and remarked, "Well, what do you know? Maybe you CAN take it with you!"

They're riding the rails to laughter — Tim Conway as a hobo out to inherit a fortune, and Bo, his trusty canine keeper in "The Billion Dollar Hobo," opening Wed., Apr. 4 at the Galaxy Twin Theatre.

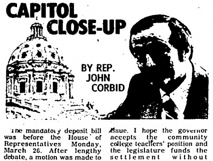
"IN BUSINESS OVER 60 YEARS"



CAPITOL CLOSE-UP

BY REP. JOHN CORBID

The mandatory deposit bill was before the House of Representatives Monday, March 26. After lengthy debate, a motion was made to send the bill to the labor committee for further study. This was in effect a motion to kill the bill. The motion prevailed 79-53. I voted against the motion and was prepared to vote for the bill.

It is understandable that some retailers and distributors would be opposed to this legislation, but some day this bill will pass because our society can not continue to manufacture containers for one time use. We are no longer the "rich man" of the world who can afford a squander limited resources in the name of convenience.

People often criticize politicians for not providing leadership in facing the energy crisis. But the mandatory deposit bill met opposition from organized labor and by business interests because it could inconvenience them. There are no painless energy solutions. It is my belief that the vast majority of Minnesotans want an end to roadside litter and the waste of resources. I am sorry the House of Representatives will not face the issue.

Our local community college teachers are on strike as I write this column. The decision to refuse to go to arbitration was a mistake on the part of the state negotiator (who represents the executive branch). The ultimate responsibility therefore lies with Governor Quie. He alone at this stage can make a decision to move the negotiating process.

The governor can, by instructions to the state negotiator, offer the teachers an acceptable contract or go to binding arbitration. Either of these two positions is preferrable to the present stalemate. Many students and parents have written and called me concerning this issue. I hope the governor accepts the community college teachers' position and the legislature funds the settlement without modification.

A very touchy subject was before the House when we debated the trespass bill. Farm groups complained during the past year that the department of natural resources misinterpreted the law and considered agricultural lands as only those bearing crops. The 1979 bill as we passed it has responded to the farmers by providing a definition of agricultural lands that includes not only thost bearing crops, but those that have been used for crop growing in the past year, and lands containing a maintained fence, regardless of whether or not there is livestock in sight.

I believe the majority of visitors afield will find little change in their ability to hunt and fish on private land. The major difference I see is that final say on usage of farm land for recreational purposes will rest with the land owner. If a dispute arises, it will be clear the landowner has the right to prevent unwanted use of his land.

If you have any questions or comments, if I can be of service to you I can be reached at 612-296-4329, or write to me at 261 State Office Building, St. Paul, MN 55155.

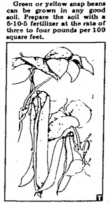
YOUR GARDEN

Knowing Beans

Beans are not only good for you when you eat them; they're good for your garden when you grow them. Beans absorb useful nitrogen from the atmosphere and add it to the soil.

Green or yellow snap beans can be grown in any good soil. Prepare the soil with a 5-10-5 fertilizer at the rate of three to four pounds per 100 square feet.



A GOOD CROP OF GREEN BEANS can make your neighbors green with envy at your gardening abilities.

Plant in spring when the soil is warm and dry. Space your rows approximately three feet apart with furrows one inch deep. Plant a seed every two to three inches. Never cover the seeds with more than an inch of soil.

According to a new gardening authority, the Reader's Digest Illustrated Guide to Gardening, cultivating bush beans can be a snap. When they're six inches tall, sprinkle a 5-10-5 fertilizer in a band on either side. Keep the soil well moistened but never water from above. Mulch to conserve moisture and keep down weeds.

Pick the beans while they still snap when you bend them and before the seeds swell visibly.

With a little care, your family can be full of beans all season.

Tax Dollars Wasted by Inefficient Bureaucrats

The fact that billions of tax dollars are wasted each year is no secret, but as the years go on, more missing pieces of our economic puzzle are revealed.

The General Accounting Office has issued a report entitled "More Effective Action is Needed On Auditors' Findings — Millions Can Be Collected Or Saved." This report reveals that departments and agencies have a backlog of over $4.3 billion in unresolved audit findings, and that their failure to take appropriate action on these audit findings is costing the government, and the taxpayers, hundreds of millions of dollars each year. The House Government operations Committee's Legislation and National Security Subcommittee, of which I am a member, has been holding hearings to examine this report. I have studied the facts thoroughly, and I am appalled at the extensive bureaucratic abuses that have been uncovered.

The Federal Government appropriates funds to carry out its programs, and the audit is the basic tool of government to prevent unauthorized expenditures by contractors and grantees. The problem, however, is that departments and agencies are not following through with the necessary audits to establish the proper use of government funds. The General Accounting Office estimates 80 per cent, or $3.4 billion, of unathorized funds could potentially be recovered from contractors and grantees if an effort were made. In many cases, audit findings are not made for years after the audit report is issued, and in more than half of the cases investigated, no collections were attempted.

Policy, as directed by the Office of Management and Budget, calls for prompt action on audit findings, but the GAO reports that the oppostie is often what actually takes place. Department and agency administrators play a major role in the collection of funds used without authorization, and their lack of interest in following up these audits is irresponsible, and extremely costly. The report also found that agency officials often resolved valid findings in the contractors of grantees favor without adequate explanation, thus allowing them to keep a high percentage of the amount the auditors reported as questionable.

The lack of a sound audit system is costing the Federal Government millions of dollars every year, most of which is going into the pockets of contractors and grantees. To make this system more effective, we must have greater control over the action that is taken on audit findings. My concern over this bureaucratic boondoggle is immense, and I have strongly urged, as a member of the Government Operations Committee, that Congress accept, and develop procedures for implementing the General Accounting Office's proposals to eliminate this needless and costly waste.

The GAO suggests that program administrators be given 6 months to reach decisions on what amount, if any, is due from contractors and grantees as required by audit findings. Written decisions signed by the program administrator should also be required to justify any actions not seeking collection of amounts due. If findings are not completed within the 6 month time frame, an official, independent of the administrator and auditor, should become responsible for deciding if recoveries are possible. These suggestions will add safeguards to the system, and prevent inefficient administrators from allowing discrepancies to pass over their desks without taking needed action.

Without new safeguards for the auditing system, the abuse of taxpayer dollars will continue, and the government will continue to waste billions of dollars each year. The administrators in the governmental departments and agencies must be held accountable for their actions, and this proposal is designed to help guarantee that accountability.

Bake A New Twist On . . .

An Ancient Easter Tradition

This giant hot cross bun is made quickly and deliciously with hot roll mix and plenty of chewy, tangy raisins.

Hot cross buns have been a part of the Easter season for centuries. The tradition of baking hot cross buns on Good Friday dates from the Middle Ages. Even earlier, records show that sweet buns decorated with an icing cross were part of Greek and Roman religious celebrations. Greek and Roman bakers used dried fruits like raisins as one of the chief ingredients in these special breads.

Today, raisins are still an important ingredient in favorite breads and other baked goods. They have just the right amount of tangy sweetness to give any special bread, cake or dessert a truly unique flavor. And, the raisin industry reports there should be an adequate supply of raisins for the Easter season.

This Easter, treat your family to the newest twist on this ancient tradition, the Giant Hot Cross Bun. Plenty of sweet raisins and a touch of lemon make this giant bun just as tender and moist as its miniature counterparts.

GIANT HOT CROSS BUN

- 1 package (13¾ ounces) hot roll mix (calling for 1 egg)
- ½ cup sugar
- 2 tablespoons soft butter or margarine
- 1 tablespoon grated lemon peel
- ¼ cup flour
- 1 cup raisins
- Egg glaze
- Icing (recipe follows)

Prepare hot roll mix as package directs, except add sugar, butter and grated lemon peel with the egg. Knead dough on floured board, using about ¼ cup flour, until smooth and elastic (about 5 minutes). Cover and let rise in warm place about 1½ hours, or until double in bulk. Punch down. Knead in raisins, cover and let rest 15 minutes. Shape into a ball about 6 inches in diameter. Place in greased 9-inch cake pan. Let rise in warm place until almost double. With sharp knife, slash a cross in the top. Brush with egg glaze (egg yolk beaten with 1 teaspoon milk). Bake in 375 degree oven 30 to 35 minutes. Cool. Drizzle icing on top to make a cross. Makes 8 servings.

Icing: Beat smooth 1 cup powdered sugar, sifted, and 2 tablespoons milk.

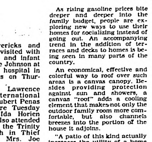
Tax Forgiveness Being Considered . . .

Add Living Space With Canvas



A canvas awning installed over the patio adds a warm weather living room to this home, greatly increasing its utility and attractiveness. More effective than other materials, canvas can even be used for side panels against wind and rain. So efficient are canvas awnings in reducing fuel consumption in air conditioning, Congress is considering legislation to provide tax forgiveness for their installation.

As rising gasoline prices bite deeper and deeper into the family budget, people are exploring new ways to use their homes for socializing instead of going out. An accompanying trend in the addition of terraces and decks to homes is being seen in many parts of the country.

An economical, effective and colorful way to roof over such areas is a canvas canopy. Besides providing protection against sun and showers, a canvas "roof" adds a cooling element that makes not only the outdoor family room more comfortable, but also channels breezes into the portion of the house it adjoins.

"A patio of this kind actually increases the utility of a home by adding a mild weather living room," says Cecil Gant, Jr., president of the American Canvas Institute which represents the manufacturers of awning fabric and hardware, "and with the versatility of canvas, there is an almost limitless variety of styles to choose from."

Gant adds that in addition to the traditional cotton canvas duck, there are three other fabric varieties consisting of painted, vinyl-coated and synthetic fiber combinations, all highly fade resistant. They offer a range of features to suit every taste and pocketbook.

In addition to the flexibility of canvas in such applications, this fabric, used widely by earlier generations, is coming into its own once again in the present need to conserve energy. Tests compiled by the National Bureau of Standards of the U.S. Department of Commerce have proven conclusively that canvas awnings over windows and doors can reduce the sun's heat by 75% and cut air conditioning installation and operating costs by as much as 25%. They also reduce fading in furniture and rugs.

"We've seen cases where people have found canvas awnings to be so effective in residential cooling they have even decided not to air condition at all," says Gant, adding that legislation is now being considered by Congress which would provide tax forgiveness to purchasers of awnings similar to that now extended to those who install insulation.

"Canvas awnings in the traditional stripes and solids or the newer floral and print designs offer a touch of color and beauty that's hard to beat," Gant continued. "They're even available with a design on the underside which may be carried out in furniture and cushions."

As mild weather approaches, canvas awning manufacturers and dealers are preparing to meet an increase in the seasonal demand for their products. They are eager to discuss homeowner's needs for awnings for patios, doors or windows and can either adapt a standard design or create a custom fabrication for any home.

Additional information on canvas awnings may be obtained by writing the American Canvas Institute, 10 Beech St., Berea, Ohio 44017.

Colby Thorssen spent a few days with his grandmother, Mrs. Esther Thorssen while Chad and Patrick stayed with their other grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Gunning at Clearbrook.

Mr. and Mrs. Irvin Thoresbn left their home in Gully Dec. 9 and returned home on Monday, March 26 after having spent the winter months in the south on our way down to Texas. Irvin hunted pheasants in southern Kansas for about a month and then we drove to Falfurrias, Tex. where we spent most of our time. While there we visited the L.B.J. Ranch at Johnson City, Padre Island at Corpis Christi and Kings Ranch at Kingsville.

We also saw the fruit orchards some of which weren't so pretty as usual because of the unusual hard frost. In January we went on a 2 day tour to Monteray, Mex. and visited many points of interest, such as the Bacillica, Bishops Palace, Glass Factory and Leather factory. Since Pope John II was to appear in Montary the following day the traffic was very heavy. We didn't get to see the Pope, but we saw many who had walked a long way — and young people sleeping in chairs, at the hotel where we stayed. They were all going to see the Pope and receive a blessing from him that early morning.

In February Geraldine took a but to LaHobra, Calif. for a few days and visited our daughter Judy and family, the Jerry Haugens. On Sunday we went to Robert Schuller's church at Garden Grove. We spent some time sightseeing and one day at Universal studios which was very interesting.

During our stay in Texas we visited several churches and met many lovely people there who helped make our stay in Texas most pleasant. With their warm welcome, kindness and good Christian fellowship we could sense the true spirit and love of Christ among them. On many occasions they invited us into their homes for fellowship and feasting. I was reminded of Matthew 25:35 which reads, "I was a stranger and you took me in," for truly we were strangers there, but they took us in and were so kind.

When we left Falfurrias, Tex., spring had sprung, with most of the trees leafing out, nice green grass and countless wild flowers of Indian paint brush, Bluebonnets, Wineglass and many others in bloom. The Red bud trees, all deep pink and growing wild were in bloom also. It was very pretty. It was a great experience and we enjoyed the winter and now its nice to be home again among our neighbors, friends, family and all of natures beauty in Northern Minnesota.

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Rutkowski and Peter of Minnetonka spent Saturday to Sunday at the Peter Rutkowski home.

Mrs. Ray Odegaard and Mr. and Mrs. Albert Brivold visited Saturday afternoon at the Ted Nyland home.

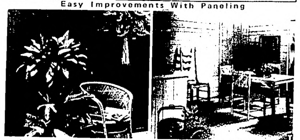
INGENUITY IN HOME DECOR

HELPFUL TIPS ON LOW-COST DECORATING IDEAS

Easy Improvements With Paneling



A LITTLE IMAGINATION AND A BEAUTIFUL PANELING can help you make the most of your home's "left-over" space.

It doesn't have to take a lot of time, money or even talent to make a great change in the way your home looks.

Many simple remodeling projects don't cost a great deal and can improve a room's decor or make a space more functional. These ideas are well within the abilities of even the least experienced homeowner.

A corner of a study-den, for example, can be turned into a cozy reading retreat with nothing more than a handsome wood paneling and a few well-chosen accessories. Use an attractive but reasonably priced paneling, like Gatehouse Cinnamon by Georgia-Pacific, add a rattan chair, a recessed light fixture, and some plants, and you've created an inviting setting with minimum cost and time.

Another mini-project can brighten an otherwise dull dining room. A pale pastel-toned paneling is applied horizontally, with one section used vertically to create a geometric pattern. Accent the "basketweave" look with grasscloth carpet and rush-seated chairs. It's inexpensive, easy and delightfully different.

In older homes where walls are sometimes beyond economical repair, paneling is an easy and economical solution to your decorating problems. If you plan to install paneling, be sure to follow the manufacturer's directions, or get a good do-it-yourself project manual. You can order the illustrated booklet, "How To Make Beautiful Things Happen With Walls," for 25¢ from "Beautiful Walls," Dept. NAPS, Georgia-Pacific Corp., 900 S. W. Fifth Avenue, Portland, Oregon 97204.

It can help you use a minimum amount of material, tools and skill to make exciting improvements in your home.

Household Hints

By Samantha of Lestoil Homemakers Service

Double duty! Salt isn't just seasoning; it smothers grease fires in your broiler. And did you know a splash of vinegar in rinse water makes hand-washed glasses sparkle? But for real versatility, you need Lestoil! This heavy-duty cleaner does household chores, and makes light work of laundry, too.

Out of copper polish? Use toothpaste. Out of stain remover? Pour on the Lestoil! Let stand 10 minutes (colorfast fabrics only), then launder. Oil, tar, grease stains, grime lines on collars and cuffs are no match for Lestoil's grease-dissolvers. And to brighten any wash, add a half cup of Lestoil with detergent.

Use your heavy-duty cleaner full-strength on barbecue grill, range hood, exhaust fan, bathtub ring, stubborn marks on floors (not asphalt tile) and painted walls. Pour a quarter cup in a bucket of water to quick-clean cabinets, sinks, ceramic tile, walls (except plastic tile). Versatility is—Lestoil!

Fashion FORECASTS

WHAT TO EXPECT

FORM-FITTING FASHIONS

Shapely figures are back in style as after-Easter fashions offer a sexy, body-defining look, noticeably different from the past several years.

The baggy, casually disheveled costumes of recent years are virtually absent from spring designer collections, according to fashion experts at PPG Industries, a major manufacturer of drycleaning solvents.

The body is well defined in new offerings with a particular emphasis on waists, hips, bosoms and legs. Skirts are tighter and shorter or slit for maximum leg exposure. Belts, darts and wraps are everywhere and even the cummerbund is returning to the fashion scene.

Seasonal fabrics range from clingy silks and crepe de chine to soft chiffons and suedes which all require careful maintenance, best provided by professional drycleaning, according to experts at PPG.

The new season also features a clean and crisp look with a variety of piques, gabardines and shiny cottons adding a polished air to women's wear. The classic, straight-skirt suit is back.

Again, PPG recommends letting the drycleaner handle these 'hard' fabrics. He'll return them to you looking crisp and new to carry through several seasons, PPG advises. With minor accessory changes, classic outfits—which are making a strong impact this spring—will be stylish for years if given good professional care.

In addition to shape, color is news this spring. The mauves and muted shades recently prevalent are giving way to solid, primary colors. Electric blues, chrome yellows, hot reds, oranges and pinks appear in most designer collections, PPG pointed out. Tiny prints are scarce this spring, but dots, stripes and bold, contrasting color combinations are everywhere.

Until It's Time To Enjoy The Outdoor Barbecue, Why Not Prepare Zesty Spareribs—Indoors?

You say your barbecue grill doesn't do well until the grass turns green? And the tantalizing flavor of barbecued ribs is only a memory? Then why not get an early taste of summer feasting with an indoor barbecue? You can serve it, complete with zesty ribs and, for dessert, sweet peaches with the tang of orange peel and blossoms.

Fortunately, pork spare ribs or back ribs, probably the all-time barbecue favorites, are available year-round and, frequently, are bargain-priced. Better yet, they're as tasty when baked in the oven as they are straight from the coals. The baked-in flavor of these ribs improves under the glaze made with Chateaux Apricot Liqueur, from the James B. Beam Distilling Co.

What better accompaniment to these hearty ribs than the summery sweetness of peaches? Here we add just a touch of Chateaux's Triple Sec Liqueur, for elegance and a fresh taste of orange to match the scoop of orange sherbet that tops the peach.

Cordials, or liqueurs, are liquors that range from slightly to very sweet. Taking their flavor from fruit, herbs, seeds or peels, cordials can add a subtle but interesting taste twist to virtually any tried and true recipe.

BAKED RIBS WITH APRICOT GLAZE

1½ lb. meaty back ribs
¼ cup Chateaux Apricot Liqueur
¼ cup brown sugar
1 tsp. French-type mustard
1 tbsp. apricot preserves
(Serves two.)

Sprinkle ribs lightly with salt and pepper and place in shallow baking pan, cover with foil and roast in moderate oven (350°) for about an hour. Combine other ingredients and brush generously over ribs. Uncover the pan and continue to cook for another half hour, basting frequently, until ribs are brown and crisp.

Liqueurs can add a flavor zip even to basic recipes. Oven barbecued ribs and peach halves become something elegant with just a touch of liqueur—and are as easy to prepare as they are flavorful.

PARADISE PEACHES

4 peach halves, fresh or canned in heavy syrup
2 tbsp. butter
2 tbsp. sugar
¼ cup Chateaux Triple Sec Liqueur
(Serves two.)

Melt butter in frying pan on top of stove. Slowly stir in sugar until dissolved. Place peach halves in pan and baste with sugar and butter until heated through. Pour Triple Sec liqueur over the peaches, remove from the pan and serve immediately, topping with a scoop of orange sherbet.

Minn. Businesses Have Already Lost Competitive Edge

Although Minnesota's economy is "generally healthy," trouble may lie ahead for Minnesota businesses as a result of trends which have already cost the state its competitive edge.

These and other findings affecting Minnesota's largest companies as well as the state's 79,000 smaller businesses are contained in a study released recently by the Minnesota business partnership. The study pointed out that most new jobs created in the state result from small businesses, especially those located in smaller cities and towns in rural Minnesota.

Partnership chairman Judson Bemis said, "Minnesota competes with many other states for economic growth. If certain trends continue, we may find that other states will be getting new investment and jobs, as well as the increased tax revenues that result from economic growth which otherwise might have to come to Minnesota."

In closely examining the strengths and weaknesses of the Minnesota economy, the partnership, an association of about 50 chief executive officers of Minnesota-based companies, underscored the importance of small business to the state.

"Our members represent large businesses," said Bemis. "But we realize that most of us had to start out small before we could grow. We have all benefited from Minnesota's past economic policies which have nurtured a vigorous entrepreneurial spirit."

He added: "A healthy business environment is particularly important to localities outside the major metropolitan areas where economic growth depends largely on smaller businesses. In fact, they provide the bulk of the manufacturing trades and services jobs in Minnesota, and most new jobs result from small businesses started by technologically innovative entrepreneurs."

Bemis noted that the small business firm not only provides its services or products to customers within a local radius, but is a key supplier to the larger enterprises in the state. He said that 86.5 per cent of the state's businesses employ fewer than 19 people.

Bemis said that the study, "The Minnesota Economy: How does it compare," was undertaken to determine factually how Minnesota competes with 25 other states including Iowa, Wisconsin and the Dakotas, as well as other states in the Central Corridor, the Sunbelt, the Northeast and the West Coast.

Closely examined were such factors as cost of living, taxes workers compensation, government spending, environmental constraints and energy availability. According to the study, Minnesota businesses are at a particular competitive disadvantage regarding the corporate income and property taxes they must pay.

The state ranks highest among the 26 states surveyed in terms of annual corporate income and property taxes paid by smal businesses per $100 of investment.

The study also reveals that Minnesota ranks fourth highest in state and local individual taxes when measured as a percentage of personal income.

"If we continue to maintain a high level of personal taxation," said Bemis, "we will find it increasingly difficult to attract people, particularly technical people, into this low-unemployment state."

Other recommendations and findings of the partnership study:

+Workers compensation. The partnership favors maintaining current workers compensation benefit levels while reducing costs by tightening administrative controls.

Bemis said that the state's workers compensation costs fall most heavily on the small businessman, threatening his ability to meet competition from firms in neighboring states. "For example," he said, "the average annual cost per employee for workers compensation in Minnesota is $474. This is more than double similar costs in Wisconsin. It is three times higher than workers compensation premiums in South Dakota."

+Government spending. Minnesota ranks third in total state and local government spending per capita, and fourth when spending is measured as a percentage of personal income. A limit is urged on state government spending to keep it from rising faster than personal income.

+ Environmental regulation. Unlike most states, Minnesota has adopted standards that are more stringent than federal regulations. In order to avoid pricing Minnesota goods and services higher than other states it is recommended that the state adopt the federal standards, except where the need for more stringent regulations can be clearly demonstrated.

Also, the state is urged to streamline the process for reviewing environmental impact statements (EIS) for private projects. It was found that, of the eight states requiring EIS procedures, seven can issue a permit in an average of 10 months. The wait in Minnesota is likely to be at least 18 months, and frequently much longer.

+ Energy. Minnesota's congressional delegation is urged to work with the U.S. department of energy to retain the state's No. 1 priority on the available supply of Canadian crude oil. It is also recommended that the governor, legislature and appropriate state agencies secure the necessary approvals for additional pipeline capacity to Minnesota.

+Corporate income taxes. Reduce the corporate income tax rate from 12 to 10 per cent, with six per cent on the first $20,000 of income. "A reduction to 10 per cent in the corporate tax rate," said Bemis, "would still make Minnesota the fifth highest corporate tax state among the 26 states studied. That is no way to encourage the formation of new businesses and keep existing ones in Minnesota."

+ Personal income taxes. Eliminate the 16 and 17 per cent individual income tax rates, and reduce all personal income taxes 10 per cent across the board.

Bemis said: "Compared to other states, the Minnesota income tax burden particularly hurts those earning more than $15,000. Overall, of the 26 competing states, Minnesota ranks third highest in individual income taxes per person. To reduce the impact of inflation, the partnership also recommends that tax-bracket ceilings be raised periodically."

Bemis, William G. Phillips (International Multifoods) and N. Bud Grossman (Gelco Corp.), in separate meetings, briefed Minnesota House and Senate Leaders and Governor Quie and his staff on findings of the report.

Also, partnership members met with business groups at these locations: Duluth (Edward W. Asplin, Bemis Co.), St. Cloud (Jack J. Crocker, Super Valu), Rochester (Edson W. Spencer, Honeywell), Mankato (C. Angus Wurtele, Valspar Corp.) and Austin (John E. Pearson, Northwestern National Life).

WARM-UP TIME for high school musicians attending the band clinic in Thief River Falls Saturday included individual tuning and then checking in with the band director to be sure the pitch was right. St. Hilaire Co-Op Will Build Elevator At Hazel

Announcement that a new elevator will be built at Hazel was made when the annual meeting of the St. Hilaire Co-op Elevator association was held recently at the national guard armory in Thief River Falls. Approximately 450 people attended and cash dividend checks of $73,264 and sunflower oil premium checks of $48,550 were distributed.

Bob Miller, elevator manager, said bids had been accepted from Poly-Phos Grain Systems, Inc., of Crookston for construction of the new fast handling grain system at Hazel. Scheduled for completion August 15, the plant is expected to help alleviate congestion at the main facility in St. Hilaire.

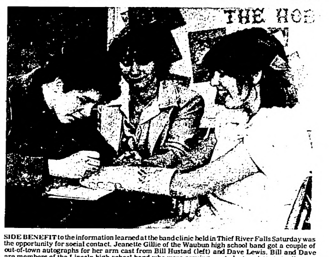
The Hazel facility will consist of three 43,000-bushel smooth wall tanks, one truck hopper bin, three truck loading chutes, four car loading chutes, a 70-foot, 60-ton scale, two 7,500-bushel grain legs, driveway and scale room. The system will be capable of loading four hopper cars and two semi-trailer trucks at one time.

Commenting on the past year in which the elevator handled a record eight million bushels of grain, sold a record 15,000 tons of fertilizer and 3,000 tons of feed, and showed a net profit of $415,000 on $22 million in sales, Miller thanked those in attendance at the meeting for their patronage. He said the elevator had been the largest shipper of grain to GTA in Minnesota and second largest in the nation.

Miller said the rail car shortage has cut back the marketing of malting barley to a large extent, having a detrimental effect on the price and profit margins of other grains. While purchase of the Plummer elevator last year helped to move many bushels of malting barley out of that area, he said, the new plant at Hazel is being built to take advantage of additional cars on the Soo Line.

Board president Glen Haugen presided at the meeting and secretary Ron Anderson read the proof of notice and minutes of the last annual meeting. Clarence Ellis, regional field representative for GTA, reviewed the elevator's financial statement. Anderson and Arlo Scholin were reelected to the board of directors, amendments to the by-laws were approved and James Gaven was presented with a gold watch for his 27 years of service to the elevator. Gaven will be retiring May 1.

Ben Bjerken, manager of the ag services division, reported on sales of feed, fertilizer, seeds and chemicals, all of which were up substantially from the previous year. He also said steps are being taken to reduce the accounts receivable which are considered to be too high.



SIDE BENEFIT to the information learned at the band clinic held in Thief River Falls Saturday was the opportunity for social contact. Jeanette Gillie of the Waubun high school band got a couple of out-of-town autographs for her arm cast from Bill Hustad (left) and Dave Lewis. Bill and Dave are members of the Lincoln high school band who were serving as student assistants to director Doug Engstrom in conducting the clinic. Bands attending were from Waubun, Hendrum, Gary and Stephen. Engstrom said success of the clinic was encouraging and plans are to conduct another clinic next year.

Strike Ends; NCC Classes Underway

Spring quarter classes at Northland community college, delayed since March 20 by a strike of members of the Minnesota community college faculty association, were resumed today. The delay in classes will result in graduation exercises being held on June 15 instead of June 1 as originally planned.

Because of the interruption due to the state-wide strike, new students may register for classes until April 19 without a late fee being charged, according to Dr. Alex Easton, college president.

Effect of the strike on spring quarter enrollment will likely not be known for several days, according to Dennis Bendickson, recorder at Northland. Winter quarter enrollment had dropped off considerably as of the first day of spring quarter classes on March 19, but it was not known if the anticipated strike had an effect on the first day enrollment. Only one day of classes was held before the strike began.

President Easton said that only a few who had registered and paid their fees prior to the start of the quarter had requested refunds during the strike. Bendickson said it appeared that most of those who had paid their fees would be returning to classes now that the strike has been settled.

Setting graduation on June 15 would result in the spring quarter providing 50 days of classes rather than the 53 days originally scheduled. A previously scheduled in-service day will be used as an instructional day to help in the catch-up schedule.

Dr. Easton said the opportunity has always existed for students to make arrangements with their instructors if they must leave school before the end of a regular quarter. A number of Northland students have jobs or summer school sessions scheduled to begin in advance of the June 15 graduation date.

Affect of reduced enrollment will be felt in future budget for the college since budgets are set on the basis of previous year's enrollment, the college president added. Northland had been experiencing record enrollments prior to the March 20 work stoppage.

Members of the faculty association voted Saturday to ratify an agreement reached Thursday between the association negotiating team and the state of Minnesota. The agreement called for the system's 1,100 teachers to receive average salary increases of around 13.2 per cent over the next two years and recoup about three per cent of an arbitrated settlement in 1977 that was reduced by the state legislature.

Gov. Al Quie announced the tentative agreement. Chancellor Philip Helland of the state community college board had said earlier that spring quarter classes may have to be cancelled if there was no settlement by the weekend.

College faculty members could recover an additional amount if a suit they have pending in the Minnesota supreme court is upheld. A district court has ruled that the legislature did not have the right to modify the 1977 arbitration award.

Picketing at Northland was discontinued following announcement of the tentative agreement on Thursday.

Thief River Falls
POP. 8979

"IF THIS IS SPRING, what can we expect from summer?" is the question being asked by northwestern Minnesota residents. This was the scene on the north edge of Thief River Falls Thursday when northwest winds whipped loose snow into a mini-blizzard in some places. Additional snowfall on Saturday and strong southeasterly winds made highway travel difficult throughout the area as the east and south lanes of highways became heavy with snow. Forecast calls for high temperatures into the 30's today and 40's tomorrow — not exactly a heat wave but certainly better than what has been experienced until now. Warm weather has been so long in coming that this season is being referred to as the "winter of 1978, 1979 and 1980."

Council on the economic status of women has one vacancy. The council studies, reports, and makes recommendations on the economic status of women. Meetings are held once a month for approximately four hours in various locations, but most often in St. Paul. Public members receive $35 per diem plus expenses and are appointed by the governor.

Higher education facilities authority has one vacancy. Applicants must be an expert in financing. Members assist institutions of higher education in the construction, financing and refinancing of projects. Meetings are held on the fourth Tuesday of every month at 3 p.m. at the Metro Square Building in St. Paul. Members are reimbursed for travel expenses and receive per diem of $35. Governor is the appointing authority.

Bell Requests Permission For Rate Increase

Northwestern Bell has asked the Minnesota public service commission (PSC) for permission to increase some of its local telephone rates, according to Al Bacon, manager of the Northwestern Bell office in Thief River Falls.

Proposed 5.5 per cent increase in annual revenue would generate $28.4 million.

Company officials said the new rate request is brought on in part by the November turndown of the company's last rate request and the continuing erosion of earnings by inflation.

The increases would not apply to services which are now priced to cover their cost.

For example, no increases are proposed for long distance service or service items such as extension, Princess and Trimline phones or Touch-Tone. A number of business service items such as certain key systems, switchboards and data sets also are not affected.

In addition, no increase is proposed in coin telephone service. The increase will be placed into effect July 7, subject to refund, under the plan.

The company plans to spend $240 million in Minnesota during 1979 for new construction, $24 million more than the 1978 program. Two-thirds of the construction program dollars will go to meet the service needs of new customers, the growing and changing needs of existing customers and replacement of older facilities. The remainder is for modernization.

Moum, Boyer Student Teach In TR Falls

Two Thief River Falls students are student teaching during spring quarter, according to Dr. James Tillman, director of Bemidji state university student teaching. Jessie D. Boyer is at Mark Twain elementary, and Jay K. Moum is at Lincoln high school.

Student teaching is required of all students seeking the bachelor of science degree in education and Minnesota certification for teaching. Students placed in area schools by BSU are supervised by a teacher from that school district, as well as a supervisor from the division of education at Bemidji state.

While serving in the school systems, student teachers observe daily classroom techniques and routines, serve on occasion as the teacher of the class, and assist their supervising teacher in preparation and presentation of class materials.

The student teaching experience is usually the culmination of a students preparation for the teaching profession and is viewed by many students as the most valuable requirement of their teacher education.

Set Rehearsal For Community Band Tonight

Rehearsal for the Northland college community band will be held tonight at 7 p.m., according to Les Torgerson, director. A meeting will be held at the start of rehearsal to plan band activities for the spring quarter.

Torgerson said that a trip to Duluth for a spring tour is still being considered. With the extension of the school year to June 15 as a result of the spring quarter delay due to the faculty strike, an early summer tour could be a possibility, he said.

Several instruments are available for rental from the college and band participation is offered for credit or non-credit.

MN. Farm Loan Program Goes To Committee

Two U.S. Senate committees considering comparable federal legislation were scheduled to hear testimony recently in Washington, D.C. from state officials administering Minnesota's national model farm security loan program.

Deputy agriculture commissioner Rollin M. Dennistoun testified before the committee on agriculture, nutrition and forestry, and the Senate select committee on small business on Minnesota's state guaranteed "equal opportunity" farm loan program.

In addition to reporting on Minnesota's experience with the farm security program now in its third year, deputy commissioner Dennistoun offered constructive comment on the pending federal legislation, Senate File 582, that is being considered by the two committees.

Minnesota's farm security program thus far has helped establish 115 new farm owners by placing the state's guaranty on 90 per cent of the unpaid balance on loans totaling nearly $17.4 million.

Purpose of the testimony by the Minnesota officials at the request of U.S. Senator Rudy Boschwitz, a member of the committees, was to share this state's actual experience both administratively and in legislative refinements that nearly three years of experience indicated would improve the program.

Deputy commissioner Rollin Dennistoun stressed in his testimony that the federal legislation should be as free as possible of restrictions, requirements and federal pressures upon the respective states that under the proposal will actually implement the new national farm loan program.

Quie Asks Cutback Of 10% In Gas Use

Saying Minnesota's agriculture and tourism industries are threatened by a potential gasoline shortage, Governor Al Quie recently outlined a voluntary conservation program aimed at cutting consumption by 10 per cent. Minnesota energy agency (MEA) is projecting a 10 per cent gasoline shortage over the spring and summer months. There are already voluntary Sunday closings of service stations, and the energy agency is getting more calls for emergency fuels than during the winter of 1977 when an energy emergency was declared.

In addition, Minnesota's primary petroleum suppliers say they are having difficulty obtaining additional supplies and the supplies they are getting are costing more.

This is a reflection of what seems to be a nationwide shortage. National gasoline inventories are already 22 per cent below last year, domestic crude oil production is declining, President Carter has agreed to cut back imports by 1 million barrels a day, and consumer demand for gasoline is expected to increase 3.5 per cent this year.

At a press conference with representatives of the state's major energy suppliers, Quie said "Without preventive action now, the situation could deteriorate rapidly."

However, he added that farmers do not have to suffer any interruption in their fuel supplies and vacations do not have to be sacrificed. "The fact is that Minnesotans waste 10 per cent or more of the gasoline they use every day."

The Governor's voluntary conservation program calls for state, business and consumer action. He asked all Minnesotans to: Observe the 55 mile-per-hour speed limit; carpool, ride the bus, bike or walk to work; keep cars well-tuned; practice energy-efficient driving habits; and plan errands to minimize use of automobiles.

Quie also called on businesses to make a commitment to organize carpools for their employees, to cut back on travel, using the phone whenever possible, and to corrdinate interoffice travel.

The governor asked all state agencies to: Reduce travel by 10 per cent and report their actions to the department of administration; assist employees in developing car pools; offer every employee training in energy-efficient driving techniques; keep all state cars well-tuned; and buy only the most energy efficient products.

Quie said there will be strict enforcement of the 55 mph speed limit. In addition, the department of transportation (DOT) will assist other agencies in setting up car pools through their computerized car matching system. DOT will also help private employers set up car pools; provide information on bus routes, train routes, park and ride routes, and bike paths; and expand energy-saving programs such as van pooling, special buses, and preferential parking for carpools. The department will also monitor traffic and report the state's progress in meeting the 10 per cent goal.

The department of education and administration will provide materials to train people in energy-efficient driving habits. The department of administration will buy more vans for vanpooling and ensure that state agencies buy only energy-efficient products.

MEA will cordinate conservation efforts, distribute emergency fuel, and monitor and report energy savings. They will also institute a public information program to ensure that Minnesotan's are well-informed on methods of gasoline conservation.

Quie said all of these measures can easily reduce gasoline consumption by ten per cent. "If all of our 2½ million drivers save about 1¾ gallons of gasoline a week, it will make the difference in balancing supply and demand."

He said that observing the speed limit alone can reduce our gasoline use by two per cent, and that if only half of our commuters carpool one day a week, it will cut another two per cent of the state's gasoline consumption. If all the measures called for are followed, we will reach our 10 per cent reduction goal. "These measures have worked before and they can work again."

"In the wake of the 1973 Arab oil embargo, Minnesotans cut their gasoline use by about 1 hundred million gallons a year. But we forget, and gasoline demand has crept up again. Today Minnesota has more drivers, more automobiles, and more cars with only one passenger on the road than ever fefore."

But, Quie said, if we are to avoid mandatory conservation controls or disruption of our agriculture and tourist industries, we must begin to conserve voluntarily.

Paulette Price To Play At Chester Fritz

Paulette Price, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ken Price of Stephen, will appear with Claudette Caron as guest artists with the Greater Grand Forks Symphony orchestra April 22 in the Chester Fritz auditorium. The duo pianists will perform Poulenc's "Double Piano Concerto" and Brahm's "Symphony Number Four" in the 4 p.m. concert.

The team of Caron and Price was formed in 1972 at the University of Manitoba under the guidance of Alma Brock-Smith. Price, the former Stephen resident, and Caron, who is originally from Winnipeg, now make their home in Ottawa, Ontario.

Price and Caron graduated from the performance program at the University of Manitoba in 1976 having already received critical recognition for their unity of style and sensitive musicianship. In July of 1976 they won first place for ensemble in the finals of the Canadian national music competition and that year also placed second in the first national piano ensemble competition in Pueblo, Colorado. The pair was chosen 1976 winners of the western Canadian young artist competition thereby touring Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta in a fall series performing both duo and duet programs. In Winnipeg they received awards from the University of Manitoba, the men's music club and the women's musical club.

The team has performed numerous recitals in Canada and the United States, has been broadcast on CBC radio, has appeared with the Winnipeg and Saskatoon symphony orchestras and recently returned from study with Phyllis Sellick of the Royal College of Music, in England. As finalists and major prize-winners in the Royal Overseas League 1978 music competition they performed at London's Queen Elizabeth Hall.

Admission to the Chester Fritz concert is $5 per family, $3 for adults and $1 for students and senior citizens.

Gustafson To Head Chamber In Crookston

Bob Gustafson, who worked as public relations director for the Thief River Falls chamber of commerce from April 1977 through July 1978, took over as executive secretary of the Crookston chamber April 2 when Harold Thomforde retired from that position.

Gustafson, a Thief River Falls native, earned a bachelor of science degree in social studies for secondary education from St. Cloud St. University and worked as office manager for the Arctco Distributors, Arctic Enterprises, Inc. of Thief River Falls prior to his employment at the local chamber. After leaving Thief River Falls in July of 1978 Bob served as executive vice president of the Morris chamber of commerce until assuming his new position in Crookston.

His activities in Crookston, Gustafson said, "will depend on what the chamber board wants. They will have to determine what the priorities of Crookston will be. The role of the chamber should be to represent the interests of the business and professional people of the community."

Accompanying Gustafson to Crookston were his wife Yvonne and their two children, Kim and Kirsten.

ALLAN ZAK and wife Naomi of Thief River Falls were honored recently at the Mututal of Omaha Companies' 10th annual chairman's council award ceremonies. Zak was presented the chairman's council medallion, symbol of the companies' most exclusive honor club for service representatives, by V. J. Skott, chairman and chief executive officer.

1978 Travel Inquiries Up 7 Per Cent

Tourist inquiries during 1978 at Minnesota's travel information centers increased by more than 7 per cent from the previous year. According to Stan Paulson, design services, Minnesota department of transportation (Mn-DOT).

The five centers — Albert Lea, Beaver Creek, Dresbach, Duluth and Moorhead — handled 195,864 travel inquiries, an increase of 13,234 from 1977. Paulson said this represents service to a total of about 875,000 individuals seeking travel information.

Centers also distributed about 673,000 brochures and maps.

Largest increase in travel inquiries, 13 per cent, was at the Duluth Thompson Hill center. Inquiries also were up at Beaver Creek (10 per cent), Albert Lea (nine per cent) and Mooreahd (six per cent), and down at Dresbach (minus three per cent).

Albert Lea center responded to the greatest number of inquiries overall — 52,058 — during 1978, followed by Duluth, 49,885; Dresbach, 34,930; Beaver Creek, 31,300; and Moorhead, 27,691.

Information centers and their locations are: Albert Lea — northbound land I-35, 1 mile north of Minnesota-Iowa line; Beaver Creek — eastbound land —90, 4.5 miles west of Beaver Creek; Dresbach — westbound land I-90, 2.5 miles north of LaCrescent; Thompson Hill — junction US 2 and I-35 at west limits of Duluth; and Moorhead — eastbound lane I-94, 1.5 miles east of junction with US 75.

Annual Midwest Breeders Meet Held March 31

At the annual delegates' meeting of Midwest Breeders Cooperative, held Saturday, March 31, at Shawano, Wis., general manager Thomas Lyon reported to the nearly 350 in attendance that the organization had an outstanding year in 1978 in nearly all phases of its operation.

The more than $350,000 in net earnings was the third highest ever. The 1,200,000 units of sale exceeded the previous year by 8.7 per cent while sales of Midwest-produced semen were 7.7 per cent above a year ago and 1.4 per cent above the national average as compiled by the national association of animal breeders.

In his report, Lyon said the major production change made in 1978 that will affect the operation for many years was conversion from the frozen pipette semen package to the ¼ cc straw. "Our years of applied research and planning paid handsome dividends in this orderly transition," he said.

Lyon further stated that paralleling the change to straws is the practical application of a scientific breakthrough that will enable the laboratory to better define live sperm numbers and in specific sires further extend the semen without reducing settling rate. "This, over time, will improve overall quality control and make additional units available on some high demand, short supply sires," he said.

Lyon concluded by saying, "The future strength of Midwest breeders will be determined by the strength of the partnership. . .the cooperative entity adjusting to the member needs and the member utilizing the services offered to the fullest measure."

MN. Ranks 5th In Agricultural Land Value

Comparative analysis by the Minnesota department of agriculture of latest official federal estimates confirms that this state's agricultural land resources now have a minimum value of nearly $26 billion, fifth highest among all states.

Only Illinois, Iowa, Texas and California, respectively, have higher farm real estate valuations than Minnesota in the new estimates by the U.S. department of agriculture based on a February 1, 1979, national survey.

An average acre of Minnesota farm land now has a minimum value of $854. That is 16th highest among the 48 contiguous states, and well above the national average of $560 per acre. Earlier an independent survey by University of Minnesota agricultural economists reported 1889 as this state's average farm real estate value per acre.

Minnesota's 30.5 million acres of agricultural land, under the new federal definition for commercial farms, is 15th highest among the 48 states. Of the four states with higher total farm real estate values than Minnesota, only Illinois has less agricultural land.

New federal valuations indicate that the average Minnesota farm is comprised of slightly over 291 acres and represents a real estate asset of $248,800. Because Minnesota is the nation's fifth leading bastion of family farming enterprise with 104,000 farms, the per farm valuation ranks 25th and below the national average of $252,000 per farm.

New Jersey has the most valuable agricultural land resources on an average market worth of $2,222 per acre. The lowest average value for farm land is $100 per acre in New Mexico.

Arizona has the highest average value per farm, $935,700, although the average value per acre is only $134. That is because the average farm size in Arizona, is nearly 6,983 acres, almost 24 times the Minnesota average.

Average per acre farm land values in states adjoining Minnesota, are Wisconsin $807, Iowa $1,458, North Dakota $306, and South Dakota $257.

Thoughts About The Strike

Just about everybody knows the good feeling of satisfaction that comes when extra effort has been extended to create or produce something special. It can be a kite that flies, a new dress for the prom, your own home, the best garden in the neighborhood, a straight A report card or a sparkling wax finish on the family car.

We had that satisfied feeling after the Wednesday, March 21, issue of the Times started rolling off the press. You may remember that issue. The front page carried a story on the planning commission hearing on the proposed Holiday stationstore site zoning, including half a dozen photos of people involved in testimony.

Also on that front page was the first story on the community college faculty strike. Above a four column headline in lead position on the page was a four column photo of picketing faculty members. The story carried faculty and administration comments, including a summary of the faculty association's stated reasons for going on strike.

At the left of the page was a three column headline leading into a story of a faculty member who chose not to go on strike. A three-column photo showed him in an empty classroom. Another front page headline called attention to a letter written by a Northland student, giving comments from the standpoint of students forced away from their spring schedule.

We thought it was a terrific issue! This is what community journalism is all about! We had covered controversial questions objectively in our coverage, using eight out of nine front page photos to illustrate the stories. Not only did we report on the strike, which could have been done by rewrite from practically any daily paper or faculty hand-out, we found a non-conformist who was willing to cross the picket lines and didn't mind having his views published. Fantastic! And a student had volunteered to present some of the thoughts of our area young people whose lives were being involuntarily disrupted.

If a journalism professor had wanted an example of what community newspapering can be, we felt that issue would have made a dandy. It had everything — on-the-spot coverage, timeliness, information, dissenting views. It was a professional job and we felt we were justly proud of it.

Then the phone rang. The caller identified himself and demanded angrily to know "What kind of yellow journalism are you running up there?" A member of the striking faculty association, he was upset by our "bias" in covering more than the MCCFA side of the issue. We had "given as much space to one strike breaker", he said, as to the united effort of hundreds of faculty members across the state. The "real story", he said, was in accomplishing that unity. We had given the views of "a couple of students who crossed the picket lines" rather than those of "student leaders who are supporting the faculty."

Well, the attack caught us off guard. We tried to explain that there is news in dissent from a majority position and that the faculty association's stated reasons for striking had been covered. After some conversation, the caller acknowledged he may have been a little hasty in his judgment, but it was evident he was still miffed.

Although isolated in outward expression, this paranoid reaction is often indicative of attitude among strikers. They get on such an emotional high through mutual association and self-centered attention to a cause that they are incredulous that everyone doesn't share their views.

It is interesting that the next issue of our paper, which carried an interview with one of the striking faculty members and a letter on faculty position on the front page, and a public opinion letter from the president of the local faculty association inside, drew no similar charges of bias in reporting. Fairness, it would appear, is in the eye of the beholder.

It's no secret that we don't like strikes. People on strike are always the first to tell us they don't like strikes either, and that nobody gains from them. In our opinion, too many innocent people get hurt by strikes. In this action the students suffer, perhaps irreparably.

The faculty association's position on the morality of its strike has been amply stated in this paper and in the daily and instant news media. There may be a point to the rationalization that the "legislature done us wrong" in failing to fulfill arbitration awards. A district court says there is and the supreme court will likely rule on the question sometime, when it gets around to acting on the appeal.

So while we don't like strikes, we have no quarrel with the faculty association's right to strike. We respect that privilege, and we think that others should recognize that right as well. If they choose to withhold their services and are legally permitted to do so, they are acting within their rights.

Similarly, they should be expected to respect the rights of others. That would include the right of other college employees to work (most are required by law to do so) and the right of the public to use the college facilities, all without inconvenience. Unfortunately, respect for the rights of others is rarely exhibited by strikers.

Northland strikers evidenced their lack of community concern by such acts as preventing the Lincoln high school tennis team — beset by horrendous weather conditions — from using a vacant gymnasium for practice by coercing a fellow MEA member to refrain from crossing the picket line with his team members, and by forcing movement of a cancer education series to a non-college location to avoid having those attending harrassed at the entrance to the campus. Such are hardly the actions one would expect from a group of highly educated people concerned with their professional status, but they happened.

It would appear that the MCCFA took a tiger by the tail when it took on the Minnesota legislature. We would bet most MCCFA members thought that if they flexed their muscle the state would quickly capitulate and they would be back in their classrooms, snug and smug, in short order.

Classes are scheduled to resume today, just a day short of three weeks after being called off by the walk-out. The length of the strike was probably a surprise to many, and we would suppose that many of the striking faculty members are relieved to see it end and have had many second thoughts about taking the action.

Our sympathies lie with the students who have to make a major decision after having their studies interrupted without any practical alternative being available. The next few days will tell just how much the strike has hurt the colleges. Undoubtedly the interruption will have caused some out of town students to give up rental property and return home. Others may have taken full-time employment. Extension of the spring quarter to June 15 may cause others with early June commitments to elect not to return to class.

The entire community college system cannot help but be adversely affected by the strike immediately and perhaps well into the future. We hope the wounds to the system are quickly healed. The community college program as it has been developed over the years is very important to our area. It makes the difference as to whether a number of young people go on to education beyond high school or not.

It will be interesting to see how the state supreme court rules in the matter. Regardless of the ruling as to whether or not the legislature was acting improperly in its decision to limit arbitrated increases, students will not soon forget that the legislature did not vote to close the community colleges to students. That decision was made by the faculty.

Borrowed Nonsense:

It was at a pre-nuptial party for one of the office secretaries that another worker, unable to cope with her envy, slithered up the bride-to-be and said, "I don't suppose your fiance told you that he once asked me to marry him."

"Not specifically," the betrothed miss replied, "although he did say there were some things in his past he was ashamed of."

Wife on the telephone: "When my husband came home from that party last night he ran over the lawn, flattened some shrubbery, rammed into the garage and tore off the overhanging door. Lord knows what he would have done if he had been driving the car."

Interesting Opinions:

Quie Announces Added U Budget Of $6.3 Million

Gov. Albert H. Quie has added $6.3 million to his January budget recommendations for the University of Minnesota.

Changes in the governor's budget were announced recently to the education division of the house appropriations committee which is making allocations on the university's requested appropriation for the 1979-81 biennium.

Two of the items in Quie's revisions, one for hazardous waste disposal and another for improvements in the student registration system, had already been acted upon by the division at the time the revisions were announced.

Both the division and Quie recommended $167,000 for hazardous waste disposal, an item for which university officials say the costs have been increasing rapidly. Low-grade radioactive wastes and other hazardous hospital wastes are shipped to disposal sites outside of Minnesota.

The governor's recommendation to fund the university's $614,000 request for an imporved registration system differs from the division action to allow the university to speed up a new system it has been implementing in stages.

The division, on the motion of Rep. William Dean, IR-Minneapolis, approved $250,000 more than the university requested to "speed up this matter and get it over with once and for all."

Quie's revised budget would provide $913,797 for improved registration procedures over the biennium and the division has allocated $1.2 million to get the new registration process operating by fall of 1981.

University officials said that the new registration system would shorten lines, allow students to register in one place instead of several, and computerize data which would allow better planning of number of classes to be offered and better room scheduling to follow projected class sizes.

On Dean's motion, the education division trimmed the governor's new recommendation that the university receive requested funds for the maintenance of space in new buildings expected to open during the biennium.

The governor recommended $1.7 million for this item with $626,000 in projected fuel increases to be handled through a contingency fund. The division allocated $1.2 million for operation of new space, including the $626,000 for increased energy costs.

Quie's budget includes four items which have not yet been discussed by the education division, including women's intercollegiate athletics, equipment replacement, a minority student retention program, and replacement of federal funds for thr school of dentistry.

Quie recommended $1.2 million for women's intercollegiate athletics but refused to fund a university request for men's intercollegiate sports on the coordinate campuses.

He added a $1 million item to replace equipment that has become obsolete or worn out.

Quie also changed his approach to funding of a dental school request for money to replace federal capitation grants for the program.

At the time of Quie's January budget, the university could have qualified for up to $1 million in federal money by spending $466,000 for off-campus dental training.

Changes in the program, however, have reduced the federal amount to around $200,000 so the governor recommended that the university no longer seek federal dental capitation funds, according to Dale Nelson, education coordinator for the Minnesota department of finance.

Nelson said that the assumptions in the governor's January budget were changed by congressional action at the recommendation of President Carter. Quie's budget includes $1.8 million to replace the federal dentistry program.

A $1 million program to improve the retention of minority and special students recruited to the University is included in the Quie recommendation. This change was announced in the governor's March 15 education message.

The changes bring the governor's recommendation for the University of Minnesota to $401.2 million, some $36 million less than the university's request for the 1979-81 biennium.

DALE ENERSON, loan officer at the Production Credit association of Thief River Falls, is among 12 PCA people from Minnesota, North Dakota and Wisconsin who attended a Federal intermediate credit bank (PCA-FICB) training program in St. Paul recently. Divided into two one-week sessions March 12-16 and April 2-6, the program was held at the PCA-FICB education center in the farm credit banks building in St. Paul.

Trees Help To Keep Snow Out, Heat In

"Believe it or not, ol-man winter is about to retire for another winter. For some farmers, it was quite a relaxing winter even though the snow did blow around and cause some pretty severe drifting problems," states soil conservationist Greg Hines of Thief River Falls.

"At the same time, there were other farmers who dreaded the thought of all that snow blowing around, piling up in their farmyards. For these farmers, it wasn't a so-called 'relaxing' winter, but one gigantic headache because these farmers lacked the necessary trees that were needed around their farmsteads to keep snow out. So after each windy day, instead of staying inside and out of the cold, out they would have to go and shovel, and shovel, and shovel. . .

The soil and water conservation district's tree program could be the solution to a lot of snow problems that exist. If a farmstead doesn't have the necessary trees, snow and all its related problems can be expected.

"In this flat country, trees are necessary for both wind and snow protection," Hines said. "To get trees planted at your farmstead, the procedure is really simple. Just stop by our office and we'll gladly listen to your problem. We won't help you shovel, but we will plan trees for your farm so that they will be planted this spring or the spring of 1980.

"And did you ever consider how much heat is lost due to the lack of protection from wintry winds? A farmstead windbreak is helpful here too. As consumers we must contend with high prices, but as a landowner, you can reduce high fuel bills by planting a few trees around your farmstead. It's really up to you, the farmer, to decide what is best for your farm," he said. "Soil and water conservation district is here for one specific reason and that is to serve you with all your conservation needs. The tree program is one way of serving you, and there are a lot of other ways, too. Stop by our office or call at 681-3348 in Thief River Falls."

North Central Airlines Ends Record Year

North Central airlines in 1978 had the most profitable year in its history, stockholders were told at their annual meeting recently.

Bernard Sweet, president and chief executive officer, said the company achieved net earnings of $22.2 million, 62 per cent over 1977, and earnings per share rose to $1.70. Revenues climbed 31 per cent to a record $299.1 million. Company has operated profitably for 24 years since 1954.

"North Central leads the regional carriers with retained earnings of $69.1 million," Sweet continued, "and has paid annual cash dividends for the past seven years. Company recently increased the dividend 25 per cent, and stockholders received $.20 per share of common stock on March 1." Airline has 35,000 stockholders. "The record year boosted stockholders' equity 29 per cent to $89.6 million," Sweet said, "and book value has risen to $7.25 per share on 12,366,031 shares of common stock outstanding."

Stockholders elected the following directors: Eric Bramley, Hal N. Carr, G.F. DeCoursin, Chan Gurney, John M. Lawrence III, Samuel H. Maslon, Theodore R. Miles, Jay Phillips, Morton B. Phillips, Joseph E. Rapkin, Henry M. Ross, Bernard Sweet and Kenneth B. Willett.

Senator Asks Change In Work Study Program

More college students could find part-time jobs with private employers if legislation cosponsored by Senator Dave Durenberger is successful. The legislation would be especially beneficial to low and middle-income and minority students, Durenberger said.

The private employer and higher education incentive act of 1979 would allow colleges and universities to use up to 20 per cent of their grants for the existing college work study program for jobs with private employers. Currently, schools are restricted to using the funds for jobs on campus.

"Students will be able to work in a job related to their studies while earning money for college expenses," said Durenberger. "The college work study program has given jobs to thousands of disadvantaged, minority and modest-income students and has helped keep these students in school. The bill I am cosponsoring will give students important vocational training in addition to an income."

New legislation will not involve additional federal dollars, said Durenberger. The college work study program assists almost 1 million students each year. The program's current appropriation is $550 million.

The new bill, introduced by Senator Harrison A. Williams, Jr. (D-N. J.), specifies that colleges can only establish part-time jobs which do not displace, supplant or fill vacant or planned jobs, said Durenberger.

Small Business Loans Result In More Jobs

Paul W. Jansen, district director of the Minneapolis district office of the small business administration, announced recently that $4,964,100 in SBA loans had been approved for 42 Minnesota companies in the month of March. The projected additional employment created as a result of these loans is 465 jobs.

Direct management assistance counseling was provided to 421 Minnesota firms through the small business administration's in-house counselors or through support groups like the service corps of retired executives and the ten colleges participating in the small business institute program.

One loan, amounting to $109,000, was made to a minority owned firm; making the minority component of the March loan portfolio 2.4 per cent of the total loans and 2.2 per cent of the total loan dollars.

BEFORE DIGGING . . . PLEASE CALL!

The Garden Valley Telephone Company has experienced many situations where telephone cables have been damaged — unintentionally and unnecessarily — by contractors and other persons during construction work.

A damaged cable causes interrupted telephone service for Garden Valley members. And, if the Company has not been properly notified before the digging activity begins, the cost of repair must be paid by the party responsible.

So please . . . BEFORE digging, dial Garden Valley's toll-free number at Erskine — 800-242-6100.

There is no charge for the Company's assistance in locating cable before construction begins (please call at least one day in advance whenever possible).

Your cooperation will save you money and will prevent the inconvenience of disrupted service for many telephone subscribers.

Thanks.

Senators Give View About Duluth AFB

U.S. air force recently informed Senators Dave Durenberger and Rudy Boschwitz and Congressman James Oberstar that it intends to terminate its present mission at Duluth in 1982.

The air force formally announced that decision at a news conference, at which time it also was announced a total of 103 actions, from base closings to minor operational changes, in 43 states and Guam.

The air force estimates the actions will save a total of $181 million, $28 million of that amount resulting from the action at Duluth.

The department of defense has begun an economic adjustment program to develop alternative use plans for the base.

In addition, the Minnesota lawmakers have received a commitment from the air force to look for a replacement mission for the base.

Durenberger, Boschwitz and Oberstar issued the following statement, in part:

"No matter how prepared you are for this kind of announcement, it's still a tremendous letdown when it finally comes.

"Congressman Oberstar has, over the past several years, worked to maintain a useful, effective military mission at Duluth. We are all deeply disappointed with the air force decision.

"Yet, it is a decision which has been foreseen, and which has been virtually inescapable since 1970, when the air defense command unit of fighter-interceptor aircraft was transferred to K.I. Sawyer AFB in northern Michigan. That base then became a multi-mission facility and Duluth became a single-mission base. Air force policy in subsequent years has been to strengthen multi-mission facilities and to phase out single-mission bases.

"Duluth is a victim of that policy.

"There are two courses of action which can be taken simultaneously, and we've been working on both prospects for quite some time.

"One is to find an alternative military mission for the base. The other is conversion of the base to a civilian use with long-term economic growth and job potential.

"With regard to alternative military missions, the defense department has committed itself to an in-depth search for that mission. As part of that search, the Air Force has said it will analyze the potential for establishing a refueling mission at Duluth with tanker aircraft stationed there, a proposal which Congressman Oberstar has discussed with the air force and representatives of the Carter administration.

"The base is an ideal location for a refueling center as the air force strategically prefers to have its refueling aircraft located north of its fighter and bomber aircraft, which is the case with Duluth.

"The mission would involve 1,000 personnel. While less than the existing mission, this mission would generate substantial economic activity in the area.

"Improvements and extensions of existing runways and taxiways would involve a cost of $27 million over a four-year period.

"These modifications would, in addition, improve civilian aircraft capability at Duluth.

"We are realistic about the prospects for this development. The air force has not been encouraging. It is our commitment, nevertheless, to work toward securing the tanker refueling mission for Duluth.

"At the same time, we must continue to look for a permanent non-military use for the base.

"The Duluth area will be eligible for Title IX assistance under the economic development administration, as well as assistance from the department of labor.

"We will continue our efforts to establish another base in Duluth. We can use the full range of federal assistance to replace the loss of the economic activity generated by the current mission.

"This effort will require a great deal of hard work and the continued cooperation that has existed between the private and public sectors and between the federal and local governments."

Prices Rise As Consumer Demand Grows

Continued consumer demand in February for fresh fruit and vegetables, dairy products and meat forced continued price increases, the president of the Minnesota farm bureau federation said recently.

Merlyn Lokensgard of St. Peter commented on the consumer price index (CPI) report which shows a 1.2 per cent increase in last month's food costs.

Such increases, the state farm leader said, were the result of double digit inflation and not the cause. "We have repeatedly warned that if we keep on with deficit federal spending and don't curb the ever-increasing supply of money, more inflation is inevitable," Lokensgard commented.

The monthly CPI report, Lokensgard said, does not report consumer response to higher or lower prices; it reports only price increases or decreases. Higher prices in February for pork, poultry and veal were a response to higher beef prices, he contended. "When consumers choose meat other than beef," said Lokensgard, "the increased demand raises these prices too."

U.S. consumers are currently spending on the average only 17 per cent of disposable income for food. And, observed Lokensgard, "that's less than in any other country in the world."

Jeffrey Panek On Honor Roll

Jeffrey Panek, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Panek of rural Goodridge, was placed on the achievement and application honor rolls for the third quarter at the Minnesota school for the deaf at Faribault.

Placement on the achievement honor roll requires a student to achieve an average of 3.0 or above and is based upon the student's over-all academic performance in the classroom. A 2.7 average or above is needed to attain status on the application honor roll. Application grade is a measure of the effort the student puts into class and homework

CO. BOARD PROCEEDINGS

April 9, 1979
Official Proceedings
Board of County Commissioners
Pennington County, Minnesota
March 20, 1979

Pursuant to adjournment the County Board met in the Commissioners' Room in the Court house in Thief River Falls at 9:00 A.M., March 20, 1979.

Members present: Hoffman, Grabanski, Koop, Stenberg and Tasa. All present.

The minutes of the meeting of March 6th were read and approved as read with the Commissioners comment that the reference in the letter relating to bid on Motor Grader being too 'restrictive' was probably more properly in reference to the call for an 'articulated' machine rather than the 'buy back' feature as alluded to in the minutes.

The Board briefly discussed the solid waste problem currently facing the County and Cities within the County. It was mentioned that some activity has taken place in this area by the City of Thief River Falls and it was proposed that all entities having responsibility in the solid waste area should meet and exchange thought so that a complete understanding could be had rather than an assumption of understanding. The Auditor was asked to contact the City of Thief River Falls Council members thru the Clerk for a possible date for a meeting.

Chris Twoomey, Director of the Occupational Development Center, Inc. of Thief River Falls and Crookston appeared and presented a funding proposal and asked for support of 30 cents per capita again this year for the program. Mr. Twoomey pointed out that the Center serves 8 Counties in the area and showed an expense of $195,221.00 for the year 1978 and a deficit after County participation of $16,568.09. The local facility serves 42 people and 33 people are served by the Crookston facility. Moved by Grabanski seconded by Stenberg that the sum of 30 cents per capita ($4,376.70) be appropriated and paid to the Occupational Development Center to assist in the work the Center is engaged in. Motion unanimously carried.

Robert J. Davidson who is engaged in the business of drilling wells then discussed matters pertinent to his line of work. After discussion Commissioner Grabanski introduced the following resolution and moved its adoption:

WHEREAS, Evidence before the Board indicates that plastic water well casings are being used in surrounding States and in various Counties in Minnesota, and

WHEREAS, various well drillers maintain that plastic casings are superior to steel in many instances and provide trouble free installations for many purposes,

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED, that the Legislature of the State of Minnesota be petitioned to allow the use of plastic well casings.

The foregoing resolution was duly seconded by Commissioner Koop and upon vote was declared unanimously carried.

Moved by Stenberg seconded by Tasa that meeting adjourn to convene at 9:00 A.M., April 10, 1979. Motion carried.

ATTEST: C.W. RODEKUHR,
COUNTY AUDITOR & EX-OFFICIO, CLERK OF THE BOARD.

No Breakthrough In Conference Talks

Prospects of having Thief River Falls, East Grand Forks and Crookston admitted into the Mid-State Conference for high school football competition appears slim at best at this point.

Unless there's a major change of heart by officials of the six Mid-State schools (Detroit Lakes, Crosby-Ironton, Wadena, Aitkin, Staples and Park Rapids), or a reorganization of football conferences by the Minnesota State High School League (MSHSL), Thief River Falls, East Grand Forks and Crookston will find themselves playing as independents when the 1980 football season rolls around.

Right now all three are committed to the Northwest Athletic Conference for 1979, along with Bemidji and Fergus Falls. However, East Grand Forks and Crookston have already indicated they would leave the NWAC in 1980 to avoid playing Class AA football schools Bemidji and Fergus Falls. The Green Wave and Pirates applied for membership in the Mid-State Conference, a move matched by Thief River Falls, although the Prowlers have never said they wanted to withdraw from the Northwest Athletic Conference. Thief River Falls' Mid-State application only precludes the probable demise of the NWAC.

Orginally very little hope was given to the Mid-State's chances of accepting the Thief River Falls, East Grand Forks and Crookston applications. In fact, Bob Hooper of Detroit Lakes, president of the Mid-State Conference went so far to write a letter to the three NWAC members telling them their applications would be rejected because of the travel involved.

However, a February Mid-State meeting which also involved Thief River Falls, East Grand Forks and Crookston did not produce the expected rejection. Instead, the Mid-State took the proposal under consideration; partly because of the prospects of the forced realignment by the MSHSL, sponsor of the post-season football playoffs that involve conference champions.

Work was put into schedules for the 1980 season that featured an expanded Mid-State Conference. There was some hope that a scheduled meeting with Mid-State people in Bloomington last week during the state athletic directors convention might produce some favorable news for the three NWAC schools. It didn't. And although the plan wasn't killed, it surely isn't in a very healthy stage.

Grand Not Going To East Grand Forks

Lincoln high school hockey coach Wendell Grand is not interested in succeeding Buzz Olson as East Grand Forks hockey coach. Abe Winter of the Grand Forks Herald was off base when he guessed that Grand would be interested in the position, vacated when Olson, a Lincoln graduate, resigned following the 1978-79 season.

Winter said that "sources indicate some highly-touted individuals are interested in the job," mentioning Grand, Terry Abram of Anoka, Terry Shercliffe of Moorhead, Al Henry of Devils Lake, Lynn Stauss of East Grand Forks and Terry Paukert of East Grand Forks.

Our "sources" says Stauss will get the job, Abe.

Miscellaneous

+Tim Knotek was named most valuable player on the 1978-79 Crookston high school basketball team. The Todd Eisert memorial award was presented to Garry Kotts.

+ Dates and sites for 1979 Northwest Athletic Conference spring sports meets were finalized by NWAC leaders recently. The indoor track meet will be held April 10 at Crookston; outdoor track May 1 at Fergus Falls; tennis May 3 at East Grand Forks; and golf May 17 at East Grand Forks.

+ Mark Perreault was selected as the most valuable player on the 1978-79 Crookston high school hockey team. Elliot Solheim was the recipient of the Mike David memorial award for the best play by a defenseman and Steve Biermaier received the Art Nomland memorial award for the most dedicated player.

Prowlers Are Impressive In Tennis Opener

Lincoln high school tennis team opened its 1979 season in impressive fashion Saturday with a perfect 12-point performance in a quadrangular indoor tournament at Brainerd.

The host Warriors were a distant second with six points, followed by South St. Paul with five and Fergus Falls one.

With four courts available, play featured two singles and two doubles matches limited to two sets, no adds and a nine-point tie breaker in the third set.

Thief River Falls coach Whitey Olson used various line-up combinations in the Prowlers' opener to avoid too much tennis after just a week of practice. "Too much and you can become lame for the rest of the year," he noted. But he also said, "It was a super experience for us to play that much tennis."

Highlighting Thief River Falls' performance was eight wins in nine tie-breakers. "I was really pleased with those wins in the tie-breakers," mentioned Olson. "When the pressure was on they withstood it."

Thief River Falls will play Crookston Tuesday in a 4:30 p.m. dual meet in the Grand Forks tennis center.

Nature Center For Handicapped Being Planned

First environmental learning center for the handicapped to be constructed in the United States is being built adjacent to Minneopa state park near Mankato, the Department of Natural Resources reported.

The idea for the center originated with the Key City conservation club. The 46 acre parcel of land on which the center is being built is owned by the Williams pipeline company, which agreed to lease it for 20 years to a non-profit foundation in Mankato — for one dollar per year.

Tentative plans call for constructing a trail of two or three miles in length suitable for use by those in wheel chairs, the blind and other physically handicapped persons.

Braille will be used to identify the various natural phenomena along the trail. Historic Indian mounds on the property will be preserved, sanitation buildings will be constructed and eventually an environmental building that could be used as an interpretive center to relate the history of the Minnesota river valley.

Lloyd Vollmer of the Key City conservation club said several of the school systems in the Mankato area have no environmental education centers and that the facility could be made available to schools and organizations during certain days of the week.

Plans call for a caretaker to administer the property and a parking lot will be constructed adjacent to highway 68.

Bemidji Favored To Win NWAC Indoor Track Meet

Bemidji is an overwhelming favorite to become the first team to successfully defend its Northwest Athletic Conference indoor track meet title Tuesday when the seventh annual event gets underway at 4 p.m. in the Winter Shows building at Crookston.

In an earlier appearance in the Crookston invitational, Bemidji ran away with an easy victory by winning seven of the 15 events and finishing with 71 points in the March 30 event. Park Rapids was a distant second with 37 points, followed by Bagley 26½ and Crookston 25½.

To illustrate the Lumberjacks' strength, Crookston turned around and ran away with a triangular triumph last week against conference competition by scoring 71 points to East Grand Forks' 55½ and Thief River Falls' 28½.

Fergus Falls will join Bemidji, East Grand Forks, Crookston and Thief River Falls in the NWAC meet. The Otters were a surprise winner in the 1977 event.

In winning that Crookston invitational title last month, Bemidji received two wins apiece from seniors Mark Delaney, who took the 220 and 440-yard dashes, and Jay Sharpe, who won both the 70-yard high and 70-yard intermediate hurdles.

Ron Wolfe led a 1-2-3 Bemidji finish in the two-mile and the Lumberjacks' Tom Campbell and Rob Egersdorf were 1-2 in the high jump.

NWAC indoor track competition began at Crookston when Thief River Falls won the inaugural event in 1973. Crookston won it in 1974, Thief River Falls 1975, Bemidji 1976, Fergus Falls 1977 and Bemidji 1978.

In addition to its two conference indoor titles in the past three years, Bemidji has won four consecutive NWAC outdoor crowns. The 1979 conference outdoor meet will be held Tues., May 1, at Fergus Falls.

Some Changes Made In MSHSL Alignment

Board of Directors of the Minnesota State High School League took action April 5 at their monthly meeting at headquarters in Anoka to reassign nine schools to a Class A district or region or a Class AA region as a result of an increase or decrease in student enrollment.

Approved for the 1979-80 and 1980-81 school years are three schools currently in Class A that will become Class AA schools; three schools currently in Class AA that were moved to Class A districts and regions; and three Class AA schools that were transferred from one Class AA region to another to bring about a balance of schools among the eight regions.

Largest 128 schools among the MSHSL membership of 523 schools are classified Class AA and the other 395 are in Class A.

Three Class A schools moving to Class AA are Farmington to 1AA, Holy Angels Academy in Richfield to 5AA, and North Branch to 7AA.

Three schools currently in Class AA moving to Class A are Chisago Lakes from 7AA to District 25 in Region 7A; St. Anthony Village from 4AA to District 15 in Region 4A; and Brooklyn Center from 5AA to District 15 in Region 4A.

Three schools being transferred are Waseca, Rocori in Cold Spring and Columbia Heights. Waseca moves from Region 1AA to 2AA; Rocori moves from Region 2AA to 8AA; and Columbia Heights moves from Region 5AA to 4AA.

The board also approved a recommendation in football to advance conference champions or independents to the series leading to the state football playoffs in Class B and Class C, thus eliminating the computer ratings.

In other action the board rejected a proposal in track and field that called for the league to conduct a state track and field meet in three classes of competition.

Hearing Set For Noise Rule On Snowmobiles

A proposal to amend the present state regulation on the allowed noise level emitted from snowmobiles will be the subject of a public hearing to be conducted by the Department of Natural Resources in St. Paul on May 2.

The hearing is scheduled for the Weyerhaeuser room of the Minnesota Historical Society, 690 Cedar street, starting at 10 a.m.

Proposed rules would repeal the requirement that snowmobiles made after July 1, 1979, will emit no more than 73 decibels of noise when measured at full throttle acceleration at 50 feet from the machine.

The allowed noise limit would instead by 78 decibels — which has been in effect since April 1, 1975.

Proposed rules would require snowmobile manufacturers to certify that their machines met the required noise level. Manufacturers who certified machines that failed to meet the noise limit when tested would be guilty of a misdemeanor.

Both oral and written testimony may be presented at the hearing. In addition, a statement of need and reasonableness will be available for review at the Department of Natural Resources and at the Office of Hearing Examiners 25 days prior to the hearing.

The statement includes a summary of all of the evidence which will be presented by the DNR at the hearing, justifying both the need for and reasonableness of the proposed rules.

One free copy of the proposed amendments may be obtained by writing the DNR, Office of Regulatory Services, Box 6, Centennial Office Building, St. Paul, Minnesota, 55155.

Additional copies will be available at the door on the date of the earing.

A state spokesman said some persons planning to appear at the hearing may be considered "lobbyists" under Minnesota law and would have to register with the state ethical practices board within five days after commencement of lobbying.

Questions regarding lobbying should be directed to the state ethical practices board, Room 41, State Office Building, Wabasha Street, St. Paul, Minnesota, 55155; phone (612) 296-1720.

Top Fisheries Post Is Filled In State DNR

A 32-year veteran of the Department of Natural Resources has been named chief of the section of fisheries by Charles Burrows, DNR fish and wildlife director.

Jerome H. Kuehn, Mahtomedi, will assume the state's top fisheries post April 2.

He has served as administrator in the DNR's office of planning and research since 1965. In this position, he was responsible for the department's long-range planning, environmental review and recreational federal grant programs.

Since joining the department in 1947 as a fisheries biologist, Kuehn has served in various capacities with the fish and wildlife division. He initiated Dingell-Johnson programs in Minnesota with projects such as northern pike spawning area protection, winter fish rescue and statewide creel census.

Kuehn graduated from the University of Minnesota in 1942 with a bachelor of science degree in wildlife management training. After serving four years in World War II, he returned to the University and earned a masters degree in fisheries management in 1949.

Kuehn has served as secretary of the association of midwest game and fish commissioners, a two-term president of the upper Mississippi conservation committee and as president of the Minnesota chapter of wildlife society.

He has been a technical representative to the Minnesota-Wisconsin boundary area commission, the DNR representative on the upper midwest research development council and was the Minnesota representative to the great river environmental action team.

He was elected a member of the American Institute of fishery research biologists in 1961.

Girls Basketball

Engel Named LHS Captain

Roberta Engel was named captain of the 1979-80 Lincoln high school girls basketball team, it was announced last week following the Prowlers' annual post-season banquet.

Senior Pam Kotschevar, who led a balanced Thief River Falls attack with an 8.6 scoring average, was selected as the most valuable player on the 1978-79 squad.

Most improved player awards went to Engel, varsity; Carla Ode, junior varsity; and Peggy Hamre, freshmen.

Senior Kelly Storhaug also earned an award for the highest varsity free throw percentage — 60 per cent.

Thief River Falls finished the season with an 8-12 record, reaching the Region 8AA Sub Region 4 tournament finals before losing to Bemidji 43-23.

"We didn't have as good a season as I thought we would," admitted Thief River Falls coach Sylvia Sjoberg. "But I'm not sure it was meant to be any better."

It's not hard to figure out what went wrong for the Prowlers who shot a poor 26.3 per cent from the field for the year. "Shooting was definitely the main thing that hurt us," acknowledged Sjoberg who completed her first year as head coach of the Prowlers after serving as an assistant coach here and as a head coach at Wadena.

Sophomore guard Ann Goodrich, whose ball handling directed the club, actually finished with the best field goal percentage — 41.2 per cent — on the team but averaged less than four shots per game, finishing with a 4.6 scoring average.

Among the starters, Kotschevar was next in line with a 32.4 per cent shooting figure from the field. She was also among the free throw leaders with a 56.3 per cent effort from the line.

Senior Julie Easton, who served as team captain this winter, was second to Kotschevar in the low, but balanced, scoring parade with an 8.5 average. She was also second in the rebound department with an average of 7.3 rebounds per game.

Engel, a junior, averaged 8.3 points and a team-leading 8.1 rebounds per game. She was second to Storhaug in the free throw department by making 58.1 per cent of her gift tosses.

Rounding out the starting line-up, Storhaug averaged 4.5 points per game.

Top Reserves included junior Kathy Beito who owned a 3.9 scoring average; junior Kathy Walker who averaged 1.8 points per game and sophomore Kim McFarland who averaged two points per game.

Thief River Falls averaged 38 points per game. The Prowlers posted wins over Park Rapids 46-40 in overtime, Crookston 39-35 and 40-34, East Grand Forks Sacred Heart 56-32, East Grand Forks 45-43 and 41-39 in post-season play, Greenbush 54-46 and Fergus Falls 46-42. Losses came at the hands of Fisher 57-32, Warren 49-23, Roseau 39-38, Moorhead 52-40, McIntosh-Winger 56-34, Fertile-Beltrami 60-34, Fosston 39-38, Detroit Lakes 40-30, East Grand Forks 38-26 and Bemidji 57-32 and 61-31 in addition to the tournament setback.

Led by Engel, Goodrich, Beito and McFarland, the 1979-80 team looks like it can be competitive if another starter — preferably a strong center — can be found. "I'm really optimistic," noted Sjoberg. "I think we'll have a good team next year."

Boundary Water Fishing Opens On April 28

Anglers fishing the waters of Minnesota that form the boundary between this state and neighboring states of South Dakota, Wisconsin and Iowa will open the season on April 28 this year.

Minnesota Department of Natural Resources advised anglers to read the 1979 fishing regulations, available from all license agents, to determine the lakes and rivers that are open to the taking of walleyes, northern pike or other species on that date.

Inland waters of the state open to angling for northerns, walleyes and muskies on May 12.

Among the waters that open on April 28 are the St. Croix and St. Louis rivers and the Minnesota-South Dakota boundry waters.

There is a continuous season on walleyes and northern pike in Lake Pepin and on the Mississippi river where it forms the boundary between Minnesota and Wisconsin.

State DNR Issues Thin Ice Warning

Warm weather has caused many Minnesota rivers to begin flowing and has further deteriorated the ice conditions on the state's lakes. This can be a potential problem — especially to children, late season ice fishermen and early season canoeists according to the Department of Natural Resources.

Kim Elverum, boat and water safety coordinator for the DNR, noted that the ice conditions were extremely unpredictable throughout the winter because of the heavy snows which acted as an insulator, keeping the ice from freezing to its usual thickness on many lakes.

"The warmer weather of recent days combined with rain in some cases is causing ice conditions to deteriorate rapidly," he said, "especially in the southern part of the state."

"Furthermore, said Elverum, "the spring runoff on rivers and streams attracts whitewater canoeists and rafters. Each year in the United States several canoeists die in whitewater accidents in the cold, fast waters of the spring runoff."

Elverum offered the following advice to help prevent water accidents this spring:

+Stay off the ice.

+Parents should warn their children about the hazards of thin ice and nearby swollen rivers or streams.

+Late-season ice fishermen should check locally before heading out on the lake. Even then, it should be noted that ice conditions can vary from place to place on the same body of water.

+Whitewater canoeing is not for the beginner. The cold, fast water of a spring runoff increases the difficulty of avoiding objects and can capsize even the best canoeist. It is essential that proper training be received and that a personal flotation device (life preserver) be worn before any whitewater attempts are made.

Offense Carries Northland Squad

Northland community college hockey team rebounded from its poorest ever 3-17 record of 1977-78 to finish 10-12 in 1978-79 with an offensive attack that ranked among the best in the Minnesota junior college athletic association. Defensively the Northmen weren't as fortunate, however, and they failed to produce the school's first winning season since 1972-73.

"I guess I was satisfied," said third year Northland coach Bob Lundbohm. "That's the best season I've had. But we could have done better. We scored a lot of goals, but we gave up a lot, too."

Most of Northland's offensive punch came from an all-Thief River Falls line of Doug Dallmann, Gordy Markstrom and Mike Malberg. That trio produced nearly half of the team's 136 goals.

Dallmann was the leader. The freshman wing tied a school record with 33 goals and finished with 59 points, six behind the all-time single season scoring standard of 65 points, a mark set in 1971-72 by both Lundbohm and Leo Marshall. It was Marshall's 33-goal standard that Dallmann matched. His efforts landed Dallmann a spot on the All-Region 13 honor squad.

Markstrom and Malberg, both sophomores, also enjoyed outstanding seasons. Markstrom finished with 18 goals, 25 assists and 43 points while Malberg had 13 goals, 25 assists and 38 points.

1978-79 Northland Summary

Bryan Wiskow	6⅓	217	43	174	.80	6.9
John Halgren	2⅔	103	28	75	.73	11.2

It wasn't surprising then that those three finished with the best plus-minus marks on the team charts that awards plus (+) marks for every goal your team scores while you're on the ice but saddles you with a minus (-) for every goal the opposition scores when you're on the ice when the sides are skating even. Dallmann finished a +12, Markstrom +7 and Malberg +5.

Markstrom and Malberg headed a solid group of sophomores that were blended with some talented newcomers like Dallmann to turn the Northland fortunes around. "Basically we didn't lose anybody," said Lundbohm about the team's improved play from the year before. "We had most of our talent back to build around and we picked up a couple of key additions — sophomores like Brad Kosel and Scott Bergland who hadn't been out before. And then when you get a bluechipper like Doug... well, you're in business."

Thief River Falls sophomore Joe Klosterman handled most of the Northland goaltending chores. But even his crediable 81 per cent save figure failed to hold down a 7.3 goals-against average as he faced a 514-shot barrage in the 13 and one third games he played.

Northland's defensive woes didn't rest in goal, according to Lundbohm. "Basically we were inexperienced on the blue line," he said. "You have to learn to be a defensive hockey player. It's too easy to get caught up in the offensive show."

During the regular season Northland beat Hibbing 6-5 in overtime and 5-3; Rainy River 9-5 and 12-11 in overtime; Crookston 11-7; Mesabi 11-7, 4-3 in overtime and 7-4; and Rochester 13-3 and 6-3. The Northmen lost to Rainy River 9-4 and 14-10; Mesabi 6-3; Crookston 6-1, 12-4 and 7-6; Hibbing 8-5 and 8-7; Roseau Leafs 11-7; and the Bemidji State University junior varsity 12-1.

Post-season play was a disaster for the Northmen who hosted the 1979 MJCAA state tournament. They lost to Hibbing 10-2 and were blitzed by Rainy River 15-2.

Still, it was the best finish for the nine-year-old Northmen since a 12-14 season in 1973-74.

1979 Boston Marathon Race Seen On PBS

"It's spring and the saps are running."

Local sportswriters once rejoiced in pulling that phrase out of the mothballs every April. The "saps" were the brave fellows preparing to run the Boston Marathon, and in the early years of that now-legendary foot race — the oldest in the United States — the event was greeted with more than a trace of sarcasm.

These days, of course, the opposite is true. The Boston Marathon, in the words of two-time winner and course record-holder Bill Rodgers, "is the mecca for marathoners. If you are a marathoner, you have to run Boston. There are other races run more professionally, and with better fields, but there's something special about Boston."

"The Boston Marathon," Monday, April 16 at 10:30 p.m. on Prairie Public Television, celebrates that "something special" which every Patriots Day attracts thousands of runners eager to endure 26 miles and 385 yards for a bowl of beef stew and the satisfaction of having completed the famous course.

Highlight of the evening is same-day coverage of the 1979 race. More than five cameras, including one aboard a helicopter, will follow the action. Beginning with the start in the sleepy town of Hopkinton and ending with the dramatic finish in downtown Boston, cameras will monitor the leaders among the men and women.

"The Boston Marathon", a production of WGBH Boston for PBS, will be seen here on station KGFE (ch. 13).

Basketball Season Left At 19 Weeks . . .

MSHSL Assembly Votes To Retain Baseball Programs

Amendments which would have eliminated baseball and softball as Minnesota State High School League sponsored events and would have reduced the length of the basketball season from 19 to 17 weeks were both defeated as the representative assembly of the MSHSL took action on 11 amendments at its April 6 meeting in Anoka.

A change was also made in the Region 8A wrestling membership.

Amendments and voting were as follows:

Amendments No. 1-4 — Transfer and residence rule to define the terminology, clarify the intent of the present rule, define the procedure for application for eligibility under the rule and to provide a definition of "continuation school" for public and nonpublic schools. The amendments passed unanimously.

Amendment No. 5 — Would reduce the length of the basketball season from 19 to 17 weeks. The amendment failed by a 65-22 vote.

Amendments No. 6 and 7 — Would provide opportunity to schedule football and soccer games on Thursday as in all other sports. The amendments passed by a near unanimous voice vote.

Amendment No. 8 — Would provide exception to basketball player participation limitation for ninth, tenth, or "B" squad teams so that they might have an opportunity to participate in four-team tournaments. The amendment passed by a 64-23 vote.

Amendement No. 9 — Would increase the maximum number of volleyball matches from 14 to 16. The amendment passed by a 63-24 vote.

Amendment No. 10 — Would eliminate baseball and softball as MSHSL sponsored activities. The amendment failed by a near unanimous voice vote.

Amendment No. 11 — Would reduce the length of penalty for alcohol, tobacco and drug violations to three weeks for first offense, nine weeks for second offense and 12 weeks for third offense. The amendment failed by a near unanimous voice vote.

The assembly also took action on two resolutions that were proposed at the November 3, 1978 meeting. Action on the resolutions includes the following:

Resolution No. 1 — Beginning with the 1980-81 school year "A" team boys and girls basketball games be scheduled the same night and that wrestling be scheduled either home or away that same night. The resolution failed by a near unanimous voice vote.

Resolution No. 2 — The representative assembly recommends to the board of directors of the MSHSL that for the region wrestling tournaments District 18 of Region 5 wrestle in the Region 7 wrestling tournament which would provide 18 schools rather than eight schools in Region 7 and 32 schools rather than 42 schools in Region 5 and that District 23 of Region 6 wrestle in the Region 8 tournament for advancement to state which would provide 33 schools rather than the present 46 schools in Region 6. (Submitted by Bertha-Hewitt public schools. The resolution passed by a 57-30 vote.

Seven amendments were previewed by the representative assembly at the April 6 meeting. Action will be taken at the November meeting.

Proposed amendments previewed include the following:

1. Number of basketball games. Increase the number of games, exclusive of tournament play, from 18 to 20 games. (Submitted by the Minnesota state high school coaches association).

2. Number of games, all activities. All member schools of the MSHSL shall be restricted to one contest per week in each activity during the school year. If passed, this amendment becomes effective with the 1980-81 school year. (Submitted by Leo E. Stumpf, designated school board representative, Atwater public schools.)

3. Baseball and softball starting date. Boys baseball and girls softball practive may begin on the Monday preceding April 1 of each year and continue for 12 weeks, including League sponsored tournaments. If passed this amendment will be effective with the 1980-81 school year. (Submitted by District No. 18 superintendents.)

4. Gymnastics season. Move the Class A girls gymnastics season from the winter season to the fall season. (Submitted by Colin Harris, designated school representative, Byron high school).

5. Golf season. Move the golf seasons for boys and girls from the spring season to the fall season. If passed, this amendment will be effective with the 1981-82 school year. (Submitted by Merlyn Krenz, designated school representative, Lewiston high school.)

6. Seasons of participation. No senior under twenty (20) years of age who has matriculated in only her-his twelfth year of total schooling (grades 1-12) shall be declared ineligible under any technical application of the four year eligibility rule (grades 9-12). (Submitted by John Sumner, designated school representative, The Bishop Whipple schools).

7. Cooperative sponsorship of a MSHSL activity by two or more member schools. This amendment extends opportunities to students in schools where a specific activity is not sponsored and further provides continuing opportunities for youngsters in schools where programs are being affected by declining enrollments, financial limitations and availability of coaches.

DNR Reminds Smelt Fans Of Fishing Rules

With April the usual month for the smelt run along Minnesota's Lake Superior shore, the Department of Natural Resources has reminded smelt fishermen of the regulations.

Smelt may be taken with dip nets and minnow seines. But seines may not be more than 25 feet in length or more than four feet in depth.

Seines may not be used in any stream except the St. Louis river nor may they be used in Lake Superior within 100 feet of the mouth of any stream except the St. Louis river.

This means smelt fishermen in streams are confined to the use of dip nets.

Smelt fishermen are required to have an angling license.

Smelt may be taken without limit and may be bought and sold. However, live smelt may not be possessed or transported.

Situation Want.

Q. Can my Central Vac become clogged?
A. The opening in the cleaning tool is smaller than the diameter of the pipe. Therefore, anything which will pass through the cleaning tools will pass directly through the pipe into the collection center.

Q. What happens to all the dust and dirt?
A. The germ-laden dust that is vacuumed up is drawn out of the living area to the remote collection center located in garage, basement, or utility room. The collection cannister need be emptied only a few times a year.

Q. What about service in my town?
A. The same reputable dealer who installed your Central Vac is qualified to provide service in the event you should ever need it.

Conservation Award Is Given To Carter

In recognition of his "outstanding" environmental record during his first two years in office, President Jimmy Carter has been named "conservationist of the year" by the National Wildlife Federation.

Carter's name heads the list of 18 conservationists honored for their 1978 efforts at NWF's annual awards banquet in Toronto, Ont., March 24. Because his schedule precluded a trip to Canada, the president received his "Connie" in a ceremony at the White House March 19.

The "Connie" is a statuette of a whooping crane, an endangered species symbolizing the conservation cause. Carter is the first president to win the top "conservationist of the year" honor in the 16-year history of the award — regarded by many as the most prestigious in the conservation field.

He won it, said NWF, the nation's largest citizens conservation group, for his overall record on environmental issues, but especially for his fight on "costly and environmentally-unsound pork barrel water projects," his effort to protect the Alaskan wilderness from over-development and his defense of the endangered species act.

First "conservationist of the year" award was given to the late Rachel Carson, author of "Silent Spring", for alerting America to the dangers of pesticides in 1962. Other winners have included Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson, Nelson A. Rockefeller, Orville E. Freeman, Russell W. Peterson, Russell E. Train and several members of Congress.

Other 1978 winners are:

Legislation — Rep. Phillip Burton (D.-Cal.) for his "imaginative and skillful" leadership on conservation-related legislation during his 14 years in Congress, especially his responsibility in 1978 for the successful enactment of the omnibus parks bill.

Communications — Boston Globe for its "consistently informed and enlightened" editorial stands on such subjects as off-shore drilling, the endangered species act, Congressional water projects and the urban environment.

International conservationist of the year — Dr. Ian McTaggart Cowan, dean emeritus and professor of zoology at the University of British Columbia in Vancouver, for "significant and wide-ranging" contributions to the advancement of the conservation cause.

Environmental defense — James Goetz and William Madden, partners in a law firm at Bozeman, Mont., for devoting the major portion of their practice to environmental causes on a reduced fee and sometimes a no-fee basis.

Wildlife conservationist of the year — Dr. Fred G. Evenden of Bethesda, Md., recently retired executive director of the wildlife society, for a "lengthy and effective" career as wildlife biologist and association administrator.

Organization achievement — environmental study conference, comprised of more than 300 members of both Houses of Congress, for its "bi-partisan and timely" analyses of energy and other environmental issues.

Special conservation award (posthumous) — Bing Crosby, for his life-long commitment to the well-being of wildlife which "exemplified the attitude of concerned sportsmen-conservationists."

Special conservation award — William G. Milliken, governor of Michigan, for his "outstanding environmental record" compiled since his inauguration in January, 1969.

Special conservation award — Dr. Elvis J. Stahr of New York, retiring after 11 years as president of the National Audubon Society, for helping to liberalize federal tax law governing legislative activity by nonprofit organizations.

Special conservation award — Jane Hurt Yarn, member of the council on environmental quality in Washington, D.C., and President Carter's principal liason with environmental groups, for a "lifetime of devotion to furthering the cause of natural resource conservation."

Special conservation award — High Country News, a camping weekly published in Lander, Wyo., which since it was founded in 1969 has evolved into a bi-weekly environmental "watch-dog," for its "concentrated and objective" coverage of conservation and natural resources issues.

Special conservation award — Luther J. Carter of Washington, D.C., environmental reporter for the American association for the advancement of science's magazine, "Science", for his "objective and accurate" writing on such issues as energy, land and water resources policy, Alaska, and pollution.

Special conservation award — Ted S. Pettit of Bridgewater, N.J., recently-retired director of the conservation service, Boy Scouts of America, for 25 years of "personal dedication that has made conservation a strong and vital part of the scouting movement."

Special conservation award — South Carolina Wildlife magazine, published by the South Carolina wildlife and marine resources department, for its "dedication to educating the public to the value of natural resources and to the need for conservation, protection, and restoration of wildlife."

Special conservation award — Florida wildlife federation, for its long record of involvement in protecting and restoring the wetlands of southern Florida.

Distinguished service award — Iowa wildlife federation, for its successful campaign for a state bill prohibiting throw-away bottles.

Distinguished service award — Virginia wildlife federation, for "outstanding growth — by 6,000 members—and effectiveness" over the past year.

BAND INSTRUCTOR Orville Eidem, who served as clinician for the band clinic held in Thief River Falls Saturday, puts members of the Gary band through its paces on stage at the Lincoln high school auditorium. At the extreme right is Harley Sommerfeld, band instructor at Moorhead public schools, who was an alto saxophone soloist for the clinic concert Saturday evening.

WAUBUN HIGH SCHOOL was among four area high schools participating in the band clinic held in Thief River Falls Saturday under sponsorship of the retail business association of the chamber of commerce. These members got together during warm-up prior to going on stage for their clinic session. Tax Return "Help Line" Available

If you haven't mailed in your Minnesota income tax return yet, you can still get last minute help, according to state revenue commissioner Clyde Allen.

Allen said that as many as half a million Minnesotans may be waiting until the last minute to file their state tax returns.

More than 1,200,000 people have already filed, he said. That's about 15,000 less than the number of people who filed by this date last year.

If you're having trouble filling out your state tax form, Allen suggests you call the department of revenue for help. If you live in the Twin Cities metro area, you can get answers to your questions by calling 296-3781. If you live outside the metro area, you can use the department's toll-free number, 800-652-9094.

Last-minute filers are advised that the phone lines will be open extra hours. On Saturday, April 14, the hours are from 9 a.m. until 1 p.m. On Monday, April 16, the last day to file, the phone lines will stay open from 8 a.m. until 6:45 p.m.

Farm Bureau Opposes Change In Food Law

Proposed changes by the federal food and drug administration (FDA) in standards of identity for substitute foods are being met with strong objection from the state's largest general farm organization.

Minnesota farm bureau federation has filed a statement in opposition with the FDA, says the federation's president, Merlyn Lokensgard, a St. Peter Farmer. While entered on behalf of MFBF's near 36,000 member families, Lokensgard points out that the statement is "especially relevant to our many dairy producers."

Farm bureau doesn't object to new food products entering the market, explains the state farm bureau leader. "But we do believe that these products should stand on their own merits," Lokensgard adds.

According to farm bureau, adoption of the proposed changes would "legalize the adulteration of dairy products; authorize the manufacture and sale of fabricated milk, cream and cheese substitutes formulated to be as similar to the dairy product being simulated as is technically possible; and sanction use of the name of the imitated product in the name of the substitute."

While the nature of the FDA proposal is of "obvious concern" to Minnesota dairy farmers, Lokensgard says its adoption has "much broader" implications. "The ultimate loser will be the consumer," he says.

Area Students To Attend NCC

Matthew Oppegaard, son of Mr. and Mrs. Grand Oppegaard, and Diane Lusignan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmo Lusignan, all of Thief River Falls and Craig Pahlen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Pahlen of Plummer have been accepted for admission at Northland community college in Thief River Falls for the 1979 fall quarter classes.

Matthew and Diane will be graduating from Lincoln high school this spring and plan to continue their education in the field of engineering and home economics, respectively. Craig, who will graduate from Pershing high school, plans to enter the field of wildlife management.

Select 4-H'ers To Attend '79 Short Course

Sue Spengler and Jim Rooker have been selected by the Pennington county 4-H leader's council to attend the citizenship short course in Washington, D.C. They will join other 4-H'ers from Minnesota to spend the week of July 28 to August 4 in the nation's capital.

Sue is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Verne Spengler and an eight year member of the Silverton 4-H. Jim, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Rooker, is an eight year member of the New Solum 4-H.

Selected as alfernate was Ruth Dobias of the Black River 4-H. Ruth is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Dovias and a 10 year 4-H member.

The U.S. Labor Department under Title III of CETA offers special federal employement and training assistance to, Indians, migrant and seasonal farmworkers, older workers, and others with particular job disadvantages.

RL Electric Co-op Annual Meeting Held

Red Lake Electric cooperative held its 41st annual meeting in Thief River Falls Wednesday, April 4, with over 550 members and friends in attendance. Elected to the board of directors for three-year terms to represent districts 2, 7 and 8, respectively, were Robert G. Olson, Middle River; Verner Arveson, Oklee; and Raymond Parnow, Goodridge.

In the organizational meeting of the board Parnow was elected president with Richard Weiss selected vice-president and Millard Dailey chosen secretary-treasurer.

Capital credit checks were available at the meeting for the distribution to the members who earned capital credits in 1965. The allocations and notices of capital credits for the 1978 year were also available.

For 1978 the cooperative recorded kilowatt hour sales of over 82 million and total revenue of $2,321,556. The cooperative serves 4,711 member consumers on 2,482 miles of distribution lines on the four-county area of Red Lake, Pennington, and portions of Polk and Marshall.

Directors of the cooperative, including those elected at the annual meeting, are Raymond Parnow, Helmer Lind, Millard Dailey, Norman Dufault, Lanis Karel, Verner Arveson, Veral Mosbeck, Robert G. Olson and Richard Weiss. Jaroslav Kruta of Red Lake Falls serves as the cooperative attorney and Charles M. Kleven is cooperative manager.

IRS To Be Open Extra Hours For Tax Assistance

If you've put off doing your federal tax return, the IRS will be open extra hours for answers to those last minute tax questions. Returns are normally due on April 15, but since that date falls on a Sunday this year, the due date for 1978 returns is Monday, April 16.

To help people using that last weekend to prepare their returns, telephone assistance will be available from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. on Saturday, April 14 and from 8 a.m. to 6:45 p.m. on that final day, April 16. In Minnesota, the toll-free number is 1-800-652-9062.

File Annual Earnings Report By April 16

Social security beneficiaries who earned over the exempt amount in 1978 are reminded that April 16 is the deadline for filing an annual report of earnings.

People 65 or older who earned $4,000 or less in 1978 are exempt from filing the report. Those under age 65 who earned $3,240 or less in 1978 are also exempt.

If earnings exceeded the exempt amount a report must be filed with the social security administration by April 16 or a penalty could be assessed. Phalen stressed that filing an income tax return does not satisfy the requirement for filing the earnings report with social security.

Anyone wanting more information should contact any social security office.

School Board Closes 1918 Rooms In Lincoln High

Closing of rooms in the 918 addition to Lincoln high school for student use was authorized by the Thief River Falls board of education at its regular session Monday evening in the school district service center. The closing was recommended by Frank Frankoski, structural engineer with the state department of education, following inspection of the school last week.

The board also acted on Frankoski's advice in voting to close the 1910 addition to Lincoln as quickly as the present AVTI space in the Lincoln complex becomes available. That will not be until the new vocational addition is completed and departments are moved next fall.

Actions were taken by the board following building inspections by an architect-engineer employed by the board, further investigation by Fred Christiansen of the state department of education and last week's more thorough study by the department's structural engineer.

Frank Hamerlinck, Lincoln principal, said that the timing of the recommendation fit with the school schedule to permit classes to be moved. Ninth grade social studies classes taught by Cal Lindberg during the first two hours of the school day were moved to the home economics department area which was vacant during those hours while Janet Shaw teaches at Franklin school.

Lindberg's community action program (CAP) activities were moved to an English classroom which was vacant over the noon hour. His social studies classes during the last two hours of the day were moved to an English classroom also vacant during those two hours.

A large upstairs room which has been used as an assembly area and most recently for teaching health and first aid in physical education classes under the instruction of William McGann and Sylvia Sjoberg, will be partitioned off to provide two classrooms. The health and first aid classes were scheduled to end today, Hamerlinck said, and physical education classes to begin other activities.

The two classrooms to be created by installation of the partition will house social studies classes taught by Cecelia Stoltman and social studies and German classes taught by John Kopari. A partition which had been in the area some years ago was removed previously to create the large assembly area, Hamerlinck said.

Vocal music room will be abandoned with vocal classes to be held in the school auditorium for the remainder of the year. Classroom training for driver education has also been completed for this year and that part of the building will also be vacated, the principal added.

In budget discussion Monday the board directed the administration to proceed with an additional $150,000 in cut-backs and use of an additional $150,000 of the fund balance to bring the 1979-80 budget into balance. This action was ordered in place of presenting an operational levy issue before the public.

Supt. William Corliss noted that the district will complete the 1978-79 school year with a fund balance of $350,000 or about $50,000 more than had been budgeted last year. He has maintained over the past several years that the fund balance should not be permitted to drop below $250,000 or cash flow problems could force the district into a

Engage Firm For 1st Street Bridge Project

At the recommendation of county engineer Arvid Olson, Pennington county board members voted at their regular meeting Tuesday, April 10, to accept the quotation of Stewart & Walker engineering firm of Thief River Falls and engage the firm as engineers on the First street bridge widening project being undertaken by the county. One of five firms to submit a quotation, Stewart & Walker was the only firm to define its fee as a flat rate rather than on a percentage basis and the $12,000 quotation was judged to be lowest of the five.

Construction of five small bridges over ditches in the county was approved by the board to go into the planning stages. Of the five bridges two would be township bridges, one over judicial ditch 18 and one over judicial ditch 13; and three, over judicial ditches 68, 43 and 32, would be county bridges. All of the five approved projects will qualify for bridge replacement funds. This first approval by the board merely programs the projects into construction plans and actual replacement of the existing structures will not take place for some time.

Prior to commencement of its regular meeting the county board met exclusively with highway officials to discuss problems in the operation of the department. Details of an estimated hour of discussion between board members and the highway department have been withheld, although it has been stated that the meeting was called in anticipation of the need for some disciplinary action by the board.

In other business, the board called for bids for county-wide graveling, petroleum products and equipment rental with bids to be opened May 8 at 2 p.m. and discussion was held regarding negotiations with a newly formed law enforcement union. Peter Bergquist, an associate of the Minnesota counties staff, is representing Pennington county in the negotiations and

Council Discusses Liquor Questions

Several recommendations by the liquor committee resulted in action by the Thief River Falls city council at its regular meeting held Tuesday, April 10. As a result of an April 6 committee meeting, liquor committee members requested that the council grant permission for city staff to undertake a study of alternatives for remodeling or relocation of the city liquor facility.

In the past months the city has given some consideration to purchasing the present Red Owl facility at 2nd and Main and relocating the liquor store in that building. Wagner corporation has also approached the city with a request to buy the portion of city land on which the utilities pole yard is located and suggested that the city use the present utilities, park and recreation building as a liquor store facility.

The requested study would examine those and other alternatives for expansion, remodeling or relocation of the municipal liquor store, estimating the costs that would be involved in each. Council members voted to grant the committee permission to undertake such a study at a cost to the city of no more than $500.

Also at the recommendation of the liquor committee, 50 cent raises were granted to the part-time help at the liquor store bringing the salaries up from $3.50 to $4 per hour for the various part-time employees to $4 to $4.50 per hour.

Council also went on record opposing Senate File No. 513 which would abolish 3.2 beer and allow strong beer to be sold in all licensed retail outlets and instructed city clerk Jerry Wigness to draft a letter to Senator Marvin Hanson and Representative John Corbid outlining the city's opposition to the proposed bill.

In other business, the council acted on recommendations of the tax and assessments committee agreeing to assess lots 1-6 in block 3 of Gunderson's first addition for sewer and water at the time the lots are sold with interest accruing at a rate of six per cent from May 11, 1976; reimbursing Julian Gunderson $1,329 for installation of an oversize water main on State Ave.; agreeing to assess blocks 1, 2 and 3 of Gunderson's first addition for storm sewer at the time the lots are sold; adding the storm sewer assessment for block 4 in the Gunderson first addition to the assessment roll for a previous project with a six per cent interest-rate applying effective January 1, 1980; and deferring sewer and water assessment on unplatted property in block 4 until that area is developed.

Four members of the Pennington county historical society board, Randall Noper, Margaret Weigelt, Inga Geving and Kermit Hanson, were present to request support from the city in the construction of restroom facilities at the Pioneer Village and in the construction of a roof for the machinery building on the grounds. Following discussion, the council instructed city planner Jack Quinlivan to work with the historical society in drawing up plans for the proposed

Northland Enrollment Down 100 From 1977-78

Enrollment figures at Northland community college this week show a probable drop of about 100 full-time equivalent students from spring quarter a year ago and 130 from the record 1978-79 winter quarter, according to information recorded in the college administrative offices.

Classes at Northland began Monday following a nearly three-week lapse due to a strike by members of the Minnesota community college faculty association.

Currently available figures for the spring quarter this year show the full-time equivalency to be 225 to 260 students as compared with 362 FTE in the spring quarter of 1977-78. Winter quarter enrollment this year had been a record 392 as compared with 351 a year ago.

Full-time equivalency is determined by totaling the number of credits for which students are enrolled at the college and dividing that number by 15. Full-time equivalency can be affected by reduced credit load by individual students attending as well as reduction of number of students enrolled.

Head count of students taking credit courses through Northland college has been as high as 855 during the fall quarter of this year.

Two Vacancies Will Occur On School Board

With filings for the office of Thief River Falls school board member to close Tuesday, April 24, two vacancies will exist on the board and nobody has as yet filed for election.

Clyde Christensen, who has served as a member of the board for the past seven years, told the Times this week that he will not seek reelection to the board. Wallace Sparby, a nine-year board veteran whose term also expires this year, announced previously that he will not be a candidate.

An earlier Times story erroneously gave the final filing date as May 14. In order for candidates to have their names appear on the ballot the filing must be accomplished with the clerk of the district, Kenneth Murphy, or at the office of the superintendent of schools in the school district service center on or before Tuesday, April 24. School election day will be May 15.

Last day to vote an absentee ballot will be Monday, May 14.

St. Bernard's Holy Week Services Set

Holy Week services got underway at St. Bernard's Catholic church of Thief River Falls Sunday, April 8, when Christ's entry into Jereusalem was reenacted with parishioners carrying plams and participating in a procession at the masses. Worship services for the week will follow the traditions of the church but a shortened and up-dated form will allow for more participation by the laity.

Services commemorating the Lord's last supper will be held Thursday, April 12, at 5:30 p.m. with the principal mass at 8 p.m. The sacrament of reconciliation will be available one hour before each mass and also from 11 a.m. to 12 noon. A night vigil will be held from 9:30 to midnight to honor Christ's presence in the eucharist.

Holy Thursday masses will be held at 6 p.m. at St. Anne's church in Goodridge and at 8:30 p.m. at St. Clement's at Grygla. Both services will be preceded by a passover meal.

An ecumenical service commemorating the suffering and death of Jesus will be held at 1 p.m. at Trinity Lutheran church at 1 p.m. Friday. St. Bernard's will also hold two Good Friday services with the reading of St. John's gospel, intercession for the world and veneration of the cross.

An 8:30 p.m. Easter vigil is scheduled Saturday at which the Easter candle symbolizing Christ as the light of the world will be lighted. The service will include the reading of old testament prophecies, the blessing of water for baptism, the congregation's renewal of its baptismal vows and the baptism and confirmation of both adults and children. The Easter vigil will be concluded with an anticipated celebration of the resurrection Mass with communion. This will fulfill the Easter Sunday worship obligation.

Schedule for Easter Sunday includes masses at 7, 8:30, 10:15 and 11:30 a.m.

projects and in completing applications for grants that might be available to help finance the projects.

A request was also made by the historical society for donation of the platform being removed from the Burlington Northern depot site to the Pioneer Village. Council granted the request and instructed city forces to deliver the planks taken up from the platform to the historical village.

At the recommendation of the planning commission preliminary plat of Thief River Falls development company was approved; the city engineer was requested to prepare a proposal for a preliminary study of drainage problems in Rustad's addition, Arthur's first, second and third additions, and Gunderson-Iverson's first and second additions; and the completion date for a marketing study by Brauer & Associates was pushed back one month to allow the company to get exact square footages of existing retail space.

John Zukatis appeared before the council to inquire about what types of permits were required in order to operate a flea market in Thief River Falls. According to the city code each individual participating would have to purchase a peddler's license at a $5 fee, but the council requested the city attorney to draw up an amendment to the ordinance that would allow for operation of things such as the flea market and art-in-the-park without the individual purchase of peddlers licenses by participants.

At the request of Albert Koop the council discussed the possibility of placing a temporary four-way stop sign at the intersection of 1st and LaBree. It was decided, however, that such an action would hinder the traffic and cause a back-up of cars during rush hours. Police chief Ken Froschheiser was requested to try using an officer to direct traffic at that intersection to ease the left turn problem. Council members also voted to install an overhead yellow caution light at the hospital crosswalk as a temporary measure until a planned new signal system is installed. Cost is estimated at $500.

Council also approved the adoption of softball tournament rules; approved the signing of a proposed lighting operations and maintenance plan agreement; passed an ordinance annexing 3.29 acres of land in Myhrer's first addition; set May 8 as the hearing date for vacation of one-half of 14th St.; and gave final project approval for the medical office building project.

Council members were informed that no bids had been received on the city scale and city clerk Jerry Wigness was given authority to proceed with any negotiations involving the scale should he be approached.

Members were also informed that some progress was being made in the development of an assessment district and formula for proposed parking and lighting improvements in downtown Thief River Falls. Owners of commercial property in the downtown area will soon be contacted about exact square footage of their property and an informational meeting is being planned prior to any hearing.

At the request of the Pennington county board the city sanitation committee was instructed to meet with the county board to discuss the status of the sanitary landfill.

Reports were presented regarding the Red River dam and a meeting of the customers of Western Area Power Administration held in Sioux Falls. The report regarding the dam was referred to superintendent of utilities John T. Anderson and city engineer Doug Stewart and the power administration meeting will be more fully discussed at an adjourned regular meeting set for 7 p.m. April 19. Also to be discussed at that meeting is a list of proposed projects including proposed street improvements.

Bemidji Offers Honor Program To Scholars

Students with high academic and motivational interests can now apply for a special educational opportunity at Bemidji state university.

According to Dr. Michael Field, BSU is again accepting inquiries for enrollment in the scholastically creative honors program. Only 40-50 scholars are admitted to this course of study annually, but as Dr. Field points out, those qualifying are in for a rich and rewarding experience. In Minnesota, BSU is one of very few state institutions offering an extensive honors program.

"Since its creation in 1967, the honors program has had as its goal the pursuit of excellence," Dr. Field comments. "In terms of pre-professional training, I have no doubts that this gives a person a great advantage whether he is going on to graduate school or entering the job market."

The program is currently looking for potential students with a sense of adventure, and those who exhibit a superior academic average. Students applying should be ready to exercise initiative and accept responsibility.

Designed to allow freedom in selecting a direction of study, honors by-passes much of the BSU general education requirement. Six courses totalling 18 credit hours are the only such work which must be completed, and these are special honors classes offered in an interdisciplinary vein.

A course specifically created for in-coming freshmen, for instance, is "The Unity and Diversity of Knowledge." Beyond this, the progressive student will encounter broad readings in three areas: natural science, social studies and history, philosophy, literature and the arts.

A new dimension added to the honors program is the faculty seminar series. Through these lecture presentations, BSU professionals share their philosophies and educational insights with students and peers.

Dr. Field, who is chairman of the honors council, feels the entire program concept helps establish a sense of community between the students involved.

It's evident that when the atmosphere is not purely competitive, when students work cooperatively as well as competitively, the learning environment is much more conducive to academic success," he states. "The program is demanding, but I feel the individual's potential becomes well developed."

Information about the program is available by contacting Dr. Field, Hagg-Sauer hall, Bemidji State University, Bemidji, MN 56601. For those wishing to apply, a short letter should be addressed to the honors council, Hagg-Sauer hall, and two letters of recommendation should also be sent. These letters should be from people qualified to make an evaluation of academic capabilities and past performance of the applicant.

MARK HANSON (right) of Fosston, captured first place in the area one Soil and Water Conservation District speech contest held in Thief River Falls Saturday. Mark was one of seven senior division participants in the contest who advanced to the area contest following county competition. The assigned topic in the contest was "Soil Conservation: Who Benefits, Who Pays." Hanson was awarded $20 in prize money by director of the area one SWCD, Leonard Skaar (right) and will now advance to state competition April 21. Earning second place in the senior division was Janet Hagen of Roseau.

Proposes Bill On Legal Action Against State

Sen. Marv Hanson of Hallock has introduced legislation to allow actions of the state and state officials to be challenged in local courts.

"State law and supreme court decisions now require any lawsuits challenging actions taken by the state or state officials to be brought in Ramsey county in St. Paul," Sen. Hanson said. "The ridiculous result of this is shown in the recent matter of the city of Roseau vs. the commissioner of the department of natural resources.

"The suit was brought in Roseau county. The department petitioned to have it removed to Ramsey county. District Judge Warren Saetre cited the law and prior cases that gave him no discretion but to grant the change to Ramsey county. The city of Roseau then petitioned the Ramsey district court to bring the case back to Roseau county. That petition was granted and the case is now back in Roseau county.

"That's an absurd route to have to take," Hanson stated. "Our courts and our judges all across Minnesota are just as qualified and able to address these matters as the judges in Ramsey county. Furthermore, having these cases heard in St. Paul requires witnesses and interested parties to have to travel long distrances at great expense and inconvenience.

"I feel very strongly that on all public matters, citizens shouldn't have to go to their government, but rather that the governoment should be coming out to the citizens. Also, with the courts in the metropolitan areas as clogged as they are, many of these matters would undoubtedly be delayed for considerable period of time.

"My proposed legislation would give our local judges the discretion to hear these matters. There would be no further automatic transfers to Ramsey county," Sen. Hanson concluded.

Jourdain Faces Challenge From Recall Petition

Roger Jourdain, chairman of the tribal council of the Red Lake band of Chippewa Indians for more than 20 years, faces a challenge from a group which is circulating a petition to recall the tribal constitution.

Jourdain has headed the tribal council since the tribe switched to an elected form of government from the former tribal chief arrangement. At a meeting of Red Lake band members living in Minneapolis, Don Cook said that about 500 of the necessary 1,000 signatures on a petition for recall of the constitution had been obtained, according to an Associated Press report.

The petition will be submitted to the Secretary of the Interior if and when the 1,000 signatures are obtained, Cook said, in the hope that a new tribal constitution would be written. The petition also asks for the removal of judges on the tribal court and the removal of Celestine Maus, the Bureau of Indian Affairs superintendent for the reservation.

According to the AP report, petition backers allege that the tribal council has not held regular meetings but has been paid for meetings. They also complain about "bonus" payments made to Jourdain, council members and a few other band members in 1976, 1977 and 1978.

Cook, a former Indian liaison officer for Minneapolis, said the petition drive started at a March 26 meeting in Red Lake where 189 people were in attendance. The meeting came five days after the tribal council suspended Stephanie Hanson, tribal treasurer, for "disrupting the peace and tranquility" of the Red Lake reservation.

Mrs Hanson, who was elected last year, said the action violated the tribal constitution. After taking office Nov. 9 Mrs. Hanson questioned several expenditures by the Jourdain administration, and, in one case withheld payment of the council members monthly per diem. She claimed they had not met and were not entitled to pay. Jourdain subsequently ordered the director of the Red Lake Comprehensive Health Services to pay the council members and four other individuals from health funds, according to a February 22 letter signed by Jourdain.

In a letter to band members Jourdain called the bonuses "cost of living" payments in lieu of pay raises. He said the money came from "administrative" funds and not from tribal treasury funds.

Ken Stately, a band member who chaired the Minneapolis meeting, said people on the reservation "are afraid to speak out. If they speak at a public meeting, they're out of a job."

Stately urged the 19 people at the meeting to register to vote for future tribal elections.

To the Editor:

It seems the high cost of energy is always in the news. Yet, we hear little or nothing from Congressman Stangeland on the subject. The oil cutback in Iran accounted for a five per cent reduction in oil supplies. Saudi Arabia increased its production by two and one-half per cent so the total cutback accounts to two and one-half per cent. The oil companies have used this oil crisis to reduce supplies to dealers by 30 per cent and more. Once the price goes to a dollar a gallon, you can be certain there will be plenty of gas.

But why hasn't Congressman Stangeland said anything on the subject? He voted for big oil 100 per cent of the time in the last session of Congress (Atlantic Richfield Oil company ratings). "I wonder if it has anything to do with the fact that he received contributions from Shell, Amoco, Getty, Union and Sun Oil companies?

Sincerely,
Jim Tunheim
Kennedy, MN

To The Editor:

With your permission, I would like to present a few thoughts and afterthoughts about the ice show performance a week or so ago.

I certainly agree with your editorial and the comments of many, many people that it was a wonderful performance. It is really hard to appreciate properly the countless hours of practice and direction that went to produce it - and the dedication of both children and instructors. It gave real enjoyment to a very large number of people, who I am sure are willing to say a big "thank you" to those participating.

But with that said, I would like to put in a plea for some other children those millions whose wildest dreams would not encompass anything like this. Our children are healthy, well-fed, happy and a joy to watch in a "Fantasy on Ice". These others are struggling and thankful to obtain even enough food to live and a bare minimum of clothing. Many do not.

A "CARE" release tells that 50 per cent (yes, one-half!) of all children born in India die before their sixth birthday. Of those that live, some 40 per cent show moderate to severe malnutrition. Thousands become blind each year because what food they have is so deficient in Vitamin A. Many have little or no education. Their parents love them, too -- think of the agony when they must watch them suffer and die (perhaps those that die are the fortunate ones!).

And India is only one country. Africa, Latin America and large parts of Asia besides India have areas much the same. It has been said repeatedly that over half the world goes to bed (if they have a bed!) hungry each night.

1979 is the "Year of the Child". In our happiness and joy here, please — let us remember all these others — not only to try and alleviate extreme hunger now, but to help them help themselves. God is our judge — do we dare not to share of our blessings here? Give through your church relief agencies, through CARE, through any responsible organization — but GIVE!

Thank you for the chance to express myself in this matter.

Low Back Pain Common In U.S. Residents

Low back pain is a common disorder, according to the Arthritis foundation. About 80 per cent of Americans have it at some time in their lives.

While one of several kinds of arthritis can be an underlying cause of low back pain, it is neither the only one nor even the most common, foundation investigators report. Poor posture probably leads the list that also includes fractures, tumors and disc problems.

Medical attention is needed for accurate diagnosis, and rest followed by some kind of medication, exercise or physical therapy are usually directed, the Arthritis foundation has found.

A leaflet published by the Minnesota chapter of the Arthritis foundation is available without charge to those who call the foundation's toll-free number, 1-800-552-1278. Answers to other questions about arthritis will also be sought.

Combined public support, usually through the United Way, makes the free services of the Arthritis foundation possible in most Minnestoa communities.

Sabo Will Attend Bemidji State

Lincoln high school senior Scott Sabo announced Tuesday that he will attend Bemidji State University next year where he'll compete in both hockey and baseball for the Beavers.

Sabo, equally outstanding for the Prowlers in both hockey, where he played center, and baseball, where he's a premiere left-handed pitcher, will receive a financial aid package at Bemidji where he was considered the number one recruit for coach Bob Peters' NAIA champion hockey team.

Several schools contacted Sabo during the recently-completed 1978-79 hockey season, including Bemidji, Gustavus Adolphus, University of Illinois-Chicago Circle, Brown, Princeton, WCHA champion North Dakota and NCAA champion Minnesota. He visited Bemidji, Gustavus and Chicago Circle before making his choice.

"It seemed like they (Bemidji) were the ones most interested in me," said Sabo. "Coach Peters has a good good program there."

As major college schools, Minnesota and North Dakota carried plenty of prestige, but as Sabo said, "Sure, it's nice to say you're going to a big school, but what good is it to go there if you don't get to play. You've got to stop and think. . .are you going to get to play or not. In my case I might not get to play that much at Minnesota or North Dakota.

Both Minnesota and North Dakota, along with Bemidji, talked to Sabo during the 1979 Minnesota state high school hockey tournament, but neither the Gophers or Sioux followed up their efforts until North Dakota telephoned recently, indicating they would like Scott to come in as a walk-on instead of a recruit on scholarship.

A state tournament appearance would have likely brought more interest in Sabo, but a slight shoulder dislocation he suffered in the Prowlers' 5-1 Section 8 tournament semifinal win over Fergus Falls might have played a big role in Thief River Falls' 4-2 championship game loss to Roseau. He played against the Rams, but with only one arm, really.

NWAC Record Is Questioned

Only one record was set during the seventh annual Northwest Athletic Conference indoor track meet Tuesday in the Winter Shows building at Crookston, and unfortunately there's a cloud over an outstanding 10:07.8 two-mile run credited to Bemidji's Brian Kraft that eclipsed a 10:17.4 NWAC and building record set by the Lumberjacks' John Wubbles in 1973.

It takes 18 trips around the small indoor track at Crookston to complete a two-mile run. There are some observers that feel Tuesday's race was miscounted and came up a lap short. It seems that after indicating three laps remained, the gun lap (signalling the final lap) was sounded the next time around.

A slow field and a poor track did not challenge any NWAC or building records until the surprising two-mile times were announced. And then not only Kraft, but Tom Joslin of Bemidji with a 10:09.9 and Mark Larson of Thief River Falls with a 10:10.1 were clocked under Wubbles' 1973 performance.

Three days earlier, during Saturday's girls invitational meet in the same building, Breckenridge coaches argued that meet officials miscounted and forced their two-mile winner to run an extra lap, depriving her of a record.

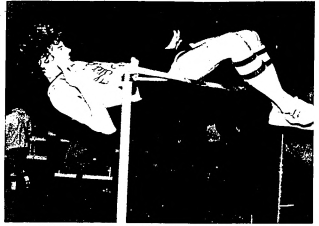
Another lap would have added about 30 seconds to the times of Kraft, Joslin and Larson which in all truthfulness would seem to be more in line with the rest of the day's performances. That's not to say those three aren't very fine distance runners; they certainly are. But it's too bad that doubt hangs over their Tuesday times.

Miscellaneous

+Steve Easton of Thief River Falls is a member of the Dickinson state college baseball team.

+ Sandy Schob of Thief River Falls, a junior at Moorhead State University, is a member of the Dragons' softball team. She's a Lincoln high school and Northland community college graduate.

+ Cathy Kirkvold, whose outside shooting produced 17 points in Bemidji's 43-23 Region 8AA Sub Region 4 girls high school basketball tournament championship game win over Thief River Falls, became the first Bemidji girl to be named to an all-state squad when she was selected for WCCO radio honors.



CLEARING THE bar at 5-10, Thief River Falls' Jeff Oseid placed third in the event during Tuesday's Northwest Athletic Conference indoor track meet held in the Winter Shows building at Crookston. Bemidji's Rob Egersdorf won the high jump competition with a 6-0 effort. The Lumberjacks won the team title for the second straight year.

Goddard, Lakers Eying Canadian Hockey Titles

Times Sports Editor

Five months of hockey hasn't quite satisfied Thief River Falls' Tom Goddard, a member of the Warroad Lakers intermediate AA hockey team. Goddard would like nothing better than to have the 1978-79 Lakers season extended yet another month — into the Canadian Hardy Cup playoff finals.

Goddard's Lakers, Manitoba Assiniboine Hockey League (MAHL) regular season champions, earned a spot in the Western Canadian playoffs by sweeping three games from Thompson in a best-of-five Manitoba provincial playoff series completed Friday that gave Warroad the McDermott Shield for the sixth time. No other team has won the trophy more than four times since it originated in 1920.

Warroad will leave for Quesnel, British Columbia April 18 to compete in the Western Canadian playoffs. It'll be a six-team round-robin affair featuring teams from Manitoba (Warroad), Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia. Prince George, B.C. is the defending Western Canadian and Hardy Cup champions. Prince George, North Shore of Vancouver and Warroad are all considered title contenders this year. The Lakers meet the Saskatchewan representative in the first round Thurs., April 19.

"With the team we have this year we should be right in it," pointed out Goddard, a 1973 Lincoln high school graduate and a member of the University of North Dakota hockey team from 1973-77. "We're going with a lot more depth than we had last year. We've got four real good scoring lines. That's a big plus."

The Lakers, beaten by Thompson in the 1978 Manitoba showdown, were aided by the recent addition of Dave Christian, Mike Burggraf and Conway Marvin who joined the team after their WCHA champion University of North Dakota Sioux completed their season with a 4-2 loss to Minnesota in the NCAA finals.

In his second year with the Lakers, Goddard has been at it since practice started back on Oct. 20, missing only three of the Lakers' first 52 games when a cut he received on the elbow became infected.

Warroad is still involved in the MAHL playoffs against St. Boniface, carrying a 45-7 record and a 2-0 edge into the third game of the best-of-five series last night (Tuesday) at Warroad. Fourth game will be played tonight at St. Boniface.

Goddard admits it has been a "Long year," since he's been making the trips to Warroad by himself following a severe hand injury suffered by Tony Dorn, Jr., a fellow Thief River Falls member of the Lakers, early in the year. They shared the drives a year ago.

"It gets a little tough," says Goddard about the solo jaunts that found him stranded twice, once in 35 degree below zero weather midway between Morris and Emerson, Man. (In other words, "In the middle of nowhere," says Goddard). "I wasn't worried, though. I carry everything I need — sleeping bag and stuff." The owner of TG Sporting Goods didn't have to test his merchandise, however, since a motorist happened along and helped him get his vehicle started.

Ranking among the top ten MAHL scorers, Goddard, who normally plays a wing on a line with Jim Cole and Warren Harrison, says he's satisfied with his play this year. "I would have liked to score more goals, but I played at least parts of 20-to-25 games on defense because of some injuries we had," he explained.

A Western Canadian championship would send the Lakers into the Hardy Cup finals "out east" beginning April 27. Warroad won the Hardy Cup in 1964 and 1974 and had a runner-up finish with Dorn in the line-up in 1976.

Goddard is already making plans to play with the Lakers again next winter, although he would rather be someplace else — Lake Placid, N.Y. where the 1980 Winter Olympics will be held. He participated in last summer's sports festival at Colorado Springs, Colo. and, is hoping U.S. Olympic hockey team coach Herb Brooks will include him as one of the 68 skaters invited back to Colorado Springs for this summer's tryouts. Of those 68, 30 will be taken to the team's training site — Metropolitan Sports Center in Bloomington — where five more players will be cut.

"Competition will be tough," admits Goddard, "and there's some political stuff involved there, too."

Tennis Team Beats Pirates 4-1 Indoors

Crookston shuffled its lineup and avoided a shutout, but the Pirates couldn't avoid a loss Tuesday as Thief River Falls collected a 4-1 victory in a high school tennis match played in the Grand Forks tennis center.

Thief River Falls swept the singles competition as Bill Jury beat Rick Ohman 6-1, 6-0 at number one. Mitch Rustad matched those same numbers against Dave Hoff at number two; and Bill Michalek stopped Jeff Melsa 6-2, 6-2 at number three.

The Pirates, who dropped their top two singles players into first doubles, came up with a winner there as Kelly Brown and John Erie knocked off Tom Bjorkman and Bill Holmes 6-2, 6-3.

The Pirates, who dropped their top two singles players into first doubles, came up with a winner there as Kelly Brown and John Erie knocked off Tom Bjorkman and Bill Holmes 6-2, 6-3.

Mark Collins and Mark Lundin of the Prowlers defeated Bill Straw and Paul Sullivan 6-4, 6-1 in second doubles to earn the praise of Thief River Falls coach Whitey Olson.

"Our number two doubles played with a lot of gusto and played very well," said Olson. "Our singles weren't really tested."

It was the first dual meet outing of the year for the Prowlers who opened the 1979 season Satuday with a victory in a qudrangular tournament at Brainerd. Weather permitting, Thief River Falls will venture outside for the first time this spring Tuesday at Detroit Lakes beginning at 3:30 p.m.

Bemidji Wins 1979 NWAC Indoor Track Meet Title

As expected, Bemidji ran off with the 1979 Northwest Athletic Conference indoor track title Tuesday in the Winter Shows building at Crookston. But despite a 19-point victory margin, Bemidji coach Ray Farwell was far from satisfied.

"It didn't go according to plan," said Farwell. "Just about everything that could go wrong did. They weren't psychologically prepared. I just don't have anything good to say."

Bemidji finished with 73½ points, taking the lead after 10 of the 15 events were completed and then pulling away from what had been a tight three-team battle by winning four of the final five races. East Grand Forks put on a surprisingly strong show for 54½ points, followed by Crookston with 49, Fergus Falls 36 and Thief River Falls 24.

Thus, Bemidji becomes the first team in the seven-year history of the NWAC indoor meet to successfully defend its crown. But as Farwell indicated, things weren't all roses for the Lumberjacks who lost a pair of sure first place finishes on disqualifications. Hurdle ace Jay Sharpe picked an inopportune time to commit his first false start of the year in the 70-yard highs since this year's new rule ousts a competitor on his first instead of his second false start. Bemidji was also an apparent easy winner in the sprint medley relay but lost six points when the Lumberjacks were disqualified for a lane violation.

However, Bemidji did come up with eight wins, including a double triumph by Mark Delaney who ran the 220-yard dash in 25.1 and covered the 440 in 56.0. Rob Egersdorf took the high jump with a 6-0 effort, Sharpe won the 70-yard intermediate hurdles in 9.1 and the 1,520-yard relay team of Nelson Rotto, Ray Rentz, Duane Fischer and Delany ran a 3:13.6.

But Bemidji's real power rests with the distance runners. Fischer won the 880 in 2:09.5, with the Lumberjacks also picking off third and fourth place. Ron Wolfe took the mile in 4:44.0 and Brian Kraft set an NWAC and building record with a 10:07.8 in the two-mile where teammate Tom Joslin was just two seconds behind.

"That's our strength — distance," confirmed Farwell. "Our secret? Hard-working kids."

Crookston had winners in Garry Kotts, 9.7 in the 70-yard high hurdles; Steve Johnson, 7.9 in the 70-yard dash; and the sprint medley relay in 3:32.0. East Grand Forks winners were Keith Solem with an impressive 50-1¼ shot put effort and the 760-yard relay in 1:27.2. Fergus Falls winners included Brian Bruns with a 19-4¼ long jump and Scott Mesker with a 10-6 pole vault.

Thief River Falls was shut out of the winner's circle, but senior Mark Larson was credited with a school record 10:10.1 in a third place two-mile run. That erased a 10:15 mark set by Lincoln's Brian Phelps in 1974. Lonnie Olson's 10:37 in 1973 was recognized as the school's indoor record.

Coach John Kopari still found some satisfaction in the Prowlers' second outing of the season. "I think we've seen some improvement even over the first week," he said. If a few more things could have gone a little better for us we could have beat Fergus Falls.

Thief River Falls' best shot at a win was probably in the sprint medley relay, but the baton exchange between Jim Shirley and Tom Ose was dropped. Tony Brosseeau and Greg Ness completed the race.

"We're still not running everybody to their maximum because we're just not ready yet," mentioned Kopari whose team is still hampered by the weather and lack of facilities.

Kopari gave special recognition to Larson in the two-mile and Ness who had a 5:05.5 third place mile.

Bemidji also successfully defended its title in the freshman portion of the meet with 83 points, followed by East Grand Forks 58, Crookston 43, Thief River Falls 21 and Fergus Falls 8.

Thief River Falls had a pair of freshman winners, including Keith Grochow who tied a freshman meet record with a 5-4 high jump, and Rob Jorstad with a 44-0½ effort in the shot put.

Another trip to the Winter Shows building awaits the Prowlers Tuesday when they will compete in the Pirate Jaycees relays beginning at 4 p.m.

A RECORD-breaking two-mile run was turned in by these three competitors Tuesday in the 1979 Northwest Athletic Conference indoor track meet in the Winter Shows building at Crookston. Bemidji's Brian Kraft (middle) won the event in 10:07.8, followed by teammate Tom Joslin (right) in 10:09.9 and Thief River Falls' Mark Larson 10:10.1. All three bettered the NWAC and building record. The Lumberjacks, paced by their distance runners, ran away with the team crown.

Thief River Falls men's fast pitch softball association meeting, originally scheduled to be held tonight, has been rescheduled for Wed., April 18, at 7:30 p.m. in the card room of the city auditorium.

All team managers and interested parties are asked to attend the meeting.

All-Star Game Pits Indiana Vs. Minnesota

On Sat., May 5, at the Met Center in Bloomington, the Indiana high school all-stars will play the Minnesota high school all-stars in the Pizza Hut all-star basketball classic for the benefit of the Minneapolis Children's Health Center. Tip off will be at 8 p.m.

Tickets are now available at Dayton's, the association office at Minneapolis Children's Health Center and the Met ticket office. All seats are reserved at $3 and $4, with a limited number of floor seats available at $5.

Among the outstanding athletes on the Indiana team are the leading Mr. Basketball candidates, LeRoy Sutton and Steve Bouchie. Fans will also see Steve Sharp, an all-state performer in three sports, who is on his way to play for UCLA in football and basketball. He has been called the greatest all around performer in Indiana since George McGinnis.

Minnesota all-star squad will be represented by all five finalists in the Mr. Basketball contest: Randy Breuer of Lake City, Ben Coleman of Minneapolis North, Greg Downing of Duluth Central, Mark Wachler of Howard Lake and Todd Swanson of Cold Spring Riccori. Downing and Breuer, who is University of Minnesota bound, lead their teams in the state AA and A Championships.

Jim Dutcher, head basketball coach for the University of Minnesota said, "The basketball talent in Minnesota is excellent this year and Indiana always has outstanding talent. The fans should see a very competitive and entertaining game."

A trophy will be awarded to the winning team as well as to the MVP of each team as selected by the media.

"Minneapolis Children's is pleased to be part of the Pizza Hut all-star basketball classic. Profits from the game will help us continue our service to children throughout the region," said Sue Martinin, public relations chairman of the Association of Children's Health Center.

For 21 years, the association of Minneapolis Children's Health Center composed of dedicated and talents women, has supported the on-going services of MCHC. With the help and efforts of these women, who comprise the volunteer and fund raising arm, the hospital opened its door in 1973. The Health Center provides comprehensive health care services for children from premature birth through the teenage years. The hospital is located at 2525 Chicago Avenue, Minneapolis.

Ex-slugger Harmon Killebrew holds the club record for consecutive games played . . . 249 from September 21, 1965 through July 4, 1967.

FINISH LINE in the 70-yard dash finals during Tuesday's Northwest Athletic Conference indoor track meet in the Winter Shows building at Crookston showed a victory for Crookston's Steve Johnson in 7.9 seconds. Following him across the line were Darwin Boe, Fergus Falls; Tim Thiel, East Grand Forks; Steve Driscoll, East Grand Forks; and Jim Shirley, Thief River Falls.

Goose Management To Continue At Horicon

Each fall, tens of thousands of Canada geese descend on east-central Wisconsin en route to more southerly wintering areas. Their presence is a mixed blessing.

They often help turn the tranquil countryside into pandemonium by raiding farmer's crops, causing traffic jams from anxious goose-watchers and frustrating hunters and wildlife biologists. The entire picture has often been confusing for people to comprehend and perilous for the geese as well.

Canada goose is a magnificent bird which responds well to management efforts. In some cases, especially around the Horicon national wildlife refuge (NWR), goose response has almost been too good.

What has happened is too many geese concentrate in the area at one time. The goose flock at Horicon NWR in east-central Wisconsin approached 250,000 at its peak.

During the mid 1970's crop depredations were intense, especially during wet years when farmers couldn't get their crops out of the fields. Each bushel of corn digested by geese is money lost to local farmers.

Biologists first reponded to this problem by planting more crops on wildlife areas to feed the geese. This effort failed and probably complicated the problem.

Concern for the geese became critical when disease outbreaks in waterfowl were isolated at other locations in the United States. This troubled Horicon goose biologists because of the devastation disease could render to the large goose concentration contained mainly in the Horicon NWR.

An additional concern added to the complexities at Horicon, Goose management efforts often resulted in some trade-offs for other wildlife species.

Wildlife authorities formally responded to the problem in 1976 and began to alter the habitat to make it less desirable to the migrating geese. They also began a program to disperse the geese away from Horicon through a variety of often controversial methods.

Management actions begun in 1976 were continued in 1977 and 1978 by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service (FWS) and the Wisconsin Department of Natural Resources (DNR) to reduce goose concentrations on and near the refuge.

In three years of a coordinated, intensive management effort, results have been gratifying. The geese have responded well to dispersal techniques and habitat changes. Management efforts have begun to alter old habits and alleviate problems.

Management efforts over the past three years have resulted in a better distribution of geese throughout more of east-central Wisconsin rather than an abnormal concentration on the Horicon NWR and immediate vincinty.

The FWS and DNR have also re-evaluated the objectives of the East-central Wisconsin goose management plan in light of research relating to the Mississippi valley population (MVP) of geese. A portion of the MVP of geese has tentatively been identified as the "Wisconsin sub-flock." This sub-flock is a distinct portion of the entire MVP of geese which are attracted each fall to the East-central Wisconsin area.

Research has also pointed towards an increase in the number of geese to be tolerated at Horicon. This will affect dispersal methods during the 1979 fall migration. No form of goose dispersal will take place unless goose numbers exceed the 60,000 peak expected by FWS and Wisconsin DNR biologists. Propane exploders will be used in the event small, localized concentrations of geese develop. The use of air boots will be employed if necessary to disperse geese away from the refuge. This dispersal technique has proved to be the most feasible means to move geese.

Wisconsin Department of Natural Resources will in turn manage state wildlife areas in east-central Wisconsin more intensively in hopes of accommodating more geese. This hopefully will alleviate localized problems and provide more opportunities for the public to benefit from the waterfowl resource, as well as provide benefits to the geese.

Results of research with the goose flock and the management experience gained from three years of implementation of this program have enabled wildlife managers to modify goals and objectives to more effectively deal with the problem.

Objectives of the 1979 east-central Wisconsin goose management program include:

+Manage a flock of Canada geese, spatially distrubuted throughout east-central Wisconsin providing 6.5 million fall "goose-use" days with 95 per cent of the use occurring prior to Dec. 5. ("Goose-use" days represent the total number of days geese use an area multiplied by the flock size in the area.)

+ No more than 50 per cent or about 3 million "goose-use" days will be maintained in the Horicon area resulting in a peak population of about 60,000 geese.

+ Remaining geese will be distributed outside the Horicon area in east-central Wisconsin, associated with five state wildlife areas.

+ Redirect management efforts at the Horicon national wildlife refuge from a single species (geese) to those benefiting other species of wildlife.

Muskie Town

State symbols was the subject of a column two weeks ago. However, Nevis and its big muskie was not mentioned. The muskie is located in the heart of town.

Each year the town of Nevis sponsors a muskie tournament. Nevis and Park Rapids are located in Hubbard county, offering some of the finest fishing in the world. In 1951 the wise fishermen's encyclopedia had this to say about this area: "The Park Rapids section, in Hubbard county, has more fish species and varieties of fish represented in its midst than has any like area in the world."

Young Wildlife Should Be Left In The Wild

People who pick up young wild animals are in most cases reducing the animals' chances for survival in the wild and are in violation of state regulations, according to the Department of Natural Resources.

Every spring DNR offices are flooded with calls from people who have picked up young wild birds and animals. Most callers are convinced that the young have been abandoned by their mothers or that they will make good pets..

Wildlife officials said that these people are often wrong on both counts. Wild animals are rarely abandoned by their mothers, and seldom make good pets.

Finding a young wild creature alone in field or forest does not necessarily mean it has been abandoned, say wildlife specialists. The mother may be nearby waiting for people to leave so that she may return to take care of her offspring.

For some young wild animals, getting picked up by humans who know little about their specialized requirements means an early agonizing death.

Less specialized animals, which live in spite of their captive care, may grow from the cute and cuddly stage to be nuisances — vicious and even dangerous to their captors.

Unfortunately, the slight tameness and dependance on humans learned in captivity usually prevents their successful return to the wild.

Do wildlife a big favor, said wildlife specialists. Remember that young wild animals should be left in the wild and should not be picked up by people.

DNR enforcement officials also point out that possession of protected wildlife species out of season is a misdemeanor and punishable by a fine of up to $500.

LATCH-HOOK WALL HANGING made by Alvin Grandstrand of Viking had to be photographed on the floor of the Grandstrand living room because the recently-completed project had not yet been hung. The project measures 80x120 inches in size and took more than 500 hours to complete. Kit for the project cost $357 plus shipping. Grandstrand began the project in November of 1977 and completed it March 1 of this year, working during weekends and winter evenings. He had made 16 other latch-hook projects of various sizes and types in the past five years. Number of hours necessary to complete the project is based on Grandstrand's estimate of completing "a three-inch strip about two feet long in a four-hour evening." That 72 square inch area is a small part of the 9,600 square inches of the completed project. Now that the project is done, Grandstrand doubts that he would tackle another of the same size but says he would consider selling this one.

ALVIN GRANDSTRAND, Viking postmaster for the past 18 years, picked up a latch-hook project which his wife had received a few years ago and became hooked on the hobby. He has completed a number of projects during winter evenings and weekends. Grandstrand also farms a quarter section of land about two miles southwest of Viking.

Title I Parents Attend Conference In Duluth

When the third annual parent training workshop of the National Coalition of Title I Parents, Region V, was held at the Normandy Inn in Duluth, seven people involved in the Title I program in Thief River Falls were in attendance. Region V includes Minnesota, Michigan, Ohio, Wisconsin, Indiana and Illinois and 350 administrators, teachers and parents from those six states participated.

"Today's Investment — Tomorrow's Leaders" was the theme of the conference attended by Thief River Falls Title I director Walt Redinger and Mrs. Judy Dupree, Washington; Mrs. Roxanne Nicholson and Mrs. Arlette Defreece, Northrop; Mrs. Shirley Hinrichs, Knox; Jim Counter, St. Bernard's; and Forrest Hamm, St. Hilaire, all members of the district advisory committee.

Workshop sessions during the four-day conference were entitled, "History of the National Coalition and Region V", "How Parents and Administrators Work Together", "How to Conduct a Needs Assessment", "Parent Effectiveness Training", "Title I, the New Law and Its Effects" and "Monitoring and Evaluation".

In reporting on the conference, Mrs. Hinrichs summarized some of the thoughts she had gathered at the event as follows:

(1) Parents DO care about their children and their education;

(2) Home is a good place for children to learn;

(3) Parents' feelings about the way their child is taught, and about life, are important to their child's learning;

(4) Parent involvement has proven to be an effective tool in the learning process of children;

(5) Parents play roles with their children, such as commander-in-chief, moralist, know-it-all, judge, critic, psychologist and consoler;

(6) Reasons for non-involvement by parents include don't care, don't have time or don't know how; and

(7) Parents need to be knowledgeable about the Title I program to become involved.

Local parents attending the conference were impressed with the talk by Rev. Jesse Jackson of Chicago, Ill., a civil rights and education activist, who spoke on "Parents — The Foundation and Not the Bottom". He said the "bottom is where you end up on the way down and the foundation is where you start to build on the way up."

Jackson explained his topic by stating that parents must assume their rightful place as the foundation, getting involved at a responsible level rather than at a hostile level. Four suggestions which he made to help parents ensure that their children are getting a proper education include: (1) Meet your child's teacher and exchange telephone numbers; (2) monitor your child's study habits; (3) pick up your child's report card four times a year; and (4) pick up your child's test scores.

He concluded his talk by having the audience repeat, "My child CAN learn. It is possible. My child OUGHT to learn. It is the moral thing to do. My child MUST learn. It is imperative of now."

Judy Dupree termed the workshop "fantastic" and said she was glad she was able to attend. She defined Title I as a program that provides funds for supplemental education programs to meet the educational needs of children in public and non-public schools. Title I activities are conducted in addition to the regular school program and provide extra help in reading, math and language art skills and related supportive services to children who need it.

Mrs. Dupree said the workshop most valuable to her was on parent effectiveness training, presented by Virginia High, home curriculum coordinator from Detroit, Mich. She stressed the roles parents play for their children and emphasized the importance of home training.

Elected from Minnesota to the Region V planning committee were Chris St. Clair, Duluth; Jim Mandor, Minneapolis; and Louise Roberts, Rochester.

All of the parents attending the conference said it impressed upon them the importance of parental involvement in their children's education. When parents don't participate, they learned, it is usually because they feel the school is doing a good enough job or that it wouldn't do any good to attempt to make changes.

Jack Hanson of the Minnesota department of education explained that Title I funding is based on the percentage of students in the district who apply for free and reduced lunches. He encouraged writing to Congressmen and Senators with views on the program, either citing benefits or expressing dissatisfaction.

A Title I awareness week is being scheduled for the week of May 7 and will be observed in Thief River Falls. A district-wide parent advisory council meeting will be held April 17 at 7:30 p.m. in the Franklin middle school library and is open to the public.

PARENT TRAINING CONFERENCE in the federal Title I program was attended recently by this group from the Thief River Falls public schools. The conference was held at the Normandy Inn in Duluth for a six-state region with approximately 350 directors, teachers and parents in attendance. Attending from Thief River Falls were, left to right (seated), Mrs. Judy Dupree, Mrs. Shirley Hinrichs and Mrs. Roxanne Nicholson; standing, Jim Counter, Mrs. Arlette Defreece, Forrest Hamm and director Walt Redinger.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Holmstrom and Mrs. Wesley Bring of Strandquist attended the funeral services at Underwood for Clifford Pederson on the forenoon of March 14. Mr. Pederson was the father of Jim Pederson, son-in-law of the Holmstroms.

At the annual meeting of the New Solum township, Douglas Reierson was elected to the position of supervisor to succeed Harold Hall who did not file for re-election. The other supervisors are Mike Johnson and James Jarshaw. The clerk is Mrs. Richard (Pat) Moen and the treasurer is Irwin Johnson. At a special township vote held one week later at the town hall on the issue of whether the township would approve the granting of a liquor license to the developing gun club an all time record of voters turned out with the final count of 68 votes in favor and 62 votes against the granting of such a license. This result will be used by the county board as they consider the granting of a license within this township.

Mrs. Walter Lambert spent a night in Fargo with Mr. and Mrs. Harley Danielson before boarding a plane on the 7th of March for Seattle, Wash. In Seattle she was a guest of her daughter Caroline. They were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Stewart at their home and on Sunday the Stewarts took Mrs. Lambert and Caroline sight-seeing in the area. Mrs. Lambert also spent from Monday until Wednesday at the home of her sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Dotson, at Olympia. During the trip she also attended the wedding and reception of her nephew, Mike Dotson. She arrived back to the Danielson home in Fargo on the 17th and the next day her husband came and they returned home.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Solem of Steiner were recent Sunday visitors at the John Thompson home.

Steve Holmstrom returned to his home from Northwestern hospital last week after a two week stay after his leg was broken in an accident when testing snowmobiles. A metal plate was surgically implanted by the break so he should manage well getting about this spring as the bone knits.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Johnson and Barbara, Mr. and Mrs. Dale Johnson, Mark and Susan and Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Holmstrom recently celebrated Heather Holmstrom's seventh birthday at her parental home, the Craig Holmstroms of St. Hilaire. The Vernon Holmstroms had spent several weeks during the winter visiting in Arizona.

A very special trip for Mr. and Mrs. Dave Weleski this winter was two weeks spent in Germany visiting with Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Hangsleben. They left from Winnipeg on February 21 and stopped at Paris where they had a plane transfer. Jerry and Debbie met them in Dusseldorf. During their visit they attended two hockey games in which Jerry played as a member of the Duisberg sports club hockey team. They also visited in Amsterdam, Holland and other places in Holland and saw the large flower market and had a tour on the canals. They visited several places in Germany, went shopping and enjoyed the whole time. Debbie has been attending school two nights a week this winter to familiarize herself with more of the German language, ways, etc. On March 7, Dave and Judy returned home after being met in Winnipeg by Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Reierson.

Mr. and Mrs. Garret Reierson and Lisa stayed at the Weleski home to care for Jaki and Darrin during their parents' absence. During this time Darrin had his fourth birthday so his aunt Mary had a birthday party for him. The following Sunday after his folks were home, Darrin shared a birthday party with his dad. Other guests at that one included Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Reierson, Mrs. Loris Reierson, Lori and Robbie, Mrs. Garret Reierson and Lisa and Mrs. Gladys Anderson.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Quam were dinner guests at the Walter Lambert home a week ago Sunday.

VIKING . . .

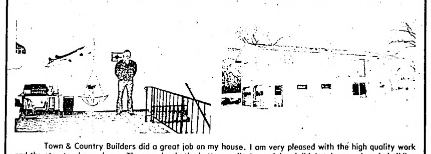
I GOT WHAT I WANTED!!



Town & Country Builders did a great job on my house. I am very pleased with the high quality work and the structural soundness. They used only the better quality material and didn't take very long in building it. The best part is that it was built for the contracted price, there was no extra building costs involved.

I'm really glad that I got Town & Country Builders to build my house.

Because of CENTRAL VAC's remote location and low-voltage control, there are no electrical cords to tangle, trip over or fray and wear out.

Q.
Can we take our Central Vac with us if we move?

A.
The Power Unit can be removed quite easily. All that would be required in your new home would be the installation of a new piping system.

Up From The Grave He Arose

Kevin's in the Junior Choir. You better believe Kevin is in the Junior Choir . . . you'll sometimes hear him above the rest . . . occasionally a shade off pitch.

But the joyous message of Easter is never sung with any more enthusiasm than when Kevin and his friends sing "Up From The Grave He Arose." The effect on the congregation is electrifying.

Think, too, of the effect on Kevin. His youthful heart is warming to the central truth of his religion. He is feeling, not just telling, the Story of Easter.

What we give of our time and talents means a great deal to our church. It means even more to us! Discover that truth this Easter.

Experts Give Views On Nuclear Safety

by Mark E. Canney
and Paul Schurke
University News

Seriousness of the nuclear accident that occured March 28 on Three Mile Island in Harrisburg, Pa., has raised questions internationally about the safety of nuclear power as a ruel source.

Although scienticsts throughout the world are working with the same collection of information, there is no consensus on what it all means.

In separate interviews, three University of Minnesota scienticsts gave their opinions on the safety of nuclear power and each voiced somewhat different conclusions.

Chemical engineering professor Kenneth Keller contends nuclear power plants are not as safe as they could be because economic considerations in their design and operation have over-ridden safety concerns. Similar accidents are possible at the two nuclear power plants operating in Minnesota, he said.

Herbert Isbin, another chemical engineer, disagrees, stating that nuclear power in general and the Minnesota plants in particular are safe.

Keller, who heads the University's chemical engineering and materials science department, said the design of the Minnesota plants is basically the same as that of the crippled Three Mile Island plant.

"There are differences in design, but the plants here are based on the same technology as the plant in Pennsylvania," he said. Basing the probability of an accident on these design differences is irrelevant, he said. "In any complicated system such as you have in nuclear power plants, there are bound to be emergency situations."

A member of the U.S. navy division of reactor development from 1957 to 1961, Keller worked on the design and construction of the first civilian nuclear power plant in the U.S. He questioned whether operators of nuclear power plants are capable of handling the emergency problems that may arise.

While nuclear power plant workers are well-versed in the day-to-day operation of the plant, he said, they do not have a firm grasp on the potential dangers inherent in the use of nuclear power. "Training for nuclear power plant operators does not include sufficient information for handling dangerous situations," Keller fells.

Keller believes that plant operators are not adequately backgrounded on the theories behind the plant's operation, and that some operators are dangerously convinced that the plants are completely safe, a position that makes them complacent.

Keller is also concerned about what he feels is the lack of sufficient testing equipment in nuclear power plants, and the fact that what testing equipment does exist is inspected too infrequently. "Some emergency operations cannot be tested, but those that can be tested are not done so with sufficient regularity," he said.

He suggested that more testing systems should be installed, and that plants should be shut down totally at least once a week for "troubleshooting."

Although the added precautions would boost the cost of electrical power, Keller said safety must come before economics. "Why make nuclear power plants competitive in cost rather than safe?" he said. "I believe nuclear power can remain competitive as a power source only after it has been made as safe as technology permits."

Isbin is more confident in the safety of nuclear plants, and feels that Minnesota's plants are particularly safe. Isbin, who served for 12 years on the federal government's advisory committee on reactor safeguards, believes that the differences in design between the Minnesota plants and the Three Mile Island plant are enough to prohibit such an occurence here.

Certain other types of accidents could occur at the Minnesota plants, he said, but the chances of that happening are slim. "In Minnesota, safety has been taken seriously," he said. "Responsible consideration has been given to the subject. The reactors in Minnesota have been operated well, and a good technical staff has been accumulated."

While he believes close attention must be paid to safety, Isbin sees no justification for closing either of the plants in Minneosta. "Safety must be a continuous affair. We should not rest on our laurels," he cautioned.

The Employee Retirement Income Security Act (ERISA) prohibits employers from setting unreasonable age and service requirements for pensions, according to the U.S. Department of Labor.

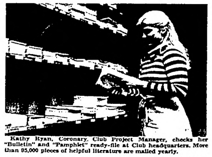
Coronary Club Helps . . .

Heart Patients Recover Health



Kathy Ryan, Coronary Club Project Manager, checks her "Bulletin" and "Pamphlet" ready-file at Club headquarters. More than 85,000 pieces of helpful literature are mailed yearly.

The old saw "Misery Loves Company" is helping many a heart-attack victim to hasten recovery and return to a normal life style.

Heart veterans need more than medical assistance to effect a solid recovery. They need therapy of the mind as well as the body. It is as important to the healing process as are present-day drugs and medical procedures, say the doctors.

Lift the spirits. Eliminate uncertainties. Let heart patients know that they are not alone in their recovery-period doubts and concerns.

It is this philosophy that has enabled the young Coronary Club, Inc. to grow "like Topsy". With modest headquarters in Cleveland, Ohio, the non-profit Club, organized in 1968, now has a national enrollment of nearly 10,000 contributing members and numerous local chapters, coast to coast.

Eleven years ago, Dr. Irvine H. Page, a modern giant in medicine who was Director of Research of the Cleveland Clinic and a heart-attack veteran himself, joined forces with the late U.A. Whitaker of Harrisburg, Pa. to launch today's Coronary Club. Mr. Whitaker, brilliant engineer, inventor and a national leader in the design of electrical components, met Dr. Page as he prescribed for Mrs. Whitaker, a Clinic coronary patient.

Both men felt that more could be done to educate heart disease veterans enabling them to live more comfortably, and to help others from becoming victims of heart disease — the nation's number 1 killer.

Their objective has been realized. The Coronary Club has grown to be a respected source of authentic heart-care information transmitted to its members via the pages of its bi-monthly "Bulletins" and quarterly in-depth pamphlets.

New techniques, diets and menus, questions and answers, new drugs, personal experiences and a host of other helpful, sprightly articles written in lay language by some of the nation's leading cardiologists, provide therapeutic answers.

"Smoking and Coronary Disease", "Is There A Good Kind of Cholesterol?", "Whiskey and the Heart", "The Market Basket", and "Current Heart Events" are typical of the article titles the Club's publications carry.

"Progress is being made in heart-disease control. Over the past 10 years, a steady decline in the death rate is reported. Through better medical care, better understanding by the public and better diets, coronary disease, still a killer, is declining", says Dr. Page.

For information on membership and activities write The Coronary Club, Inc., 3659 Green Road, Cleveland, Ohio 44122. Membership is open to all.

News About Pain Relief

By Dr. Arthur S. Freese

TREAT THE COMMON COLD WITH CARE

Nearly everyone has suffered from the sneezes, sore throat, coughing, fever and headache of the common cold.

The cold is the most frequently occurring infection, afflicting most Americans at least once a year. It can occur in any climate, any time of the year.

The cold is caused by a virus infection of the membranes of the nose and throat, which may also affect the sinuses, ears and chest. It is so common because there are over 100 different cold viruses.

A cold is easily spread when the sufferer sneezes, coughs or talks, scattering the virus in mucous droplets into the surrounding air. Handkerchiefs, eating utensils, and personal contact may also transmit colds from one person to another.

Luckily, colds are usually mild and last only three to seven days. After the third day, the cold symptoms usually subside.

If you are suffering with a cold, adequate rest, nutrition and the use of appropriate medication will help relieve the symptoms and you will be well in a few days. Common sense and pampering are the best cold-fighting methods. Follow these suggestions:

- ●Avoid excessively cold temperature and wet weather. Although bad weather and wet feet don't cause colds, they can make one worse.
- ●Get plenty of rest. Avoid over-fatigue.
- ●Increase liquid intake. Many doctors recommend taking eight ounces of juice or water every two to three hours.
- ●Take a pain reliever to relieve headache, general achiness and fever discomfort. TYLENOL® acetaminophen is a good choice because aspirin may upset a delicate stomach often associated with a cold.
- ●Check your temperature several times a day and record.
- ●Call the doctor if there is no improvement after the fifth day if your temperature is over 101 degrees several times a day; or if you have an earache, chest pain or shortness of breath.

No Trespassing

Adoption by the Minnesota House of Representatives of a proposed law tightening trespass definitions for private land recently took place by a 95-33 vote. It defines agricultural lands in more specific terms than previous legislation and broadens the definition to cover tilled lands and fenced area.

The bill now goes to the Senate where it may be expected that further changes will be made. It seems to be a rarity when one legislative body is satisfied with the work of the other, regardless of the care and thought which is devoted to drafting, modifying and amending the bill in question. Any changes made by the Senate will have to be ratified by the House.

We find no quarrel with a broader interpretation of what constitutes farm land. For that matter, all privately-held land in this part of the state which is outside of municipal boundaries could be considered farm land. We have maintained all along that owners of private land have the authority to control access to that land and to determine whether or not others may use it for hunting or any other purpose.

It is true that in these times it is often difficult or impossible to contact the owner of lands on short notice to obtain permission for hunting. Absentee land owners are growing in number and their holdings are increasing. Farmers often are working land a number of miles from their residences. Usually, however, there is someone in the neighborhood or community who has responsibility for the land and neighbors usually know the situation surrounding such acreage.

While this state affirmation of the individual rights of land owners is proper, it puts even greater emphasis on the importance of public lands for public uses, particularly for wildlife and hunting. Minnesota can ill afford to relax its acquisition and development programs for wildlife and would be irresponsible in allowing present public lands to become privately owned and controlled.

There has been a bill proposed in the state legislature which would do — or have the potential to do — that very thing. Not only would it permit the sale of public lands to private owners through agricultural classification of unclassified lands, it would leave designated wildlife lands open for such classification and sale. Hopefully the bill will not get the benefit of a committee hearing, but the seeds of such legislation have been planted and await only the right conditions to germinate.

We hope that the legislators will recognize the need for balance in its actions. Tightening trespass laws will have the effect of limiting the amount of access to outdoor lands by the public. Demands on public lands will therefore be increased. We can see no sense in the legislature acting to increase demand and reduce opportunity for satisfying that demand.

Rather, the legislature should address itself to helping solve some of the financial problems which state-owned public lands create for county and school governments in the areas affected. Use of such areas is by residents from all parts of the state and all should share in the cost of their maintenance.

In a number of years of hunting we have found land owners to be very generous in the use of their land by others. We have appreciated that generosity whenever we have been recipients of it, and we have attempted to conduct ourselves as guests should. People who have the mistaken assumption that all land outside of their own yard is free territory have brought this trespassing legislation on themselves.

Easter Date Changes Because . . . .

Easter Sunday comes late this year — just as spring weather seems to be late in its arrival. The religious significance of Easter is well known, but the reason for its appearance on a particular part of the calendar is more obscure.

A recent item in the Minnkota power cooperative publication sets forth the reasons as follows:

We all know why Easter is celebrated. But, did you know that just about the only thing certain as to when it will fall is that it will be on a Sunday?

This year, Easter is April 15. Last year it was March 26. It varies between March 22 and April 25, a leeway of 34 days.

Early Christians fixed Easter by the full moon. One reason was to help religious pilgrims travel over the desert at night. The light of the full moon made it easier to reach the Holy City.

Early calendars were so inaccurate that in some years an extra month had to be added. Even the Caesarian sun calendar of 364½ days was inaccurate.

In the year 325, Easter was fixed so it would come on the Sunday following the first full moon which follows the equinox, March 21. When there's a full moon just before March 21, Easter comes late in April. The date, therefore, depends on the date of the full moon.

Extra Session Not Necessary

Following editorial is from the St. Cloud Times:

The constitutionally required end of the session is still two months away, but already there is talk of a special session in the Minnesota Legislature, observers report.

Rather than focusing on potential logjams, the Legislature should plan ways around them. Legislators should plan accomplishment of needed action, not failure to accomplish it.

Because of the even split between DFLers and Independent-Republicans in the House, many are predicting that May 21, the constitutional deadline, will come and go without significant action. During the first two months of this session, very few bills have been passed in either house of the Legislature. Committees have proceeded generally at a casual pace, stretching introductory "overview" sessions into March; they usually are dispatched with in January.

Certainly it is better for the Legislature to do little than for it to burden the people with a flood of new laws intruding where the government should not intrude. However, there are some important issues for the Legislature to deal with this year: Tax relief, workers compensation, appropriations and a number of others.

If the Legislature is to pass only a small quantity of legislation, it might as well pass it sooner than later. As Senate DFL Leader Nicholas Coleman puts it, "It doesn't get any easier after May 21."

The current pace of the Legislature points to a mad rush in the closing days of the session and, possibly, to a special session to deal with the few important issues this Legislature must deal with. That would be inexcuseable.

Decision Should Be Local

Following editorial is from the Wadena Pioneer-Journal:

Gov. Al Quie has, in our opinion, misread public opinion in his apparent unyielding stance concerning the size of Minnesota's early elementary school classes. The governor is being very unbending in his campaign to restrict classes in third grade and below to 17 students. The cost of his proposal would be some $53 million.

While we think small class sizes are desirable, it should be up to each school district's residents to determine whether they want to allocate resources to permit smaller class sizes than now exist. Neither legislation nor contract should make that decision for local residents.

Quie and the Minnesota Education association (MEA) argue that smaller class sizes and improved elementary instruction will diminish the need for costly remedial programs later. Such may be the case, but a study of class size research released last year concluded there is no consistent relationship between class size and achievement. The study did suggest reduced class sizes might have an impact on reading and math skills in the first three grades.

In the Wadena school district, Quie's proposal would require the addition of 6½ teachers for the current year's enrollment. For the next school year an additional 5½ instructors would be needed. On that basis, the cost to the local district (or Minnesota taxpayers if the state pays the full impact) would vary between $55,000 and $65,000.

It's our opinion local residents might want to direct these amounts for purposes other than reducing class sizes. Some might disagree with the choice of other purposes, but we feel the decision should be left to the local community and not to the Legislature or a bargaining contract.

Sulfa Residues May Be Traced Back To Feed

Pork producers and feed manufacturers must work together to reduce the rate of sulfa residue violations, says an University of Minnesota animal scientiest.

Jerry Hawton, extension specialist, suggests that producers collect one-pound samples from each delivery of non-medicated swine finishing rations, and keep them for 60 days after slaughter. If sulfa residues are found in the tissues of their swine, producers could have the feed samples tested for contamination.

Hawton, who recently returned from the American pork congress in Indianapolis, reports that feed can be a course of the sulfa residues that continue to show up in swine carcasses. "A U.S. department of agriculture official, Bob Brown, said that in one of their surveys, 22 per cent of commercially mill-mixed feeds contained sulfa levels of two parts per million (ppm) or higher," Hawton says. "About 13 per cent of farm-mixed samples contained such residue levels."

He adds, "It only takes two ppm of sulfamethazine in the feed to eventaully produce one-tenth ppm (0.1 ppm) in the tissue of the carcass." The GDA (food and drug administration) tolerance level is 0.1 ppm.

Sulfa compounds are mixed with feed to help control swine respiratory diseases. Producers are required to withdraw feed containing sulfa compounds at least 15 days before slaughter, or sulfa residues in carcasses may exceed the FDA tolerance level.

Despite a widespread educational campaign, sulfa residue volloations have risen. The national violation rate for January and Feburary was 15.8 per cent. For all of 1978, the rate was 9.7 per cent.

Brown told us that these violations are not just from drug misuses or poor management by the producer," Hawton reports.

"The producer may want to collect the first feed that comes out of the auger from the truck that delivers commercially-mixed feed," Hawton says. "All phases of the industry, producers, feed manufacturers, veterinarians, must work together to reduce this problem. There are substitutes for sulfa compounds, but they could raise costs for both the producer and the concumer."

Further steps the producers can take to avoid sulfa residues include:

1. Be very aware of what types of additives your feed contains, and adhere to withdrawal requirements.

2. If the feed is mixed on your farm, schedule processing of non-medicated feed for growing (under 150 lb.) hogs or the breeding herd after medicated feed is mixed and before the non-medicated finishing (150 lb. to slaughter weight) ration is mixed. If this is not feasible, clean out or flush feed through mixing and handling equipment after mixing with a medicated feed.

3. If hogs are to be maintained in the same pens from start to finish, the feeders and pens should be cleaned after the pigs have been switched to a non-medicated feed. "Be careful to clean under the lip of the feeder," Hawton advises.

Use Caution When Applying Ammonia

In soil anhydrous ammonia can mean abundant crops, but in an eye this potent fertilizer can cause painful injury and even total blindness.

To avoid vision-threatening injuries, the national society to prevent blindness (NSPB) urges the use of protective eyewear when handling and applying anhydrous. "Appropriate chemical type safety goggles, with hooded vents and a rim fitting closely around the eye area, are a must for everyone at all times when working with or near anhydrous ammonia," advised Virginia S. Boyce, NSPB's executive director.

The society cited accident data to emphasize that eye protection must be both available and used to effectively prevent injury. "Reports show that only 60 per cent of victim of anhydrous ammonia accidents had safety eyewear available to them," Mrs. Boyce said. "And, even where such protection was available, it was largely unused," she added.

Anhydrous ammonia is one of the most damaging substances affecting the eye. Within seconds of contact, it begins destroying cells and tissues. "Should this dangerous chemical get into the eyes, the emergency first aid treatment involves immediately flushing them with fresh water for at least 15 minutes," Mrs. Boyce advised. Salves or ointments should never be put in the eyes; they tend to complicate first aid and later medical treatment.

"As emergency first aid, if a body of water is nearby, the person affected should immerse himself completely in it, holding his eyelids open so that the ammonia can be diluted and washed away. After thoroughly flushing the eyes with water, medical attendtion from a physician is the next step to be taken. The longer the treatment is delayed, the greater the chances are for sight loss," Mrs. Boyce cautioned.

No one, no matter how careful, is immune to injury when working with anhydrous ammonia. The following measures are necessary:

+ Carry a plastic squeeze bottle of water in a shirt pocket to flush the eyes immediately if contact with anhydrous should occur;

+ Have a five gallon tank of fresh water attached to the applicator and nurse tank;

+ Each day, carefully check all hose fittings and connections on equipment; and + Thoroughly understand how to operate any equipment prior to use.

Many eye injuries occur during the transfer of pressurized anhydrous ammonia from the bulk supply to smaller tanks, a process which may be repeated several times between production plant and farm users. All it takes is a minor equipment defect such as a weak point in a hose, a faulty valve or a worn fitting and eyesight may be threatened. Carlessness or human error multiply the dangers to vision.

Anhydrous ammonia and its potentially blinding characteristics are graphically illustrated in a film called "For the Rest of Your Life." A brief dramatization of an accident with anhydrous demonstrates the dangers as well as safe hendling procedures and recommended eye and face protection devices. The film is available for loan from the National Society, 79 Madison Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10016.

Molded Salad Makes The Meal

Gelatin salads have a reputation for complementing the simplest meal. The secret of successful salad making is combining ingredients with contrasts in color, texture, form and flavor. This Fruit and Nut Ring succeeds on all scores of pleasing combinations. Select lemon, lime, orange or orange-pineapple flavor Jell-O brand gelatin as base to hold a riot of ingredients: chopped pecans, diced apple and grapefruit sections, and sliced ripe olives. Place a small bowl of mayonnaise in the center of the unmolded fruited gelatin ring. Serve with a platter of cold meat or with chicken salad.

FRUIT AND NUT RING

1 package (3 oz.) lemon, lime, orange or orange-pineapple flavor gelatin
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup boiling water
3/4 cup cold water
2 teaspoons lemon juice
1 grapefruit, sectioned, drained and diced
1 medium apple, peeled and diced
2 tablespoons coarsely chopped pecans
3 to 4 tablespoons ripe olive slices

Dissolve gelatin and salt in boiling water. Add cold water and lemon juice. Chill until thickened. Fold in grapefruit, apple, nuts and olives. Spoon into 4-cup ring mold. Chill until firm, at least 4 hours. Unmold. Serve with mayonnaise, if desired. Makes 3-3/4 cups or 6 servings.

$2.3 Million Added To Quie's U Of M Budget

Education division of the House appropriations committee recently completed its allocations for the University of Minnesota with a net increase of $2.3 million over Gov. Al Quie's recommendations for the institution.

After the division's allocations hearings began two weeks ago, Quie increased his recommendations for the university to $400.58 million, compared to the $394.9 million budget he recommended in January.

House division subtracted $2.5 million from programs that were in the governor's revised budget and added $4.8 million in other parts of the university's complex $437 million biennial request.

The division, which consists of six DFL and six Independent Republican members, is chaired by Rep. Wendell O. Erickson, IR-Hills. Appropriations bill goes from the division to the full house appropriations committee chaired by Rep. Fred Norton, DFL-St. Paul.

Among the Quie recommendations trimmed in the House division were programs for handicapped students and a system designed to decrease the dropout rate of minority and other students from educationally disadvantaged backgrounds.

House members expressed concern about hiring more administrators to run these programs while university lobbyist Stanley B. Kegler argued that the proposals would benefit students.

The division trimmed $600,000 from the governor's recommended $1 million increase for a minority and disadvantaged student retention program, and $177,100 from his $477,100 recommendation for services to handicapped students.

Division approved increases of $400,000 for the retention program and $300,000 for handicapped services with the emphasis on both cases to be placed on tutorial services for students.

Biggest difference between the division actions and the governor's recommendations is the $1.1 million that separates their two approaches to operating and maintaining space in new university buildings over the coming biennium.

Quie recommended $1.7 million for this item with the provision that the university be allowed to seek an estimated $626,000 in increased fuel and utility costs from a Legislative advisory commission contingency fund for energy cost increases. House approved $1.25 million for the operation of new space, a figure which includes the $626,000 in fuel and utility costs.

Division also approved an increase of $500,000 over the biennium for replacement of old and worn out equipment. Quie had recommended the university's requested $1 million increase.

On the other hand, the division allocated $450,000 for new instructional equipment which the governor had not recommended. University had requested $1.9 million in new equipment.

The division and the governor agreed on several major items including $1.88 million to replace federal funding for a dentistry program in which the amount required to meet federal guidelines was becoming larger than the amount of federal money available.

Group also funded Quie's recommendation for a $1.15 million increase in the budget for women's intercollegiate athletics on all five university campuses while refusing requested money for men's sports on the outstate campuses.

Division also approved Quie's recommended $949,100 supplemental library budget to cover the rising costs of books and periodicals and $50,000 — half of Quie's recommendation — for a graduate school research fund.

Some $250,000 more than the university's requested $494,000 increase for a new registration system was also approved by the division, bringing the total budget for the system to $1.2 million.

Education subcommittee of the Senate finance committee is currently deliberating on the Univeristy's request for the 1979-81 biennium.

Miniature Electronic Engine Control

A space-age Electronic Engine Control system (EEC-II) that provides optimum control of emissions and fuel economy, yet retains the performance characteristics of pre-control vehicles, is available on the 1979 Mercury Marquis in 50 states and the Ford LTD in California. The "brains" of the system, pioneered by Ford Motor Company in 1978, is a sophisticated microprocessor capable of controlling six separate engine functions simultaneously. The complex circuit board used to design the EEC-II microprocessor (foreground) was reduced to the finished microprocessor—the tiny dark square encased in the plastic rectangle held by model Cheryl Curhan. EEC-II is standard on the optional 5.8-liter (351-CID) engine. The company expects to produce 80,000 EEC-II-equipped vehicles during the 1979-model year, and 600,000 in the 1980-model year. By 1983, virtually all Ford Motor Company vehicles will have electronic engine controls.

USDA To Study Impact, Cost Of Food Plan

U.S. department of agriculture (USDA) has announced it will contract for a major study of the cost and impact of its child care food programs (CCFP).

According to Carol Tucker Foreman, assistant secretary of agriculture, the study will determine the program's administrative and food service costs and the relationship of costs to meal quality. It will also identify the barriers to program participation, including the effect of permitting only licensed or approved institutions to participate.

Study is one repuired by Public Law 95-627, which made the CCFP permanent. In addition to the information required by Congress, the study will determine the impact of existing CCFP on states, child care providers, children, and their families.

Last year, federal cash and food assistance provided to states under this Program helped serve meals to more than 600,000 children in nonresidential child care institutions.

Study will be carried out in three phases. First phase will assess child care food needs, describe existing services, and identify gaps in existing data. The second phase will develop a design for collecting information, and the third phase will be to collect and analyze the data and to submit a final report by April 1981.

Persons interested in obtaining a copy of the request for proposal should write to: Contracting Officer, Administrative Services Division, Room 790-GHI, FNS, USDA, Washington, D.C., 20250. Copy will be sent by return mail. Telephone requests cannot be honored.

Proposals will be accepted until May 1, 1979.

WHAT CAUSES POTHOLES?– (1) Rain, sleet or snow works its way into the soil under the pavement. (2) When the temperature drops, the water freezes and expands. This pushes up the soil and pavement. (3) As thawing occurs, the water runs away and the soil recedes, creating a hole under the pavement. (4) A passing car or truck breaks the pavement, causing the familiar pothole. Tires can be seriously damaged by striking a pothole.

Research Begun On Decision To Bear Children

by Maureen Smith
University News

Gail Thoen believes that deciding whether to have a child is "the most fateful decision" people make, more fateful than deciding about marriage.

For the past few years Thoen, now an assistant professor in general college at the University of Minnesota, has been offering workshops and counseling to help people make the decision that is right for them, free from external pressure.

Her interest in the subject began when she was a graduate student in family social science and was faced with a personal decision on whether to have a child. "I wanted to see the literature, being a good graduate student," she said. "I wanted to do things rationally." What she discovered was that there was "a void in the literature."

As a member of the baby boom generation, Thoen knew there were millions of people in her age group and figured that many of them must be facing the same decision. She decided it was an area that needed research.

Martha Russell, now acting director of career planning and placement in the college of home economics, became Thoen's partner in the research. Russell's interest had been aroused for another reason. She was looking at some of the stages middle-aged people go through as their children leave home and wondered if couples without children had had similar experiences at the same age.

Both Thoen and Russell are strong supporters of people's right to choose. For one thing, Russell said, a "conscious choice of parenthood serves to strengthen a couple's commitment to the children." In counseling clients who have been guilty of child abuse, Thoen said, she has often heard them express the wish that they had known they could choose not to have children.

Many people who were sure in their twenties that they wanted to be childfree are thinking it over in their thirties, Thoen said, and the rate of first births among couples over 30 is rising. This phenomenon can increase the pressure on those who have made a permanent decision to be childfree. "It's hard for many people to take their decision seriously."

Some of the situations that have been found to be pressure points for the childfree are portrayed in an educational film, "You Can't Mean Not Ever," produced by Russell. There is a social gathering where people ask about each other's families, a time of questioning when friends have a baby, and an attempt to explain to parents why a couple has decided on sterilization.

Thoen said the research data show that the more comfortable people are with their decision, the less pressure they perceive. "Many childfree people would say that they saw pressure everywhere. If they saw a baby in a television commercial, they took it personally and saw it as pronatalism. Other people would never personalize that, wouldn't see it as pressure on them."

The biggest source of pressure is not parents or in-laws but self, she said. People keep asking themselves, "Am I doing the right thing? Am I going to be sorry?"

Still, Thoen said, handling the pressure from others can be difficult, and an exercise in assertiveness is included in the workshops. "You can be the most assertive person in the business world, but there's something about looking at your mother or in some cases your partner and saying you don't want any children."

The most difficult conflict occurs when one partner wants a child and the other does not, Thoen said. "It can be painful at the workshop to have revelations of the strength and depth of the partner's feelings."

Some people are totally committed to remaining childfree, she said. "They will say, 'I will divorce, I will have an abortion, there is no way I will have a child'." Others might prefer not to have children but will defer to their partner's wishes.

It is not always clear whether a couple is disagreeing about the decision or about timing. "Sometimes people have not really checked that out with each other," Thoen said, and they make surprising discoveries when they fill out a questionnaire at the workshop. "One will say 'I'm sure we have a total understanding,' and the partner checks 'I have no idea where we stand'."

A major concern for many couples is what the impact of a child would be on their relationship. "The data do not look promising," Thoen said. "All the literature shows that the transition to parenthood can be a crisis, particularly for couples who place a high value on freedom.

"The dynamics change. The baby is totally dependent, and someone has to feed it and take care of it. Traditionally this has been the mother. Many of these couples have relationships they think of as egalitarian, and they are rightly concerned about who is going to take care of the baby. My hunch for many of the couples I've worked with is that if they could work out the dynamics and still have an egalitarian relationship, they would want to have children.

"The stereotype that childfree people don't like children is totally untrue. There are very few who don't. Many of them like children, and many work with children all day in child-oriented professions."

*Those who choose a child*free lifestyle are "still a minority group," Thoen said. About 10 per cent of all couples remain childfree, and probably only about half of these are childless by choice.

If people have always wanted children and then learn that they can neither have a baby nor adopt one, Thoen said, it can be "terribly disappointing. They may perceive their lives as empty or meaningless. One of the things we can do is share with them the kinds of things the voluntarily childfree do.

"There are many ways of giving back to the world, many ways of having contact with children besides bearing them or adopting them. You can be a big brother or a girl scout leader or a Sunday school teacher. The voluntarily childfree have a lot to offer to the involuntarily childfree by helping them see how rich and full their lives can be."

One thing that people without children often worry about is what the implications will be over the life cycle. "That is one of the most commonly asked questions, on which research is practically nonexistent," Thoen said.

"What is it like to be a widow and childfree, or a widower? We don't know the answer. It's one thing to be young and healthy, but what is it to be old and childfree? What is it like to be childfree and single? We shouldn't talk just about the couple.

"We do know that there are many, many miserable people with children. Look at the infamous Ann Landers survey (in which 70 per cent of the parents who wrote in said they wished they had never had children), or talk to parents whose expectations have been disappointed. The value of children may be changing in our more mobile society. Your children may not live near you.

"Having or not having children is no guarantee of happiness or unhappiness."

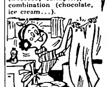
Household Hints

By Samantha of Lestoil Homemakers Service

Problem stains? No problem! Wine on the tablecloth...axle grease on your husband's work pants...They'll disappear fast, with these stain removal tips from Lestoil. First thing to know: stains can be greasy (oil, cosmetics, furniture polish...), non-greasy (berries, catsup...), or combination (chocolate, ice cream...).



Lestoil, the all-purpose cleaner, is a combination of detergent and solvent that actually melts away greasy stains. Pour it on full strength (colorfast fabrics only), let stand 5 or 10 minutes, then launder as usual. Sponge non-greasy and combination stains immediately with cold water, rub in a little Lestoil, launder.

Fruit and berry stains? Stretch fabric over a bowl; pour boiling water through. Secure wine stains over a bowl with a rubber band, sprinkle on salt, then pour on boiling water. This treatment is only for sturdy fabrics, but Lestoil is gentle enough for a lace tablecloth. And a half cup of hard-working Lestoil added to ordinary detergent brightens every laundry load!

Good Nutrition Is Must For Children

Sound nutrition is important throughout life, but it's especially important in early childhood. Young children are still growing and developing, mentally and physically. They're also developing eating habits and attitudes about food that can affect their health later in life. Nutritionists at the Minnesota department of health are currently emphasizing the imporatnce of child nutrition, in connection with the United Nations-sponsored International Year of the Child (IYC) observance.

Parents have always been concerned about making sure their children eat properly. But nutrition authorities offer a number of suggestions which should help you meet your child's nutritional needs.

Children, like adults, need a balanced diet. That means regular servings of food from each of the four major food groups: fruits and vegetables, breads and cereals, meat and other protein foods, and dairy products. However, children also have a special need for certain nutrients. Children under four, for example, generally require half as many calories as adults, and half the adult dose of many vitamins. But they need the same amount of vitamin C and calcium as adults, and they require 1½ times the adult male dose of iron. Iron fortified infant formulas or baby cereals can often help them meet this requirement.

Vitamin D is especially important for children. It promotes the absorption of calcium and phosphorus, and those minerals are essential for the proper development of bones and teeth. Fortified milk is one source of extra vitamin D.

Some authorities feel that we should limit a child's intake of substances that have been linked with health problems later in life. If a child is never allowed to develop a taste for items like sugar or salt, they argue, the child may be able to avoid problems like hypertension, obesity or tooth decay. It may be unwise to limit a child's intake of cholesterol in this way, however. Whole milk and other foods containing moderate amounts of fat play an important role in the development of skin and brain tissue.

Many parents have trouble limiting their children's consumption of "empty" snack food calories. One solution is to offer children nutritious snacks, like milk, fruit, vegetables, cheese, peanut butter, oatmeal cookies or unsugared cereal.

You can also make an important contribution to your child's nutritional well-being simply by setting the proper tone at meal time. Try to maintain a relaxed and loving atmosphere, and offer a variety of foods. If your child's eating behavior doesn't meet your expectations, don't force the issue. Children are first of all individuals, and their needs change as they grow. Don't try to start your baby on solid food too soon, for instance. Remember that young appetites usually taper off at around age one, when a child's growth begins to slow down. Don't be surprised if your two-year-old temporarily becomes obsessed with a particular food. These "jags" usually pass quickly.

Don't be overly concerned about over-feeding or under-feeding your child. Don't worry if your child refuses food, or plays with it instead of eating it. Left to themselves, most healthy children will eat as much as they need. Don't force an apparently satisfied child to "finish" a meal. Over-eating can create a weight problem, and studies have shown that overweight children tend to remain overweight throughout life.

Finally, remember that you're always teaching your child by example. Chances are your child will imitate you own eating habits, and grow to share your nutritional likes and dislikes. Eat well yourself, and your child will probably eat well too.

THEN and NOW!

GLASS: AN EGYPTIAN LEGACY

The "Treasures of Tutankhamun" exhibit now on tour in this country has caused many people to marvel at the ancient Egyptians' artistic abilities, as well as their legendary skills of preservation.

Another invaluable contribution of the Egyptians—dating back more than 1,600 years before King Tut—is treasured by modern man for its exceptional preservative qualities. That legacy from an ancient culture is glass.

From Jewelry to Jars

The Egyptians are credited with inventing man-made glass about 3,000 B.C. And although by the "boy king's" reign (about 1335 B.C.), the use of glass was limited mainly to the creation of jewelry and ornaments, a technique had been developed to produce glass bottles. Those who could afford them—primarily the ruling class and priests—considered the glass jars, jugs and ointment cases as valuable as their jewels.

Egyptian merchants soon learned that such products as wine, honey and oils could be carried and preserved far better in glass than in other packaging materials, a fact which many of today's food packagers still appreciate.

Before 1890, the operations of most glass factories were not much different than those 2,000 years earlier. However, by the start of this century, the development, manufacture and use of glass increased at an extraordinary pace and once-rare glass containers became increasingly more affordable.

A Clear Choice in Packaging

The development of large furnaces and automated equipment since the 1900s has reduced the cost of glass, making it more economical as a packaging material. As a result, about 208 containers for every man, woman and child in this country are made each year in the United States for packaging food, beverages, chemicals and cosmetics. In fact, Americans eat twice as much food from glass jars as do all other countries combined. But concerned consumers should also be aware that, unlike other containers, all glass jars and bottles are completely recyclable. And if you're an ecology-minded shopper, you'll be interested to know that glass is made from sand, one of our country's most abundant natural resources.

Consumers often choose products packaged in glass because they know that glass preserves freshness and flavor. They also appreciate the fact that glass containers are resealable, are available in many sizes and shapes and don't affect the taste or aroma of their contents. An added benefit: Glass clearly displays a product's size, color and shape, so there are no surprises when the package is opened.

Glass — A Natural Choice

In a world where dynamic technological and cultural changes are commonplace, few things have a lasting impact on our lives. Yet, unlike the long-lost treasures of a young king who ruled the Nile more than 3,000 years ago, another Egyptian legacy—glass packaging—continuously has maintained its popularity for nearly fifty centuries... naturally.

Exposure To Radiation Is Health Hazard

University News

Dangers inherent in the use of radioactive material are difficult to comprehend. Radiation cannot be seen or smelled. It produces no visible damage — no cuts or broken bones.

But scientiests know that heavy doses or radiation increase a person's risk of developing cancer. Experience from the World War II atomic bombing of Japan demonstrated this clearly. Scientists also suspect that heavy doses of radiation may cause genetic damage, resulting in defects in the offspring of the victims.

Donald Barber, a professor of environmental health at the University of Minnesota who specializes in radiation protection, explained that damage occurs when energy contained in radioactive particles or gases is transferred to cells of the body. "The body must do something with this excess energy," Barber said. "It reacts by producing toxic materials."

Body goes to work immediately repairing the damaged tissue and disposing of the toxic by-products after the exposure. But if repeated or very heavy exposure occurs, the toxic chemicals may build up to concentrations known to cause cancerous tumors, he said.

Radiation has been linked to increased incidences of leukemia (cancer of the blood-forming system), breast and thyroid cancer. Tissue that is growing rapidly is the most susceptible, he said, which means that young children and fetuses are most vulnerable, he said.

Consensus among scientists is that the effects of radiation are cumulative — repeated small doses over time can have the same effect as one large dose, Barber said. Standards have been set for the annual allowable exposure to man-made sources of radiation, such as medical x-rays or nuclear power plants.

But, Barber said, people are constantly exposed to low doses of naturally occurring radiation from sunlight, from the earth's crust, and from certain forms of potassium, a nutrient used by the body.

The best precaution against radiation damage is simply to limit one's exposure to man-made sources of radiation. While medical applications of radiation can be very valuable, Barber feels it is important that they not be used as a matter of routine. "One of the biggest problems we have in radiation protection is in educating physicians about the importance of avoiding routine X-rays," he said.

When radiation exposure results from a nuclear accident, such as the one that occurred recently in Harrisburg, Pa., the precautions one can take are to leave the area, or, if the releases of radioactive material are small, remain indoors. The intensity of radiation falls off whenever it must pass through anything solid, such as the wall of a house, although the degree varies with the radioactive source, Barber said.

Radiation can enter the body in a number of ways. Some forms can penetrate the body. Others are taken in through inhalation and ingestion or are absorbed through the skin. In the latter case, radiation damage can be avoided if the skin is washed immediately after exposure, he said.

Some radioactive particles, particularly radioiodine, may remain in the soil after radioactive emissions have been carried away by the wind. These can be taken up by the food chain and appear later in milk, he said.

If ingested by children, the radioiodine is absorbed by the thyroid where it has been known to cause cancer. One way to prevent incidences of such cancer following a release is by taking potassium iodide tablets, Barber said. The non-radioactive iodine in the tablets saturates the thyroid, preventing it from absorbing the radioiodine.

Barber expressed concern over comparrisons being made between the exposures to radiation around the Harrisburg plant and exposures from dental X-rays.

He fears this comparison may lead people to believe the exposures near Harrisburg are safe. "Dental X-rays involve very high doses," he said. "Although the doses are acceptable by medical standards, they involve exposures that people in occupational environments (involving radiation) work well below."

PERK UP YOUR PORCH

It can be easier than you may think to put new life into your old back porch if you use a little imagination and very little money.

For a bright as a dandelion look, let the sunshine into your enclosed porch by keeping it at least half glassed. For more earthy delights, let it be a home-grown greenhouse, and fill it with lots of pots of ferns, flowers and greenery in general.

When you get down to it, you want a floor that's cheerful, cleanable and comfortable for this casual new room. That combination is now a lot easier to get, thanks to a new kind of floor covering from Dayco Corporation. Designed by one of America's leading carpet stylists, Ballerina is a tough, durable polyester laminated onto a thick latex foam cushion.

Though soft, it exhibits strong resistance to soil and wear. Colors stay bright and vibrant. It retains its shape, resists most stains and provides resiliency underfoot.

Besides being decorative and durable, this floor covering can save you money. Ballerina makes it possible to cover an average-sized room (12 x 15) wall-to-wall for less than $60. It also helps insulate the room, which reduces heating and cooling costs and soaks up room noise to make your covered porch a more pleasant place. In addition, Ballerina never needs waxing, scrubbing or shampooing. Most soil or loose dirt can be swept up with a broom or vacuum cleaner. Most spills just wipe away.

A beautiful place to put your plants is a newly enclosed porch.

It comes in a variety of attractive patterns and colors to go with the most formal or the most casual room. One popular pattern is Bamboo, shown here. This has the look of reeds, bamboo and willow for a touch of hand-woven basketry and wicker.

To complete the picture and complement the floor, set in a pair of bamboo chairs, neatly upholstered in easy-clean vinyl, add a wooden-looking lamp stand and a woven trunk to serve as a table, and you can be set to enjoy the new room you've made from your old porch, practically for pennies.

For a free color brochure about Ballerina, including complete how-to-install instructions, write to "Ballerina," Dayco Corp., Marketing Services Dept., 333 West First St., Dayton, Ohio 45402.

PUDDING IS THE BERRIES

Puddings continue to make food news as basis for a variety of distinctive desserts. Here's a great one for the family. It's easy enough to prepare an hour or so before dinner. Fresh strawberries never had it so good, rippled through this creamy tapioca pudding with the wholesome goodness of milk. Garnish with a dollop of prepared whipped topping before serving. Minute tapioca makes this dessert possible, providing tender texture. This eggless milk pudding is an appealing way to add milk to the diet of those who just don't drink as much milk as they should.

IT'S-THE-BERRIES PUDDING

1/3 cup quick-cooking tapioca
1/3 cup sugar
1/8 teaspoon salt
2 cups milk
1 tablespoon butter or margarine
1 cup sweetened sliced strawberries

Combine tapioca, sugar and salt in saucepan. Add milk and butter. Let stand 5 minutes. Bring to a full boil, stirring constantly. Remove from heat and cool 20 minutes. Gently stir in strawberries. Serve warm, topped with prepared whipped topping, if desired. Makes about 2-2/3 cups or 5 servings.

Arctic Announces 3-Year Settlement

While only a few years ago the first major strike action against Arctic Enterprises, Inc., made news in the Thief River Falls community, this year the announcement of a three-year settlement in advance of contract expiration is in the headlines.

Arctic Enterprises president John Penn announced late last week that three-year labor agreements had been ratified by about 1,000 members of the International Woodworkers of America Local 4-348 at plants in Thief River Falls, Clearbrook and Karlstad. They become effective this month and expire on June 15, 1982.

Terms of the contracts at Thief River Falls and Clearbrook plants call for wage increases averaging approximately 50 cents per hour for each of the three years of the contracts. The contract for the garment plant at Karlstad calls for increases of approximately 35 cents per hour for each of the three years plus an incentive program offered in that plant only.

Contract expiring this year was settled following a lengthy strike in 1976. That three-year pact was signed in early August following a walkout which began June 15. During the duration of the strike, non-union employees of the company manufactured 1,600 snowmobiles in Thief River Falls. The contract settlement that year changed the contract expiration date from June to August.

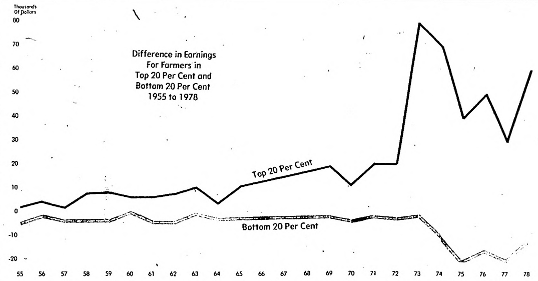
In 1974 the company was struck from July 8 to July 19 before agreement was reached on a two-year contract with a wage re-opener in the second year of the contract.

Following the settlement this year, Penn said the company is "pleased to be able to keep these employees' earnings in line with industry standards. Many of these workers accepted only nominal wage increases during some difficult years of slow sales for the snowmobile industry. Now the outlook for the industry, and especially for Arctic, has greatly improved."

Penn said that the principal reason for renegotiating these agreements early was to provide greater production flexibility for both snowmobiles and cold weather clothing.

Wayne Bjornrud, business agent for Local 4-348 of the International Woodworkers of America, said that the union was pleased with the attitude and spirit of negotiations this year as well as the settlement itself. He said that having the new contract go into effect on April 9 will result in additional wage benefits for workers because the previous contract was not due to end for several months.

Bjornrud also said that the contract negotiated provided some changes in contract language and revisions under the pension plan which will go into effect at the start of the pension plan year on June 15.



Parking Project Plans Advanced

by Kim Blaeser
Times Reporter

"The downtown development committee has looked at this parking project for better than five years. It has been researched and re-researched," stated Jon Larson, who is a member of a committee presently attempting to outline an assessment district and design an assessment formula for a downtown parking project.

In February of 1974 a hearing was held on a project similar to that being proposed now. However, the assessment formula was judged to be inequitable and the plan lay dormant for a number of years. Then in November of 1978 the downtown development committee (DDC) came before the city council with a proposed assessment district and formula. Again fault was found in the formula and the council voted to instruct city staff to work with the DDC in devising an equitable formula.

At present the parking assessment committee has come up with a formula proposal and is seeking more accurate information about square footage of retail buildings to help it in the refining of the formula.

"I think the formula is generally going to attempt to measure customer generated traffic," explained city clerk Jerry Wigness. "The formula also has to reflect the benefit the business receives. Square footage is being used in place of front footage (used in previously proposed formulas) but in tandem with that we are taking into account the type of use. We have set up seven different categories each carrying a different portion of the burden based on the amount of customer traffic they generate."

The seven categories into which all the businesses are classified include retail, professional, financial, public, food and beverage, office and service, and wholesale - processing - manufacturing. Under the present proposal residential and church

Goodridge Area History Group Plans Jubilee

Goodridge area historical society met Friday to accept tentative plans for the 11 towns jubilee and dedication of Woodrow school at the society's historical building.

The jubilee will be the celebration of 75 years since the 11 townships in eastern Pennington county were opened for settlement in 1904.

The celebration, set for July 4, will be a one-day event, beginning at 9 a.m., and concluding with an evening outdoor pageant, "Weathered Years," and a dance with the Dickie Miller band providing the music. Some events planned are indoor and outdoor booths, tour of the historical building, an ice cream parlor featuring five-cent cones, and live demonstrations, such as home canning and the display and use of a cream separator.

The board of directors will meet Monday, April 23, at 8 p.m., at the Goodridge school to hear committee reports and to further plan the celebration.

Annual Scout Expo Sunday

Annual Voyageur Trails district Boy Scout exposition will be held Sunday from 2 to 5 p.m. in the sports arena on highway 59 west in Thief River Falls. Nearly all of the packs, troops and explorer posts in the district will participate in this year's exposition, according to Bill Bloeman, general chairman.

Theme of the exposition is "Great American Adventure". An exposition is designed to give cub scouts, boy scouts and explorer scouts an opportunity to demonstrate to the public some of the scout skills that they have learned. In addition to the local and area troops, packs and posts, three units of 95 cubs, scouts and beavers from the Seven Oaks district in Winnipeg will also be participating in the exposition.

Admission to the exposition is $1 per adult with children admitted free. Tickets are available from cubs, scouts and explorers throughout the district.

Scouting units from Thief River Falls, Red Lake Falls, Warren, Karlstad, Stephen, Hallock, Newfolden, Lake Bronson, Greenbush, Roseau and Winnipeg will be participating in the show with a similar show being held in Crookston for the southern half of Voyageur Trails district.

Abundant Pork Supply May Hurt '79 Price

Rapid expansion of the nation's pork supplies will lower prices to producers throughout the year, but the influence of short beef supplies should keep 1979 hog returns above the cost of production.

That's the outlook of Ken Egertson, University of Minnesota extension economist. Pork supplies will probably peak during the first quarter of 1980, he says.

"Prices will be trending downward throughout 1979 with fourth quarter prices probably in the low-to-middle $40 per hundredweight range," he says. "The most intense downward pressure will not occur until 1980."

Farrowing intentions for the March-May period were reported 24 per cent higher than last year.

For the 927 farmers involved in the farm management program offered through the Thief River Falls area vocational-technical institute, 1978 was a considerably better year than 1977. Net cash income for the participating farmers climbed to $11,560 on total average farm receipts of $117,101.

Program participants will learn more about their operations on Tuesday when the annual summary meeting for the program will be held at 8 p.m. in the auditorium at Northland community college. Guest speaker for the meeting will be Dr. Edgar Persons of the agricultural education department of the University of Minnesota.

Dr. Persons is recognized in the field of agricultural education as the man most responsible for developing the present farm management program record analysis, according to Ed Sisler, director of the locally-based program. Those attending are advised to use the Northland college parking lot. Copies of the 1978 analysis booklets will be distributed to those enrolled in the program as they enter the auditorium.

At the conclusion of the meeting, the traditional lunch of strawberry shortcake will be served.

Earnings summary for 1978 will show average total farm receipts of $117,101 and total farm expenses of $93,530, leaving a net cash income of $11,560 from a return to management and labor of $23,570.

Average farm receipts included $26,275 from livestock, $51,948 from crops, $1,372 from machinery and equipment sold and gas tax refunds, and $7,014 in miscellaneous for total farm sales of $87,352. Increase in farm capital was $29,295 and family living from the farm averaged $454 to provide the total of $117,101 in receipts.

Farm expenses included $48,480 in cash operating expenses divided as follows: Livestock and livestock expense, $5,583; feed purchased, $3,930; fertilizers and chemicals, $10,135; other crop expenses, $8,838; custom work hired, $2,013; farm share of gas, oil and grease purchased, $4,314; repair and operation of machinery, tractor and farm share of auto, $5,198; repair and upkeep of real estate, $889; repair and upkeep of livestock equipment, $281; wages of hired labor, $3,178; utility expense, $826; real estate taxes, $1,732; and general farm expense, $1,563.

Machinery purchased for crop and general farm use averaged $15,885 per farm, livestock equipment averaged $623 and buildings and fencing averaged $10,866. Interest on farm capital was charged at $16,976, unpaid family labor at $118 and labor for partners and other operators at $598. Board furnished to hired labor averaged $47 per farm.

Growth in the numbers of dollars which must be handled in agricultural operations these days can be seen by comparing some previous years from record analysis reports. Total farm receipts of $117,101 compared to only $21,311 back in 1965. That figure climbed to $29,660 by 1970 when 385 records were analyzed. By 1975 there were 1,078 records analyzed and total farm receipts had jumped to an average of $65,027. A year ago the receipts averaged $80,881.

Expenses also climbed accordingly. While they totaled $93,530 this past year, they were only $17,200 for the 202 farmers in the program in 1965. Expenses increased to $27,458 in 1970 and $60,182 in 1975. A year ago total farm expenses were $76,314.

There has been a dramatic separation of livestock and crops in the total number of dollars they produce within the area covered by the management report. From 1965 to 1972 the income from crops and livestock was about even at 50 per cent of total farm revenue produced. In 1973 this took a big spread and widened even more in 1974 when livestock produced only about 25 per cent of the income and crops the other 75 per cent. This has narrowed to a nearly 30-70 per cent ratio the past four years as livestock and milk prices have increased.

Net worth of 451 farms averaged during 1978 showed a gain of $18,464 from $114,947 on January 1 to $133,412 on December 31. Assets increased in every category to $242,329 while liabilities also rose in every category to $108,917.

Among increases in assets were value of livestock from $15,618 to $22,416; crop, seed and feed from $28,664 to $36,404; total power, machinery and equipment from $39,229 to $45,368; land from $73,575 to $77,643; and buildings and fences from $18,076 to $22,398. Non-farm assets grew from $16,630 to $19,062, cash on hand and in the bank from $5,219 to $5,463 and value of dwelling from $12,062 to $13,575.

Liabilities growing during the year included real estate mortgages from $47,929 to $53,779; chattel mortgages from $36,726 to $42,562; notes from $8,204 to $10,782; and accounts payable from $1,265 to $1,794.

Sisler points out that the farm management report is published annually to provide farmers, agriculture instructors and others with farm record analysis information which will be helpful in studying farming operations. The report is set up to show each cooperating farmer's individual figures and com-

Magic Is Theme For Cub Scout Pack 199 Meet

Cub Pack 199, sponsored by St. John Lutheran church, recently held it's monthly pack meeting in the basement of the church, according to Cubmaster Art Heinzo. Opening ceremony was done by Henry Holte's den three, followed by an invocation by Rev. Barrie Henke.

Exposition themes of engineering and rain gutter regatta races were demonstrated to the pack. All cubs and webelos will be participating in the exposition on April 22. Den activity displays were viewed, followed by group sparklers, den skits, advancement awards, denner recognition and refreshments.

The month's theme was magic with den two demonstrating "Magic." Den three demonstrated the "Prisoner's Escape." Den four demonstrated the "Magic Breakfast." Den five went to outer space and performed miracles with "The Magic Machine." The webelos den demonstrated some other magic tricks.

Dens five, six and seven were presented with a display award for participating in scout week activities.

One hundred and thirteen awards consisting of webelos activity badges, rank advancements and numerous arrows and beads were awarded to boys in the 86-member cub pack. Earning their wolf badges were Brian Kertz, Brian Joppru, Lynn Baker, Richard Nelson, Mike Sandahl, Jon Gustafson, Keith Olson, Matthew Simons, Ryan Kezar, and Mike Ault. Earning their bear badge were Trent Lemer, Andy Gengler, Jon Erickson, Terry Pribyl, Russel Cruse, Marty Levin, Todd Page, Wayne Delage, Joe Drevlow, Matthew Holte, Conrad Joppru, Jim Parnham and Paul Brandt.

All of the webelos received one or more activity badges. Numerous gold and silver arrows were awarded to boys who completed electives. All denners and assistant denners were recognized by applause.

Following schedule was set for exposition participation: Dens 4,5 and 8 from 1:45 to 2:45; Dens 7 and 9 from 2:45 to 3:30; Dens 1 and 2 from 3:30 to 4:15 and Dens 3 and 6 from 4:15 to 5 p.m. All dens should have their expo tickets to Luther Hanson by April 18.

Because of the scout exposition, pack 199 will not hold an April Pack meeting. The boys will be preparing for the exposition and work on the May theme which is "Energy Savers." The webelos will prepare for the Arrow of Light graduation which will be held in conjuction with the spring district camporee on May 18, 19 and 20 at Camp Wabaunaquat.

Den three served as host den.

Reciprocity Aired By U of M Regents

Four shareholder resolutions asking for changes in companies doing business in South Africa were recently approved by the University of Minnesota board of regents. The board voted to abstain on another three resolutions.

Votes were taken at the first meeting attended by new regents Charles H. Casey, a veterinarian from West Concord, and William B. Dosland, a Moorhead attorney.

Dosland and Casey were sworn in for six-year terms on the board by Minnesota speaker of the house Rodney Searle, along with reelected regents Mary Schertler of St. Paul and Lauris Krenik of Madison Lake.

Board voted to support a shareholder resolution to Phillips Petroleum calling for total withdrawal from South Africa because of Phillips' poor record in adhering to the Sullivan principales.

The Sullivan principles, drafted by Baptist minister Leon H. Sullivan, urge elimination of segregation in work areas; equality in employment, pay hiring, training and promotion; and improvement of employees' quality of life. In January, the regents voted to pursue proxy issues in companies doing business in South Africa rather than sell stock the university owns in these companies.

Board also voted to support resolutions requiring Ford Motor company and General Motors to stop the sale of strategic materials in South Africa, and ~~another~~ motion asking Mobil corporation to recognize trade unions of its black employees.

Motions to abstain on three other resolutions were also approved: two resolutions asking Mobil and Standard Oil of California to stop the sale of oil to Rhodesia, and a third resolution to require Exxon corporation to curtail expansion of its South African operations.

An earlier motion by David Lebodoff, Minneapolis, to support the Exxon resolution was defeated on a 6-6 vote.

Reciprocal arrangements between the University of Minnesota and educational systems in Wisconsin, North Dakota and South Dakota were also discussed by the regents at a meeting of the committee of the whole.

Several regents have expressed concern in the past about the numbers of Minnesota students choosing to go to school in the three states with which Minnesota has reciprocal agreements.

Stanley Kegler, vice president for institutional relations, said results of a survey conducted recently by the Minnesota Higher Education coordinating board (HECB) are somewhat misleading. In the survey, students from Minnesota were asked why they chose educational institutions in Wisconsin and North Dakota.

Most of the respondents, Kegler said, gave as their reasons a preference for the academic programs in the other two states. "It's a standard answer in surveys of this type," Kegler said, adding that if Wisconsin and North Dakota students were asked why they chose Minnesota schools, the answer would be the same.

According to the HECB figures, 5,000 students from Minnesota attended institutions in Wisconsin and 2,700 Minnesotans chose North Dakota schools, while only 2,300 students from Wisconsin and 1,500 students from North Dakota chose Minnesota.

Kegler cited "geographical access" as the major cause of the disparity. "North Dakota has several four-year schools on its eastern border, while there are few on our western border," he said. "The Red River Valley does know North Dakota institutions better."

Kegler said the same thing is true on the Minnesota-Wisconsin border. "Border schools are the major recipients of Minnesota students," he said, adding that certain academic programs are available only at a few institutions.

"If we're only going to look at it from the point of dollar outflow, we're missing the boat," Dosland said. "Look at it from the point of view of the students. Why come 400 miles to go to school when the same program may be offered close to home?"

Lebedoff expressed concern that the regents might be hasty in deciding reciprocal agreements are not benefitting the university.

"Reciprocity has not been in effect long enough for us to conclude it was a mistake," Lebedoff said. "I hope the day comes when the traffic flow is explainable by the excellence of the programs alone."

In other action, the regents heard a recommendation from the administration that the university's contract with Minnesota public interest research group (MPIRG) be extended another two years, and that the fee collected by increased from $1 a quarter to $1.25 the first year of the contract and $1.50 the second.

MPIRG is supported by money collected from students by the university. Students have the option of refusing to pay the fee or having their money refunded once the fee has been paid.

MPIRG is asking for a increase to $2, while the Twin Cities student assembly and the fees committee are asking for increases to $1.60 and $1.50, respectively.

The MPIRG contract will be up for action before the board at its May meeting. Frank Wilderson, vice president for student affairs, said the administration is also recommending that the end of the proposed two-year contract MPIRG go through the normal fee-setting process required of other student groups.

If that occurs, the MPIRG fee would not be treated as a special fee, but would be considered by university fee-setting groups as one item in the list of items that make up the total quarterly student services fee.

Vote Restores Funds For Soil Conservation

Vote by the Senate's agriculture committee to restore funding for soil and conservation service (SCS) programs represents an "essential investment in the nation's future productivity," says Senator Rudy Buschwitz.

"Minnesota is presently losing eight to 12 tons of top soil per acre every year on its unprotected land. That unprotected land amounts to almost half of our total farm acreage," he explained.

"We're already noticing substantial reductions in crop yields due to erosion on that unprotected land. If we expect to reverse this trend and to ensure that our farmland produces in the years to come, we must support the conservation efforts of the SCS."

When President Carter's budget reached the agriculture committee for review, Boschwitz noted, $1.6 million had been cut from the SCS's conservation operations. Committee voted to restore that amount and to raise the total amount budgeted to $272,043,000 for fiscal year 1979.

Committee also voted to raise funds for resource conservation and development (RCD) projects to $28,000,000 for fiscal year 1979. RCD projects are ones handled by local governments which provide technical and financial assistance to help prevent floods, promote proper drainage, and control pollutants.

"We must definitely seek to curb the growth of the rate of government spending," Boschwitz emphasized. "However, in so doing, we can't afford to harm programs that are essential for our nation's future economy.

"It's a question of setting priorities within the budget for the department of agriculture and making sure we're spending that budget on programs which actually help our nation's farmers and their production," he concluded.

PCB Levels In Fish Affect Family Meals

Minnesota Department of Health has issued new guidelines restricting human consumption of fish taken from certain lakes and rivers in the state.

Studies conducted by the state Department of Natural Resources had earlier revealed elevated levels of mercury in fish taken from 13 lakes in the Rainy Lake watershed district and parts of the Mississippi, Red and St. Louis rivers. Sampling done by the Minnesota pollution control agency (PCA) and the Minnesota-Wisconsin interagency task force had revealed elevated levels of polychlorinated biphenyls (PCBs) in fish taken from portions of the Mississippi, Minnesota and St. Croix rivers. More recently, the PCA has found elevated levels of mercury in fish taken from the straight river, south of Owatonna.

Guidelines are designed to limit the amount of mercury and PCBs in the diet of people who eat rough or game fish taken from these lakes and rivers on a regular basis.

PCBs are toxic materials which tend to accumulate in the fatty tissue of fish living in contaminated waters. Although the use of these substances were curtailed in 1971, they are still present in some waste water effluents and river bottom sediments.

Mercury is a metal present throughout the environment. Certain forms of mercury tend to accumulate in fish, and may reach high concentrations in larger, older fish. People who eat enough contaminated fish may suffer the effects of mercury poisoning.

Health department's guidelines recommend limiting the number of meals each month which include fish from the affected lakes and rivers. Children and women of childbearing age are urged to limit consumption to half the amount recommended in the guidelines.

A copy of the guidelines is available from the Division of Environmental Health, Minnesota Department of Health, 717 Delaware Street, S.E., Minneapolis 55440.

The guidelines show that consumption of fish taken from the Red River north of Oslo should not surpass nine game fish meals per month.

Farm Record Analysis Shows Profitable '78

parisons with the average, top 20 per cent and bottom 20 per cent of the farms in the analysis. It also shows each farmer his earnings, increase or decrease in net worth, financial standing and a number of efficiency factors on his various enterprises.

To efficiently and effectively work with the nearly 1,000 records analyzed, Sisler said, the Thief River Falls analysis center utilizes satellite analysis centers at Barnesville, Agassiz Co-op center at Climax, Detroit Lakes, Fertile, Fosston, Hawley and Pelican Rapids. The local analysis center uses automatic data processing facilities in Madison, Wis.

Farmers are enrolled in the program through 32 schools in northwestern Minnesota, including Ada, Agassiz Valley center school at Climax, Barnesville, Battle Lake, Baudette, University of Minnesota at Crookston, Detroit Lakes, East Grand Forks, Fergus Falls, Fertile, Fosston, Goodridge, Greenbush, Badger, Warroad, Hawley, Henning, Lancaster, Mahnomen, Moorhead, New York Mills, Pelican Rapids, Perham, Plummer, Oklee, Red Lake Falls, Roseau, Thief River Falls, Twin Valley, Ulen, Hitterdal and Warren.

Parking Plan For Business Area Reviewed

property would be exempt from assessment since benefit to them would be nominal.

"It is the intent of the committee," said Wigness "to have at least 50 per cent of the assessments go against retail business." Also proposed to carry a large part of the burden are the businesses in the financial category.

The formula as it is now being considered sets the value of a square foot of business at 70 cents. The area of a business would be multiplied by 70 cents and the product multiplied by a percentage depending on what category the business falls into. Percentages to be assigned to the various categories have not yet been determined.

In preliminary tests of percentage assignments some inequities were apparent and the parking assessment committee is attempting to correct these. To aid in the refinement of the formula the committee has written to businesses in the district asking them to supply a sketch of their facility with exact square footages. April 25 has been set as the target date for submitting the information.

Square foot value times business area times business category percentage will yield the basic assessment. From this, however, it is proposed that a parking credit will be subtracted. Value of a square foot of parking is set at 35 cents. To obtain the parking credit the proposed formula would multiply the number of parking stalls owned by 35 cents and that product by the area of a parking stall. So a business' final assessment would be its basic assessment minus its parking credit.

"There is also some consideration for using the number of employees each business has and plugging that into the formula," commented Larson. "But that is merely a consideration at this time. We have to emphasize the fact that we are still in the process of developing a formula so figures are just preliminary."

Area being considered for assessment is an excess of 8,000 square feet. The basic boundaries of the assessment district are Duluth avenue, Fifth street, Atlantic avenue, the Burlington-Northern railroad tracks and the Red Lake river with the district jutting out to include Northwestern hospital and the Land O'Lakes hatchery.

The project being proposed would involve the addition of up to 200 parking stalls in the downtown area and would cost an estimated half a million dollars. Included in the cost estimate is property acquisition, demolition, clearing of property, excavation, backfilling, blacktopping, signing and control systems.

In the original proposals the project was to be a 50-50 deal between the city and the DDC. Now, however, it is felt by committee members that in-kind services by the city would be a fair contribution.

Businesses in the assessment district would pay for the parking project over a period of 10 to 15 years. "Under the proposal," explained Wigness, "we would be selling general obligation improvement bonds just like for a street project or a sewer and water project and we would have special assessments to back up payment of these improvement bonds."

Guidelines for the creation of a parking assessment district are found in public law chapter 459 of the Minnesota statutes and guidelines for assessment are in chapter 429.

"The Minnesota statutes provide for a parking assessment district," states Larson, "but the difficult part of this is that in the state statute there is no provision for a formula so the formula has to be devised by each individual community and in some instances has required special legislation."

Other cities that have attempted or accomplished the formulation of a parking assessment district include Willmar, Rochester, Alexandria, Hibbing and Hutchinson and the committee does intend to contact these cities to obtain information about their formulas.

"We want our formula to be as equitable and fair as we can make it," the city clerk stated. When the committee receives the information from downtown businesses regarding square footage they will then refine their formula and come up with examples showing how the formula will work. In May they will hold an informational meeting at which they will explain the project, describe the assessment district and the formula, answer any questions from businessmen and hear any complaints citizens might have.

"We are hoping that we will conduct the informational meeting adequately so that most of the questions will be answered before the proposal comes to the city council," explained Jon Larson. "What we want to know is: Do they like the concept of a parking assessment district? Do they like the formula? And do they like the properties that have been proposed for purchase?"

Properties now in mind for purchase are a 50'x140' lot presently housing the Lind Motor Supply building, a 50'x140' adjacent lot owned by Northwestern hospital, and a 100'x140' lot north across the street from the Paint and Glass building.

Following the information session the parking assessment committee will make any adjustments they feel are necessary in the formula and then set a June hearing date.

Committee members are hoping that the assessment district concept can also work to bring new business into the downtown area and to prevent any blighted areas from developing in downtown Thief River Falls. "The committee wants to remain flexible enough," says Wigness, "that if someone decides they would like to buy a parcel of land being used as a parking lot by the city, we could take the money and reinvest it into some other deteriorated property or some incompatible use property. In effect it kind of winds up being both a parking project and an urban renewal type thing within the community."

"Our purpose isn't to turn our downtown into one big parking lot so that everyone can build on the edge of town," Larson explains. "The idea of the additional parking is to compliment what we currently have. We are also acquiring the properties with resale in mind so we can have business in our downtown. We don't want to be locked in 100 per cent to parking only. We want to be able to have properties that were bought at a 1979 price to be resold to an investor at a reasonable cost to him thus enticing him to put a business in our community."

Larson and Wigness explain that the city's goal has always been to have a strong downtown and they feel the parking assessment district could help prevent overabundant strip development by making property downtown available at a reasonable cost. This would also save the city from having to undertake expensive sewer and water extensions to the strip areas.

Also in the minds of the committee for the distant future is a parking ramp. "We are looking at the economic feasibility of it," says Larson. "The obvious benefit is that we would utilize less square footage and provide essentially the same parking we are looking for now."

In conjunction with the parking project the DDC is also planning a downtown lighting project which would see 165 new lighting standards installed in the downtown area. Cost of this project, which is proposed to be born on a 50-50 basis by the city and members of an assessment district, is estimated at $250,000.

"Of that quarter of a million dollars that would be spent," Larson says, "I estimate that $180,000 would go right back into our community in jobs and money spent in the community."

Much of the city's share in the lighting project would be in-kind service. The lighting standard proposed for use was designed by the Thief River Falls utilities department and could be manufactured locally and installed by city employees. The standards would be similar to those in use on LaBree Ave. for the past few years but would be made out of steel rather than aluminum. The standards have a built in speaker system that could be used in an emergency and automatic circuits which would aid in energy saving.

Assessment district for the lighting project would be the same as for the parking district but the formula would be altered. Since residential and church buildings would also benefit from the lights they would not be exempt and it is likely a front footage formula might be employed in this case.

A refined formula for the lighting district will be forthcoming and it is hoped that hearings could be held on both projects the same night.

Volunteers At Clearbrook To Get Awards

Contributions and accomplishments of volunteers will be saluted during the week of April 22-28 as the Clearbrook Good Samaritan center joins in celebrating national volunteer week. An evening banquet has been planned with award certificates being presented based on each individual's number of volunteer hours.

According to Good Samaritan administrator Dwight Voigt, volunteers have contributed over 1,600 hours to the center this past year, and have done much to supplement the care and services provided by paid staff members.

National volunteer week is sponsored by the national center for voluntary action, a national non-profit organization, and is designated as a time to officially recognize the many and varied contributions of volunteers, to publicly thank them for their efforts and to encourage all citizens to use their time and talents for the betterment of their own communities.

Offer Five-Week Field Study In Archaeology

Archaeology is work. . .the work of discovery. That's the anticipation-filled belief that's prompting Bemidji state university anthropology department chairman Alan Brew to once again offer a five week field study to interested students.

"Summer Field Session in Archaeology" will be held for the eighth year June 11- July 13 somewhere in the Bemidji region. Exact location in the Mississippi Headwaters area is yet to be announced, but Brew indicates the course will focus on Woodland prehistory.

Undergraduate and graduate university students, as well as junior and senior high school students, may participate in the eight credit session which requires no prior experience. Four weeks will be spent in excavation and-or survey, preceded by infield instruction, and followed by laboratory preparation and analysis.

For applications and information, contact: Alan P. Brew, Chairman, Department of Anthropology, Bemidji State University, Bemidji, MN 56601, by April 15. Later applications will be considered on a space-available basis until May 15.

Farmers Say Milk Support Price Needed

A Minnesota dairy farmer told a subcommittee of the U.S. house agriculture committee that midwest dairymen need a continued 80 per cent of parity price support for milk.

Ron Hauglie of Rush City in Chisago county told the dairy subcommittee, "farmers simply must have some semblance of price stability. The most stabilizing thing we have going for us is the 80 per cent of parity support price floor."

Hauglie testified on behalf of the dairy farmer members of the Minnesota farmers union. Under the government's price support program, the U.S. department of agriculture purchases dairy products for use in government nutrition programs in order to keep the price paid to farmers roughly at 80 per cent of parity.

Hauglie told the committee, "we are heartened by the recent conclusion of the congressional budget office study, which indicates that anything less than 80 per cent of parity (paid to farmers) is not in the best interest of dairy farmers or the consuming public. Of course, we have known this for some time. Government and American consumers must come to realize that they have a significant stake in a healthy American agriculture."

The farmers union spokesman told the subcommittee that his very detailed records for his 57-cow herd reveal a net return for management and return on investment, after expenses, amounted to only $1,426 in 1978.

Hauglie said that farmers deserve at least a minimum fair price for what they produce.

Mrs. Noreen Is Delegate To Leader's Forum

Mrs. Lloyd Noreen of rural Thief River Falls returned recently from Washington, D.C., where she attended a national 4-H leader forum at the national 4-H center as one of 90 delegates from Minnesota, Illinois and Prince Edward Island, Canada.

Developed around the theme of 4-H in the future, the sessions helped leaders become more effective in working with 4-H members and other volunteers. Featured were indepth workshops on health, youth leaders for community action, working with parents, economics, jobs and careers, and fun for 4-H.

Educational field trips added depth to the program. During a day on Capitol Hill to see the federal government in action and discuss issues, Janice visited with Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland, Rep. Arlan Stangeland, and Senators Dave Durenburger and Rudy Boschwitz. Other field trips included Gettysburg, Arlington cemetery, Mount Vernon, Islamic center, Washington cathedral, White House, Smithsonian institute, Ford theatre, Lincoln and Jefferson memorials, and the musical "Carmelina" at Kennedy center.

One of the most useful parts of the forum was sharing ideas with others about what works best in other 4-H clubs and counties.

4-H leader forums are conducted throughout the year by the national 4-H council in behalf of the cooperative extension service. You can learn more about how you might be involved as a 4-H member or leader by calling the Pennington county extension office at 681-2116.

Mrs. Noreen's trip was sponsored by the Pennington 4-H leader's council.

Calendar Year Corporate Tax Due April 16

Most corporations operating on a calendar year basis and having an expected tax liability of at least $40 for 1979 must make estimated Federal tax payments no later than April 16, 1979, the Internal Revenue Service said recently.

Amount due by April 16 should cover one quarter of the 1979 estimated tax, according to the IRS. The estimated tax and the amount of each installment can be computed on form 1120-W (worksheet), "1978 Corporation Estimated Tax." This form should not be filed with the IRS, but be retained with the corporation's records.

When payments of estimated tax are deposited in authorized commercial banks or Federal reserve banks, they must be accompanied by Federal tax deposit from 503, the IRS said.

Supplies of form 1120-W and a helpful pamphlet, IRS Publication 542, "Corporations and the Federal Income Tax" are available free from local IRS offices.

MEA Explains Settlement Of MCCFA Strike

The three-week long strike by 1,100 community college faculty members ended after a settlement was reached that partially restores arbitration award cuts made by the State Legislature in 1977.

The weeks of the strike saw a spirit of unity among striking faculty, involvement and interest on the part of college students and behind-the-scenes cooperation between the MEA, legislators and Governor Albert Quie.

Minnesota Community College Faculty Association (MCCFA) President Jim Durham called the strike "successful because we believed that the state should have to deal with the issue of the past arbitration awards that were cut, and our settlement reflects that."

Under the settlement approved by a 95 per cent vote of the faculty, community college instructors are assured total compensation increases — including salary schedule, step costs and fringe benefits — of about 19 per cent, or five per cent in addition to the suggested presidential guidelines, according to Durham.

He says the additional five per cent more than compensates for the cuts made by the Legislature in the 1977-79 arbitration awards. If the Supreme Court upholds the lower court decision, total compensation increases would rise to about 22 per cent, and an average of $1,400 back pay for each faculty member.

Salary increases of at least seven per cent for the first year and 6.6 for the second year will mean average dollar increases for instructors of $1,750 the first year and another $1,750 the second year.

Worst Disaster . . . Nobody Hurt

How many disasters of wide-scale significance can anyone recall where there were no fatalities nor injuries? A safe guess would probably be none — except for the recent accident at the Three Mile Island nuclear power plant near Harrisburg, Pennsylvania.

While the instant media and daily press were spewing out doomsday speculation on what could happen — almost, it seemed, in hopes that it would happen — people with technical knowledge and experience went about correcting the problem in a professional manner to avert any tragedy.

"Human Events" weekly put its finger on the pulse of the matter in a lead paragraph of a story pointing out what did not happen at Three Mile Island.

"Those apocalyptic predictions about the accident at the Three-Mile Island nuclear power plant near Harrisburg never did materialize," the story said, "Much to the annoyance of the soothsayers who seem to lust for a cataclysmic disaster to prove their horrendous forecasts were right all along."

The paper goes on to note that, "Since the March 28 incident . . . the media have had a field day scaring the wits out of the world. We were treated to headlines and stories that suggested a nuclear catastrophe was imminent, that the containment walls holding lethal doses of radiation were about to give way, that the food and water supply would be poisoned for years to come."

Despite agreement among those favoring and opposed to nuclear power that this was probably the most serious accident ever to befall an atomic plant, it is true that not a single person was killed or seriously injured. Not only was the public insulated from harm, but none of those who actually worked to repair the plant was hurt nor incapacitated.

Maximum radiation exposure to anyone in the area was said to be 80 millirems — and that only if the person had been outdoors 24 hours a day at the hottest recorded spots. Average radiation within 50 miles of the plant was said to be less than one millirem. Average exposure from a chest x-ray, by comparison, is 40 millirems. Average total exposure of Americans each year from natural background radiation and medical and dental uses of radiation is about 200 millirems.

And while the normal person may receive an average dosage of 200 millirems per year, safe dosage for workers at nuclear plants is considered to be 25 times that amount.

Atomic power is not without its problems — not the least of which is the disposal of nuclear waste. There are hazards involved in the use of nuclear energy and there is potential for catastrophe. We would like to emphasize that word "potential". At this point, the worst ever accident produced no human casualties.

We believe nuclear power must be looked at realistically. The supply of fossil fuels, especially petroleum products, is being depleted without hope of replacement. Alternate methods of producing electricity must be used, and nuclear production is an extremely efficient method of electrical generation.

When the temperature hits 40 degrees below zero and daylight is reduced to its fewest hours in the dead of winter, my choice would be to take a chance on nuclear-produced electricity as opposed to imminent freezing because heating is unavailable. The choice may well be that simple.

Rather than fret and worry about the potential for harm of nuclear reactors, we should be concentrating our efforts on increasing knowledge and technology to make atomic power safer and more productive. It may well be a case of learning to live with it or having to die without it.

A Controversial Bird

A bill introduced in the Minnesota Senate by Sen. Florian Chmielewski of Sturgeon Lake has two chances at passage this session — poor and none. This despite the fact that it is a good bill based on a great deal of assembled knowledge and with precedents throughout the nation.

Sen. Chmielewski has proposed to reinstate the mourning dove as a game bird in Minnesota. Although legal game in 36 states and providing the largest number of any game birds taken annually in the nation, the mourning dove has not been legally hunted in Minnesota since 17,500 were harvested in 1946.

"Birds raised in Minnesota are currently hunted in almost every state up and down the central migratory flyway, with no economic nor recreational benefit to Minnesotans," the senator accurately points out.

Mourning doves are fast-flying birds with a weaving flight which makes them challenging to hunt. They are very numerous throughout the state and have a high reproductive rate. National figures show that total populations of the birds have increased although larger numbers are being harvested.

Sen. Chmielewski, whose bill is supported by the state department of natural resources, points out that the dove is an ideal game bird for hunting by the handicapped and elderly, who cannot undertake rigorous hunting, because it is hunted at the edges of grain fields and at ponds.

Despite the biologically sound and well documented information in favor of a dove season, the state legislature will probably prefer to waste the outdoor opportunity which a season would provide. With all the other problems legislators face, it will be easier to ignore the proposal than act on it. That would be opting for politics rather than statesmanship — but a condition not foreign to legislative halls. It is called "letting sleeping dogs lie."

Follow Advice On Conservation

Following editorial is from the St. Cloud Times:

Minnesotans should follow Gov. Al Quie's advice and think about tomorrow in their fuel use today.

Last week Quie urged Minnesotans to reduce voluntarily their gasoline used by 10 per cent. Otherwise, he said, gas demand will exceed supply by 10 per cent this spring and summer.

Quie urged strict observance of the speed limit and use of car pools whenever possible as part of the conservation efforts. His plea joins those of many other government and industry officials requesting conservation and warning of rising prices.

Frankly, we do not think exhortations from governors or patriotic pleas alone will move poeple to restraint in their fuel use. However, we think self interest should.

It is difficult sometimes to be concerned about the oil shortage warnings. There always seems to be enough available. A number of examples can be cited to discredit the claims of oil shortages. Minnesotans cut gasoline use by 100 million barrels a year after the 1973 Arab oil embargo, but they gradually have pushed their consumption back up.

The temptation is to feel that shortages are mere fabrication to bring higher prices to oil producers. The temptation is to conclude that high prices will bring ample supplies to permit continued high consumption. Many oil producers encourage such a conclusion, we believe. Many consumer have adapted to high prices and have continued to consume.

The truth, however, is that the fuel we consume today is fuel we will not have tomorrow. The higher prices reflect the increased value of petroleum, a finite resource. Foreign oil producers are unwilling to sell their nations' finite resources at prices geared for our easy consumption today.

As consumption continues to increase, the more precious and therefore expensive petroleum becomes. Conservation is in our best self-interests.

Conservation is a means of "buying time" for development of alternate fuels to replace current petroleum sources. It takes time — years — to produce new fuel. If America uses up its present energy too fast, economic collapse would follow.

Furthermore, continued high consumption relies more and more on foreign producers; America's way of life comes more and more under foreign control.

Minnesotans, who are especially dependent on energy sources to cope with the harsh winter climate, should be especially concerned. They should follow Quie's advice and let conservation take a long-term place in their lives.

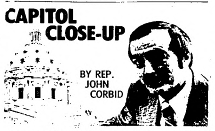
CAPITOL CLOSE-UP



BY REP. JOHN CORBID

The House has started meeting three times a week, often into the evening. Committee hearings at night are becoming the rule. I can report some conclusions from all of this activity:

The House of Representatives has passed the bill making it optional for health maintenance organizations to offer elective abortions among their services. Current health department rules require abortions to be available through these pre-paid health services. The bill, H.F. No. 479, removes the requirement but does not prevent their choosing to offer abortions. Any change in services would be negotiated the next time the employer or other group contract with the HMO is up for renewal. This way, all parties participate in or are aware of the choice.

Part of our action in the energy and utilities committee added a $4.8 million appropriation to the omnibus energy bill to help pay the labor cost of weatherproofing homes. In the context of the energy cirsis, it is obvious that we will be asked to subsidize the fuel bills of the lower-income portion of the population. If we can help make homes more energy efficient, less of our subsidy will be literally burned up and hopefully, we'll realize a lower demand for fuel, and maybe, a less steep rise in the cost of energy.

Minnesota gets 46 per cent of its electricity from nuclear power. The energy committee sees this as a major concern because the three existing nuclear power plants are storing their radioactive wastes inside the plants, and are running out of room. Federal designs and standards for the safe disposal or off-site storage of nuclear wastes are not available even though such plans have been promised. The power companies have not planned for the disposal. Without someplace to put the wastes, the plants will have to shut down — for the Prairie Island plants, that could be as soon as 1982, for Monticello, 1989.

Therefore, we are considering a bill stating that no new permits for nuclear power plant construction will be given until the utility can show a plan and a facility for permanent disposal of the radioactive waste. When the bill comes to a vote in committee next week, I will vote for it. Our electric rates do not now reflect the costs of storing the waste, or the economic effect of a shutdown. We are leaving those costs to future generations and committing them, and ourselves, to a form of power we may not be able to continue to support. This bill will help head off that eventuality.

In the health, welfare and corrections appropriation subcommittee, we are completing major portions of the welfare budget, increasing the governor's recommendation for funding sheltered workshops to a level where we can continue our present service to the same number of people now served, which is important to our area through the sheltered workshop in Thief River Falls.

In that same subcommittee, we had a close vote on the drug and alcohol counseling and awareness program for northwestern Minnesota. Finally, one Independent-Republican joined the six DFL-ers on this evenly split committee in a 7-5 vote restoring the money for that program.

As I send this column, the House is preparing to debate a bill relating to equal opportunity in school athletics. I am afraid some of the provisions in the bill may set back equal opportunity for girls in sports. I will report on this and other issues in future articles. Feel free to contact me on any issue of concern to you. My number is 612-296-4329, or you can write to me at 261 State Office Building, St. Paul, MN 55155.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

I would like to compliment the state highway department repair crews that are repairing the potholes in Highway 59.

The four-lane highway coming into Thief River Falls from the south was badly broken up by the freezing this winter and the potholes filled up with water as soon as the snow started melting. However, the repair crews are filling the holes as soon as they dry up. This requires the crews to return to the same area more than once.

I believe the repair crews should be commended for putting forth the extra effort to keep our roads in good condition.

Inflation and the Politics Of Misinformation

Isn't it interesting, as reports show inflation continuing to get worse, how those in government always find a way to blame the problem on someone else? In recent weeks, the Administration has been doing precisely that — looking somewhere, anywhere, else for the cause and solution to a problem which was essentially created in its own back yard.

More and more, inflation is being blamed on greedy businesses and selfish workers. For its part, the Administration simply says that government alone cannot stop inflation. Oh really?

When the Administration recently criticized corporate profits for the end of 1978, it blatantly ignored the normal adjustments for inflated investories, inadequate capital consumption allowances and a huge 20 per cent increase in federal corporate taxes which were routinely provided by the Department of Commerce and which must be included if the profits picture is to be accurate.

When these adjustments are made, the figures show that from the fourth quarter of 1977 to the fourth quarter of 1978, profits per unit of output increased a small 2.7 per cent in contrast to an overall inflation rate of 7.5 per cent. And the key point is this: During that same period, the increase in workers' wages was three times greater than the increase in profits, and the increase in federal taxes was eight times greater. The Administration has an obligation to clear up this inaccurate information. Why has it failed to do so?

Look at the facts over a longer period. If government's influence has been so inconsequential, then during the last 10 years, why have federal taxes increased more than one and a half times as fast as worker's wages, and nearly two and a half times as fast as corporate profits? Who's been taking money from whom? If business has truly been so robust and profitable, how in the world could the stock market today be lower than it was 10 years ago?

finding scapegoats for inflation has been going on for years. During the 1970's, for example, many of Washington's so-called experts have also blamed inflation on: The OPEC cartel; reduced meat supplies, and bad weather, which reduced other food supplies.

No one should deny that OPEC's monopolistic pricing is a tremendous economic burden which is contributing to inflation. But if the cartel has caused inflation, then how can Switzerland and West Germany be enjoying two of the lowest rates of inflation in the world, while they are simultaneously importing a far greater share of their total energy needs from OPEC than the United States?

Nor is inflation caused by temporary scarcities of commodities, some of which are weather-induced. If not manipulated by governments, markets can correct these imbalances. And weather problems have existed before — for example, the dust bowl days in the 30's. Yet we did not have inflation then, but we do now in a period of record crops. How curious.

Let's stop kidding ourselves. The major driving force behind our recent increase in inflation has been the explosive growth of government. Since the mid-60's, by indulging in a binge of deficit financing, and printing money more than twice as fast as the economy could produce new goods and services, the federal government has become the biggest spender, borrower and employer in the economy. That's inflation.

The results of this spend now-pay later philosophy are dramatic. Low inflation once permitted Americans to save a good portion of their earnings — earnings generated, incidentally, by healthy profits! The investment capital from these savings created tremendous resources in the form of more efficient tools of production, resulting in technological leadership, and in a rapid and sustained increase in our standard of living. That's why profits don't create inflation, they help fight it.

Today, inflation makes it more difficult to save. And seeing the dollar's value depreciate so rapidly, Americans are less willing to save. We are becoming a nation of super-consumption, living from paycheck to paycheck, and dependent upon more and more credit to maintain the same standard of living. Result? Last year, the United States had the second worst rate of investment of any western industrialized country, and fewer patents were issued than in any year since 1964. Those are warnings of more inflation.

But big government also fuels inflation by pushing up costs and imposing needless regulations. Government itself is the most burdensome cost of all. Taxes have shot up more than one and a half times as fast as the Consumer Price Index during the past 10 years. And buried in the price of everything consumers buy, from hamburgers to single-family homes, is the rising cost of government, taken out in taxes on every part of a product's cost, production and distribution. But since these taxes are usually invisible, business bears the blame for higher prices.

Finally, the federal government inflates all the basic necessities of life even further through its excessive regulatory manipulation of markets and products by: Propping up the price of milk and sugar; limiting planting acreage of corn and wheat; placing irrational restrictions on farmers' access to pesticides; virtually forbidding any exploration for energy or harvesting of lumber on some 300 million acres of wilderness; placing the nuclear energy industry in a hammerlock, and taxing domestic production of oil while actually subsidizing purchases from OPEC — to cite but a few examples.

Will Washington ever heed the truth? Probably not. For to err is human; but to blame it on someone else is even more human.

Corporation Farm Reports Are Due Today

Reminder was issued recently by the Minnesota department of agriculture that today (Monday) is the deadline for filing of annual reports on both corporation and non-resident alien farming enterprises operating in this state.

About 1,200 registrations have been received from farming corporations, and only two from non-resident aliens. Based on prior year registrations, nearly 400 corporations and at least 13 alien registrations are still due, reports director Fred Spannaus of the field accounting and statistics division.

Large number of delayed filings indicates possible confusion with a new registration required nationally by the federal government for non-resident aliens who own agricultural land anywhere in the United States.

Non-resident alines who own farm land in Minnesota must file two separate reports, one with the Minnesota department of agriculture to comply with the state law, and one with the agricultural stabilization and conservation service (ASCS) of the U.S. department of agriculture (USDA), to comply with the new federal law.

While the Minnesota law requires annual reports on or before April 16 from non-resident aliens who own agricultural land in this state, the same owners have later deadlines for the new federal registration. August 6 is the federal deadline for reports by aliens or foreign investors who owned U.S. farm land prior to last Feb. 6, 1978; however, aliens who acquire U.S. farm land after Feb. 6, 1978, must report the transfer within 90 days to the nearest county office of the USDA-ASCS.

Both state and federal laws requiring these registrations provide civil penalties, including forced divestiture of land holdings, for either failure to register or for providing incorrect information.

Enderlein Picks Minnesota-Duluth

According to Lincoln high school senior Steve Enderlein, "Unless something amazing happens, like UCLA calling tomorrow," he'll attend the University of Minnesota-Duluth next year where he'll play basketball for the Bulldogs.

Enderlein, a four-year letterman with the Prowlers and team co-captain this past winter when he was named to the WCCO radio all-state basketball team of the year, was considering the University of Minnesota-Duluth, Bemidji State University and Golden Valley Lutheran junior college before selecting UMD.

"I think a University of Minnesota diploma would be worth a lot more than a state school," pointed out Enderlein who was also contacted by St. Cloud State University and the University of North Dakota.

"They have real good facilities for basketball," Enderlein said about Duluth where he might be able to fit in as a small guard for coach George Fisher who has been employing a big guard-small guard combination in the backcourt. The Bulldogs graduate both starting guards off this year's ball club.

"I have to improve upon my quickness," admitted Enderlein who finished just 50 points shy of becoming a member of the prestigious 1,000-point club at Lincoln where he lettered as a freshman and nailed down a starting job as a sophomore.

The flashy Enderlein completed his high school career with an outstanding senior campaign that produced 18.7 points, 6.2 assists and 6.2 rebounds per game, leading the Prowlers to their first ever Region 8AA Sub Region 4 championship — the highlight of his prep career, said Enderlein.

Miscellaneous

+Bemidji State University hockey coach Bob Peters, who last week was successful in recruiting Thief River Falls standout Scott Sabo, upped his 13-year record at BSU to 263-88-9 with a 27-2 record this winter that included a season-ending 24-game winning streak that produced an NAIA national title. Sabo is expected to step in almost immediately next winter since the Beavers graduate five of their top six forwards and three of their top four defensemen. Bemidji will become a member of a new conference shortly that will include St. Cloud, Eau Claire, Stout, Superior, Mankato, Iowa State and possibly River Falls.

+Cliff Morlan, sports writer for the Bemidji Pioneer since 1941, is in the hospital for an operation on his pancreas.

+Detroit Lakes school board after a delay, finally accepted the resignation of hockey coach Ken Anderson last week. One person — Duane Earnest, an English teacher at the junior high school in Detroit Lakes — has applied for the position. A graduate of International Falls high school where he played on a state tournament squad, Earnest has served as Detroit Lakes Bantam A team coach for seven years.

+Steve Lundeen, a four-year letterman on the Fergus Falls high school hockey team, was named MVP of the Otters in 1978-79. Mark Hedstrom was named captain of the 1979-80 squad.

+A benefit hockey game played at Eveleth recently drew the likes of Pete LoPresti of the Minnesota North Stars, Minnesota-Duluth All-Americans Mark Pavelich and Curt Giles, Bill Kangas of the University of Vermont and Bah Harrington of Minnesota-Duluth. The game, which attracted some 1,800 fans, raised money to aid Bob Pazelli, 23, an Eveleth high school and Denver University hockey standout who underwent an emergency operation that cost him 40 per cent of his right kidney when he was checked into the boards while playing as a member of the Eveleth-Virginia Merchants in the Minnesota state senior B men's amateur hockey tournament. Thief River Falls fans might remember Kangas from the football field where, in 1977, he gained 220 yards on 30 carries, scored two touchdowns and played a mean middle linebacker in the Golden Bears' 20-8 victory over the visiting Prowlers.

DNR Meeting Is Scheduled Here Tonight

A Minnesota Department of Natural Resources public meeting will be held tonight (Monday) at 7:30 p.m. in the Thief River Falls city auditorium.

The meeting is designed to allow the public to discuss regulations being considered for the 1979 hunting and trapping seasons with DNR personnel.

Sportsmen Will Meet On Wed.

Pennington county Sportsmen's club will meet Wednesday at 8 p.m. in the basement meeting room of the Thief River Falls city auditorium.

All members, sportsmen and visitors are welcome to attend the meeting.

EIGHTY-FOUR-year-old Ollie Mattison of Plummer caught this prize 11-pound, 29-inch walleye in the Rainy River. The fish, "biggest one I caught in 70 years of fishing," according to Mattison, a lifelong resident of the Plummer community, hit a small minnow about 5 p.m. Tuesday.

A division champion and a state tournament entry with a 16-4 record in 1977-78, the Northland community college women's basketball team reversed itself this past winter and placed third in the 4-team Northwest Division with a 5-15 record despite the presence of three starters off that state tournament squad.

Northland coach Deb Jacobson obviously wasn't satisfied with this year's showing. "That's definitely not where we should have been when we had three starters back," she said. "We weren't playing that badly, but not good enough to win. We had a number of close games that we could have won."

Part of the problem the Northwomen encountered was the improved ball clubs fielded by division rivals Fergus Falls and Brainerd. "It was an up year for both of them," mentioned Jacobson. "They were much better, and they had more depth than we did. We had the starters back, but no depth."

Playing the central role in the Northland cast was Goodridge sophomore Georgine Troska who averaged 15.9 points per game. She finished an outstanding two-year stay at Northland with 732 points and a 17.9 scoring average to become a top basketball recruit at North Dakota State University where women's athletic director Lynn Dorn, a Lincoln high school graduate, played a big role in landing the sharp-shooting guard-forward. The Bison also picked off New York Mills standout Jen Miller who, like Troska, was a 1,000-point scorer in high school.

"George, of course, played well for us," pointed out Jacobson. "It was a very frustrating year for her, and I'm sure it affected her some. But she hung in there and did the job."

Jacobson said Troska's number one asset on the basketball court is her "game sense," saying, "She knows what's going on all the time. And, of course, her skills don't hurt, either. She has fantastic skills. She has body control that we just don't normally see around here. And she can shoot the eye out of the basket."

Sophomores Coco Stokke (Newfolden) and Joan Engel (TRF) complemented Troska offensively, narrowly missing double figure scoring averages with 9.8 and 9.0 figures, respectively. Stokke finished her Northland career with 353 points and an 8.6 scoring average while Engel finished with 284 points and a 7.1 average.

Northland wins this winter came against Itasca 76-61, Bottineau 64-63, Crookston 62-42 and 77-57 and Hibbing 52-49. Losses came against the North Dakota State junior varsity 77-43, Lake Region 70-36, Red River community college of Winnipeg 75-49 and 64-30, Bottineau 68-65, Mesabi 76-61, Vermilion 60-59, Anoka, Ramsey 61-53, Fergus Falls 58-41 and 70-43, Brainerd 81-41 and 64-51, the University of North Dakota junior varsity 62-55 and 63-53 and Itasca 70-57.

$16 Million Raised By Ducks Unlimited

Ducks Unlimited officials have announced that nationwide fund-raising efforts conducted by its volunteers during 1978 generated a record $16,152,274 as a guarantee that the fight to save critical North American waterfowl breeding habitat will continue to be fought. But the waterfowl conservation organization also made it clear that many more dollars are needed if the race to save the fast-disappearing Canadian wetlands is ever to be won.

"As pleased as we're bound to be about the 16-million-plus dollars our 1,200 communities and 285,000 members produced during 1978," said DU executive vice president Dale E. Whitesell, "I can't help but feel apprehensive when I consider the stakes involved in the Canadian wetlands habitat race. I think there are far too many conservationists in this country who just don't realize that 70 per cent of North America's waterfowl are produced in Canada's prairie wetlands habitat. If we should ever sag significantly in the race to preserve and restore these wetlands, the repercussions would be felt acutely by an entire U.S. conservation-oriented public. There simply would no longer be the numbers of waterfowl we've been accustomed to seeing. And this fact, I think, would eliminate a sense of joy whose importance might be far greater than what we imagine."

Whitesell pointed out that the 11.1 million Canadian dollars which Ducks Unlimited made available to DU (Canada) during 1978 resulted in the completion of 122 wetland projects encompassing 101,643 acres and 552 new miles of nesting shoreline. He explained, too, that the 16-million-plus dollars generated in the U.S. by Ducks Unlimited during 1978 pushed the organization's 41 year-old track record to a total of $88 million — 168 million of which has been made available to Canada where the critical North American habitat race is run.

"I'll admit that $88 million total sounds like a lot of money," said Whitesell, "when you first think about how much money it should take to keep wild waterfowl flying from one year to the next. But what spooks me about where we really stand in the Canadian habitat race stems from the federal money being spent right here in our backyard. The U.S. government, for instance, is spending $20 million a year just to acquire — not develop — wetlands in our country which sustain only 20 per cent of North America's waterfowl production. At this rate, conservationists should be spending a staggering $70 million annually in Canada where 70 per cent of North America's waterfowl production takes place.

"Ducks Unlimited is waging, in short, a private-sector-funded fight in a ring of government-sized proportions," said Whitesell. "And to tell you the truth, I don't know how long we con continue to do that alone."

Escape Boaters Banquet, Dance Is Saturday

An estimated 200 avid Canadian and American powerboaters will be gathering in Crookston for Escape's annual no-boat banquet and dance Sat., April 21.

Escape is the acronym for exciting scenic Canadian-American powerboat excursion and is based on Lake of the Woods where it stages various cruises for members, including a four-day affair.

A full day's activities are planned starting at 1 p.m. at Crookston Marine and culminating with the banquet and dance at the Upper Deck.

Any interested persons should contact commodore Ray Semrud in Thief River Falls by calling 681-1102.

Jerry Koosman has never lost in post-season competition, winning his only decision in championship series play and going 3-0 in the two World Series he's pitched in (1969, 1973).

Offense Is A Question Mark . . .

Lincoln Baseball Team Has Pitching, Defense

Pitching and defense appear solid, but the offense is suspect as the Lincoln high school baseball team readies itself for the 1979 season, scheduled to start with games at Red Lake Falls Thursday and Moorhead Friday. Chances are Thief River Falls will be 1-for-2 this week against the weatherman, likely losing Thursday's opener to the snow that still plagues teams in this area of the state.

Thief River Falls began practice sessions at the beginning of this month — inside the sports arena. The Prowlers' first venture outdoors might very well be whenever and whereever they play their first game.

"It gets to be a drag," reported Thief River Falls coach Charlie Cornell on his team's confinement indoors. "But everybody is in the same boat."

The indoor workouts are still productive. A net allows players to conduct batting practice against either a pitching machine or live arms; a wooden mound gives the pitchers a feel of things; and there is enough room to conduct a makeshift infield practice.

Once things get squared away, a pitching staff that featured seniors Scott Sabo and Murray Dicken, juniors Kelly Gutterud and Jeff Ulrich and sophomore Greg Harder should be solid. "I think the pitching should be pretty good," confirmed Cornell whose top combination is expected to be the left-handed Sabo and the right-handed Dicken, the team's captain. Harder is also a left-hander.

Junior catcher Jim Nyland headlines the equally sound defensive corps that, combined with the pitching staff, should surrender a minimum of runs this spring. "Defensively I think we should be reasonably good," maintained Cornell who feels in Nyland he has one of the school's top catchers ever. "He did an outstanding job last year. Hopefully he'll do just as good this year," said Cornell.

Top infield candidates include Seniors Mark Huot and Ulrich, along with juniors Paul Drees, Dave Odegaard and Gutterud.

Drees could also see action in the outfield, along with seniors Jeff Kosel, Scott Langlie and Dicken. Langlie will also serve as a back-up to Nyland behind the plate.

Unfortunately Thief River Falls' offensive promise doesn't match that of the pitching and defense. "It's a big question mark," admits Cornell. "We're hitting the ball well inside, but we did last year, too," he said, painfully recalling the lowly .209 team batting average of 1978 when the Prowlers averaged 10 strike-outs per game. "You're not going to win consistently until you can hit the ball consistently," he warned.

Doug Dallmann, with a .319 batting average, produced what little offense the Prowlers had last year. Nobody else came close to hitting .300. Dallmann has since graduated, leaving the offense even more suspect.

Kosel, Dicken and Ulrich offer the best offensive potential. And led by the speedy Kosel, the Prowlers can boast of some speed. "We should have reasonably good speed. . . if we can get on base," mused Cornell, assisted again this year by Ron Novak.

Other squad members include senior Brian Peppin; juniors Brian Gerardy, Rick Stimac, Mark Schmitke, Tom Drury, Wayne Huseth and Dan Cullen; sophomores Bruce Gerardy, Dave Kays, Jeff Mongoven and Dale Dobias; and freshmen Mark Harder, Rob Blankenfield, Rick Langlie, Dan Odegaard, Billy Kron, John Dunphy, Mike Tiani, Joe Kertz and Dennis Cullen.

"It's just a matter of getting outside," pointed out Cornell. "We'll have to find some guys who can hit the ball well and then figure out a defensive line-up from there. But our first priority is to find some kids who can hit the ball.

Northland Tennis Team Opens Today

Tennis season at Northland community college gets underway with a rush this week, with the Northmen scheduled to compete against five different opponents at four sites in six days.

Rest of this week's busy schedule is suppose to find Northland hosting the Bemidji State junior varsity Wednesday at 3 p.m.; at Willmar Friday at 2 p.m.; and at Fergus Falls Saturday where the Northmen will play Fergus Falls at 10 a.m. and Brainerd at 12 noon.

BWCA Report

Bud Kratoska, the executive secretary of the Minnesota Cook county civic council at Grand Marais reports the new legislation governing the boundary waters canoe area (BWCA) and its changes over the next five years:

"Certain activities will be phased out over this period. Snowmobiles, outboard motors and other mechanized forms of transportation will be eliminated in designated areas of the BWCA.

"Snowmobiles will be allowed on two permanent routes and three temporary routes within the wilderness. Sea Gull river along the eastern portion of Saganaga Lake to Canada. The law permits travel on three temporary routes until Jan. 1, 1984. These run from Moose Lake (Ely) to Saganaga via Ensign, Vera and Knife lakes and East Bearskin to and including Pine, via Alder and Canoe lakes.

"Maps and brochures will be updated to show the new boundaries, motor routes and snowmobile routes. An interim snowmobile map and regulations will be available. In addition, several new brochures will be published by the forest service by the opening of the summer recreation season explaining new rules governing the BWCA.

"Effective Jan. 1, 1979, the use of motorboats will be prohibited within the wilderness except on certain lakes and rivers. Motors will be allowed on 33 per cent of the water area in 1979 and 24 per cent after 1999. After 1999, there will be 20 lakes and two rivers where motors can be used. Entry point quotas will be established but this will not affect the lake homeowners or their guests or the report and their guests on that particular lake.

Snowmobiles and motors are allowed anywhere in the Superior national forest (outside the BWCA) without a permit.

"An intensified program of outdoor recreation development on the Superior national forest will be made outside the BWCA. Considered for development will be additional snowmobile trails, remote campsites on lightly developed lakes, and lake access sites and parking facilities to provide motorized recreation experiences that were previously available in the BWCA.

"Forest service is authorized to construct a system of hiking, backpacking and cross country ski trails within the wilderness and on appropriate lands outside the wilderness. Consideration will be given to locating portions of such a trail system near existing resorts on the perimeter of the wilderness to provide additional recreation facilities and opportunities for resort guests.

New Rocord

The 47th annual sportshow which ended April 8 in the Minneapolis auditorium set a new attendance record. The event drew 199,318 people through the gates, missing the 200,000 mark by only 682 people.

Last year's attendance was 181,120.

Liars Contest

Now that the winners of the 1978 Minnesota Outdoors liars contest have been announced it's time to turn our attention to the 1979 contest. We have received several entries. If you have a 'tall tale' to tell now's the time.

Send your story to Stu & Dee Mann, 104 South Meadoe Circle, Burnsville, Minnesota 55337.

Your story does not have to be original and you may send more than one story. Enter as often as you like.

Records Stricken

Our friend Churck Burrows who is Minnesota's fisheries supervisor, sends word that the brook trout listed as Minnesota's record at nine pounds has been stricken from the records.

The fish was reported to have been caught in 1959 by Frank House of Ray. The fish which was reported to have been caught in the Ash River in St. Louis county was never properly confirmed by anyone competent to do so.

Present record brook trout is listed at five-pounds, seven counces and was caught by Byron Lynn in 1946 in the Isabella river. The record muskie which weighed 56.9 pounds which was listed as being caught in Lake of the Woods was actually taken from Canadian waters.

Whitefish and Tullibees

In the Deer River and Bena area this is the season for the whitefish and tullibees. They are excellent eating at this time of the year.

Bait being used for whitefish are mousies and small pale blue or white jigs. A tear drop hook with wax worms is a good tullibee bait.

According to an annual environmental quality study by the National Wildlife Federation, air quality has improved in the United States during the past 10 years while other environmental indicators such as water, wildlife, soil, minerals and living space have declined.

Bemidji Officer Is Enforcement Chief In DNR

A new director for the Department of Natural Resources division of enforcement has been appointed by DNR commissioner Joseph Alexander.

Named to the post was conservation officer Richard Tarte, 58, of Bemidji. He replaces Earl Lhotka, who retired from state service this past winter.

Enforcement director supervises the activities of the DNR's staff of approximately 150 conservation officers who are stationed throughout Minnesota.

Conservation officers enforce all the state's fish and wildlife laws in addition to most of the other laws and regulations under the DNR's jurisdiction.

Conservation officers also supervise and assist hundreds of citizen volunteer instructors who teach safe gun handling and snowmobile safety to Minnesota youth.

Tarte first joined the department in 1948 and he served in the field at Warroad as a game warden. From 1953 to 1966 he was area supervisor for the warden service in the Bemidji area.

In 1966 he was appointed enforcement supervisor for the DNR's 22 county northwest region with headquarters in Bemidji — a post he served in until being named division director on Friday, April 6.

Alexander said Tarte has been instrumental in administering provisions of the agreement between the DNR and the Leech lake Indian band regulating the harvest of fish, wildlife and wild rice by Band members.

Suggest Tips To Foil Boat, Motor Thieves

During 1978, county sheriffs reported 1,057 boats and-or motors stolen in Minnesota. Here are some tips that may help to foil would-be thieves who are intent on stealing your boat, outboard motor or equipment, or help get your equipment back after a theft:

+Write down the model, color, year and serial number of all major items in or on your boat. Then take color snapshots of them all for your records.

+ Join Operation ID and engrave your ID number on each item of equipment. If possible, engrave it a second time in a hidden location.

+Remove your outboard from your boat, if at all possible, and secure it in your home.

Racquet Sports Prime Cause Of Eye Injuries

Racquetball, squash and tennis are projected to surpass ice hockey as the leading cause of recreation-related eye injuries in Minnesota, according to Raymond Croissant, M.D., president of the Minnesota association of ophthalmology.

"On a racquetball court, the most important piece of equipment can be goggles or safety glasses, which help prevent a speeding ball from causing permanent eye damage," warns Dr. Croissant.

Athletic goggles, now available in most sports shops, are specifically designed to protect without hindering the player's vision. Cost ranges from $6 to $10 for goggles which fit over eye glasses.

Dr. Croissant strongly recommends that standard eye glasses should not be worn without added protection on the court, even though most are made of impact-resistant plastic or hardened glass. Prescription safety glasses can be substituted.

Ophthalmologists — physicians and surgeons who specialize in eye care — are seeing a rapid increase in eye injuries from racquet sports which parallels their increased popularity. In racquetball alone, the number of players in the U.S. went from 50,000 in 1970 to 10 million in 1978. The U.S. racquetball association estimates that by 1982 there could be 40 million players.

"The size of the ball, combined with the speed of the game, causes eye injuries, more so than in many other sports," Dr. Croissant said. "The ball is small, so it bypasses the protective bones which surround the eye. The terrific speed of the ball cuts the player's reaction time, and the eyeball suffers a direct hit.

"This type of eye injury is completely avoided by wearing goggles or safety glasses. They also prevent injury from a hand or racquet smacking the eye," he pointed out.

"Most often, the eye is bruised, causing internal hemorrhaging. This damages the retina, which results in loss of either side vision or central vision. Total blindness can also result," Croissant added.

Q. Why would Central Vac increase the value of my home?

A. CENTRAL VAC increases the value of your property much the same as central air-conditioning, because it is a built-in appliance.

Q. How long has Central Vac been on the market?

A. Progressive builders, architects, and homeowners have installed Central Vac built-in vacuum systems since 1953. A leader in residential and commercial installations, Central Vac systems are in many aerospace firms where dust-free cleanliness is vital.

Producers Of Commodities Hold Elections

Minnesota producers of four major farm commodities — milk, beef, soybeans and wheat — have an opportunity to select a total of 25 directors Tuesday in annual research and promotion council elections scheduled by the commissioner of agriculture.

Polls will be open tomorrow from 9 a.m. until 3:30 p.m. at county agricultural extension offices in all Minnesota counties except for Cook and Lake. Additional polling places also have been designated and will be open in 15 counties.

All 25 council positions to be filled are contested.

Dairy farmers state-wide will elect 11 directors.

Beef producers in 61 counties will elect six directors.

Soy bean growers in 53 counties will elect five directors.

Wheat producers in 56 counties will elect three directors.

Complete details on the Tuesday elections, including the identification of the candidates, and location of special polling places supplementing the extension offices, appear in a legal notice published in the current issue of "The Farmer" magazine.

Three other Minnesota farm commodity research and promotion councils, representing producers of potatoes, eggs and paddy wild rice, have scheduled mail ballot elections for expiring director terms this May and June. Turkey growers elected their 1979 Council directors by mail balloting last February.

Unofficial results of Tuesday's research and promotion council elections will be available from the Minnesota department of agriculture; however, official results will not be available until an official canvass of the ballots has been completed.

Holli Drees Is On Dean's List

Holli Drees of St. Hilaire was one of 75 students named to the winter quarter dean's list at the University of Minnesota technical college – Crookston (UMC), according to Provost Stanley D. Sahlstrom.

To qualify for recognition on the dean's honor roll, a freshman or sophomore at UMC must complete 12 or more hours of college credits with a grade point average between 3.5 and 3.99.

Bergland To Speak At UMC Graduation

Secretary of agriculture Bob Bergland will be the featured speaker at commencement exercises for graduates of two-year collegiate technical programs at the spring quarter commencement exercises at the University of Minnesota technical college at Crookston.

Associate in applied science degrees will be formally conferred upon 1978-79 graduates on Friday afternoon, May 18. As has become a custom on the UMC campus, the setting for the annual ceremonies will be a large raised platform constructed outdoors on the campus mall.

When Bergland returns to his home district for a brief visit, including his appearance at UMC, it will also afford an occasion for presenting the former Congressman with a special citation. Two years ago the University of Minnesota board of regents, on the recommendation of the all-University honors committee, voted Bergland an outstanding achievement award. The Roseau native was nominated for the award orginally by the faculty and administration of the Crookston campus. The award will recognize Bergland, as an illustrious UM alumnus, for his achievements in the sphere of public service.

Bergland was to have accepted the honor, in the form of a personalized medallion, last year while delivering the commencement address at the 1978 graduation. However, his trip to the Soviet Union on a critical international trade mission forced cancellation of that visit.

Mental Health Seminar To Be Held Friday

Public information seminar on personal experiences with receiving mental health services will be given by Project Overcome staff Friday. First presentation will be at 3:30 p.m. at the area vocational technical institute in East Grand Forks. Second presentation is scheduled for Presbyterian church in Crookston at 7:30 p.m. Free will offering will be taken for the evening presentation.

Project Overcome is sponsored by the mental health advocates coalition of Minnesota and funded under a grant from the Minnesota department of public welfare. Staff consists of several young men and women who have been mentally ill, have received treatment and have recovered and who are now are sharing their experiences and perceptions with the community. Many were told they would "not be able to live outside an institution" yet are now confident in their recovery and able to define rehabilitation needs from their own experiences. Unlike the TV stereotypes of "Psychotic Ex-mental patients" they are open, honest and refreshingly articulate.

Primary purpose of the Project Overcome staff is to dispel the myths that surround mental illness and its treatment and to open the community's view of mental illness. In addition, their message provides hope to those who are still struggling with mental illness and an assurance that they can recover. Information is given to mental health professionals regarding the clients and clients families and friends are informed how to use the present mental health system for their benefit.

For further information, contact Dan Wilson at the Northwestern Mental Health center in Crookston, 281-3940.

DNR Hears Suggestions On Hunting Regulations

Interest centered on the northern Minnesota deer herd and hunting season when the Minnesota department of natural resources (DNR) conducted a public meeting on hunting seasons and regulations Monday evening at the city auditorium in Thief River Falls. Attendance at the meeting was placed at 135 by Paul Hansen, citizen participation coordinator for the DNR.

Roger Holmes, chief of wildlife for the department who has attended each of the meetings held by the department throughout the state, fielded most of the questions asked following the formal presentations.

Speaking in addition to Holmes were Tom Isley, St. Paul, assistant chief of wildlife; Pat Carns, Grand Rapids, group leader for forest wildlife; Bob Jessen, Bemidji, group leader for wetland wildlife; Dr. Al Berner, Madelia, group leader for farmland wildlife; and Merlyn Wesloh, Grand Rapids, Region I administrator.

Before launching into discussion on deer herd projections and seasons, information was presented on waterfowl, furbearers and small game. Holmes said that application has been made by the state to open the waterfowl season on the Saturday closest to October 1, which would be September 29 in 1979. Mississippi flyway regulations call for an October opening at the earliest while the central flyway, which includes North Dakota, has an earlier opening. Decision will be made on the request later this year.

The wildlife chief also noted that research conducted on waterfowl gizzards collected by hunters indicated a high incidence of ingestions of lead shot by waterfowl killed in Minnesota. Incidence was in excess of 13 per cent, he said, well above the national average, and in some species such as ringnecks approached the 50 per cent area.

Because of the lead poisoning problem, steel shot regulations will be continued, he said. Developments in steel shot have resulted in a product which does little if any damage to shotgun barrels, provides denser patterns and reduces crippling losses, he said.

Tom Isley noted that the department has determined through its extensive research that hunting has a minimal effect on small game populations in the state. He noted that there is a bill in the legislature to allow the beaver trapping season to open October 25 and another to place the badger on the protected list with an established trapping season, probably similar to fox.

He noted that there is a difference of opinion on the taking of fox with trappers looking for a season ending earlier than at present and hunters encouraging a season starting later and extending longer.

Karns reviewed the reasons for deer hunting regulations being as they have been in recent years, particularly the restriction to taking only antlered deer with a very limited antlerless season. He said that the deer herd in Minnesota could not stand the pressure of 300,000 hunters such as experienced a few years ago. Hunters outnumber available deer in many seasons, he said.

In northern Minnesota the department estimates that the Hovland of Trinity Lutheran church, who was in charge of the monthly communion service; and Rev. Arthur Ortmann of Warroad, who showed a movie.

Devotional programs, followed by lunch, were presented by the Rebecca circle of Trinity, and Zion Lutheran church of Viking. Also during the month, the Rebecca unit at Redeemer Lutheran church visited the home and served lunch to the residents, and Mr. and Mrs. Gunder Legvold served popcorn.

Other entertainment were movies, including "Shopping Bag Lady," shown by the Public Library; bingo sponsored by the American Legion auxiliary and the Eagles, and an animal day with Mrs. DuWayne Olson of Newfolden bringing a black lamb and two baby pigs.

Creating special interest were the try-outs for a bowling team. For many of the residents, bowling was a new experience. Those unable to stand, bowled from their wheel chairs. Selected on Oakland Park's first bowling team were Clarence Roese, Carl Clevan, Thora Anderson and Mildred Ofstedahl. They played their first game on March 23 against the Valley Home team consisting of Tilmer Lausness, Annie Jensen, Olga Ellingson and Anne Oftelie. The Oakland Park team won the match. High scorer was Tilmer Lausness of Valley Home.

Special decorations for the month were provided by the Fifth graders at Northrup school and St. Bernard's Guild.

Also during the month, the students in the cosmetology department at the local AVTI visited the home and cut and styled hair and gave perms.

Local Woman's Temperance Union Receives Award

At the April meeting of the Alice Mae Stuart Thief River Falls Woman's Christian Temperance union, an announcement was made that the local union had been recognized on National level as an Advance Union. Recognition was based on the receipt of dues by the state treasurer for every living resident member by November 30 for the year 1978-79. A certificate signed by National Promotion Secretary Juanita Whisler was displayed to the members.

The meeting, held at the home of Mrs. Earle Ripley, began with the singing of the hymn "There is Sunlight in my Soul Today". Mrs. Ripley was in charge of the devotional meditation, "Channels of Opportunity." She read Matt. 25:1-39, the parable of the ten virgins, stressing verse 13. She stated that the hands of today's young people are the ones holding the future. They may either hold a Bible or a revolver, play a church piano or spin a gambling wheel; or gently dress a leper's wound on a mission field or tremble wretchedly, uncontrolled by an alcoholic mind. The children's hands are in the hands of adults. They are asking for help and guidance. They represent full fledged personalities in miniature, to be respected as separate individuals. Their day-to-day growth into adulthood, whether Christian or non-Christian, is the responsibility of adults.

She concluded by reading "And the winds blew," (Matt. 7:25). She said that storms are raging everywhere today. Political, moral and spiritual turbulences are leaving devastation and ruin in their wake. Winds of immorality are howling as they sweep over the world. Sanctioned by the courts, pornography is rushing over the country as a mighty gale. It blasts through schools, homes and churches, leaving ugly debris and loathsome scars. People are being ensnared as every aspect of faith in God and His Word is being attacked. Only those rooted on the Rock of Jesus Christ can withstand Satan's gales. Their faith is mightier than materialism. Their hearts are filled with Holy love and in their hand is the sword of the spirit, which is the Word of God.

Following the meditation, the Youth Temperance Education week set for April 22-28, was discussed. The local union will observe the week by distributing 4500 leaflets to churches and schools.

Also discussed was Youth Temperance Camp set for June 11-17 at Paynesville. It was noted that the first flyer regarding the camp had been received and will be sent to previous campers. The possibility of scheduling a bake sale to raise funds for sending local youth to the camp was also discussed.

Cards were signed and sent to Mrs. R. B. Westacott of Grand Forks, Mrs. Olga Engelstad, who is currently in Minneapolis; Mrs. Otto Netteland, Mrs. Ella Knutson, Mrs. Gladys Hunstad, Mrs. Hilda Wilson and Carl Finstad.

On display the WCTU scrap book of clippings. Those included from the Times were "Tips for safe driving at Christmas," "The Christmas Gospel," "Ya Gotta Wanna," "Tobacco Smoke Screen," "The Worldwide Alcohol Problem," and "Highway Safety".

The meeting concluded with the reading of the Radio Releases by Mrs. Valborg Hanson.

Lunch was served by Mrs. Ripley.

The Woman's Christian Temperance union district convention will be held at Warren on Saturday, April 28.

Penn. Toleware Is Pictured On 15-Cent Stamp

A clock of four 15-cent commemorative stamps representing four different household articles of Pennsylvania Toleware will be issued in Lancaster Penn. April 19.

Decorated tinware became very popular in the 1800's, and it was used for pans, teapots, coffeepots, canisters and trays. The more expensive decorated pieces were called toleware from the French, meaning "painted tinware."

Pennsylvania Toleware stamps are the third block of four stamps in the American Folk series, which began in 1977 with the issuance of the Pueblo Indian art stamps and continued in 1978 with the American Quilt stamps.

Customers are encouraged to purchase their own stamps at their local post offices and affix them to their own envelopes. Covers bearing customer affixed stamps will be given preferential service. All envelopes must be addressed and peelable return address labels are recommended for this purpose. Stamps must be affixed in the upper right corner of the envelope, approximately one quarter inch from the top and one quarter inch from the right side. Return addresses should be placed on the right side of the envelopes at least ⅝ of an inch up from the bottom. Filler of postal card thickness should be inserted in each cover. Not later than May 4 — orders must be postmarked by that date — the envelopes may be forwarded to "First Day Cancellations, Postmaster, Lancaster, PA 17604." No remittance is required.

HANGING GARDENS RESTAURANT
Grand Opening
THURS., FRI. & SAT.
APRIL 19, 20 & 21

WE ARE trying to bring good homestyle cooking and baking to you at modest prices. Most of the things we make are done by us or for us to provide you with food that is good tasting, and good for you to eat. This includes the finest breads available, the best meats and fish which are broiled or baked instead of fried, homemade potatoes and gravy, and homebaked pies and rolls. Homemade soup, clam chowder, and our specialty sandwiches top off our menu of fine foods to bring something new to the City of Thief River Falls.

HANGING GARDENS is a fine Restaurant; it is not a fast food place. Fine choice steaks and seafood take time and care in their preparation. It also takes talent to serve a varied menu of fine foods well. We are geared to serve a large number of luncheon and supper meals. However, our evening dinners and all day breakfasts are made for the discriminating diners, and must be expected to take longer than our daily specials to prepare and serve.

WE WANT to thank all of those customers who helped us get started by coming here our first few weeks in operation.

IT IS our intention to make Hanging Gardens one of the finest restaurants of the Northland . . . one that you are proud to recommend as a great place to take a family to eat.

HANGING GARDENS is located in one of Thief River's classic buildings — now called the Pennington Square Inn, blending classic structure with creative ideas to provide a great atmosphere in which to dine.

PCA District Extends Loans To $2 Billion

Production Credit association (PCA) of Thief River Falls and the other 45 PCAs of the seventh farm credit district — Michigan, Minnesota, North Dakota and Wisconsin — reached $2 billion in loans outstanding on March 29, according to Harlow C. Johnson, president of the PCA of Thief River Falls.

Of the $2 billion approximately 32 per cent is outstanding in Minnesota, 14 per cent in Michigan, 18 per cent in North Dakota and 36 per cent in Wisconsin.

Production Credit associations are farmer-owned, cooperative-type credit organizations organized in late 1933 and early 1934 to help meet farmers' urgent needs for a short and intermediate-term source of credit.

A part of the national farm credit system, they obtain loan funds from sale of securities on the nation's money markets through the system's fiscal agent in New York City. The funds are channeled to seventh district PCAs through the federal intermediate credit bank of St. Paul, which is owned by the PCA.

It took seventh district PCAs 35 years, from 1933 until 1968, to reach $500 million in loan volume. They doubled that volume in six years, reaching $1 billion in spring of 1974. It took less than five years to double it again to the present $2 billion.

Seventh district PCAs hold 35½ per cent of the short and intermediate-term farm debt in the district compared to about 24 per cent for PCAs nationwide, Johnson says.

PCA of Thief River Falls presently serves 948 members with a total loan volume of $21 million in Pennington, Red Lake, eastern Marshall, Roseau, Lake of the Woods and northern Beltrami counties.

Upper Midwest Milk Order Changed Again

Suspension of certain partial payment provisions under the Upper Midwest federal milk marketing order has been extended through April, according to P.R. Smith, assistant secretary of agriculture.

Smith said the suspension has been in effect since November of 1976, and was due to expire at the end of April.

The action, Smith said, supersedes the requirement that handlers make a partial payment to producers by the 25th day of the month for milk delivered during the first 15 days of the month. The suspension continues to be limited only to producers who don't have their payments collected by a cooperative. Final payment for the month is still due by the 18th day of the following month.

The Upper Midwest order, with the partial payment provisions, went into effect following a 1976 merger and expansion of four midwestern orders. Many of the producers under the new order, particularly those in Wisconsin, were accustomed to receiving their payments 15 days apart and objected to the new payment dates, Smith said. Under the prior suspensions, handlers have continued to make partial payments to producers, but at about 15 days before the date of final settlement.

Clover Leaf Creamery company requested the suspension until a public hearing can be held to consider amending the order. No comments opposing the suspension were received.

Copies of the suspension order may be obtained from Market Administrator Paul L. Buchanan, 4570 W. 77th St., Suite 210, Minneapolis, Minn. 55435; or from the Dairy Division, AMS, USDA, Washington, D.C. 20250.

For the first three months, passenger miles soared 43 per cent to 596.8 million from 416.8 million a year ago, while passenger boardings rose 24 per cent to 1.8 million from 1.4 million. Cargo ton miles were ahead 30 per cent to 4.7 million from 3.6 million.

March Of Dimes Campaign Nears Completion

March of Dimes is nearing completion of its annual "pass the envelope" campaign in both the city and rural areas of northern Minnesota.

Last year the March of Dimes combined counties in certain areas into larger chapters in order to give better service in both the medical and educational fields. These mergers also enable the foundation to keep better control of the monies coming in to the chapter, as is now required by the accounting standards for charities issued by the United States government.

In some cases donations to the envelope campaign and other mailings are being returned directly to a bank near the northern Minnesota field office. Contributors are assured that after being processed by the banks and the information transferred to a computer, all monies that have been contributed are returned to the local chapters' for deposit.

March of Dimes is now sending out a follow-up tracer on any kits still out and it is requested that anyone still holding a kit please get it in the mail so the campaign can be completed. If in doubt where to send contributions, just mail to: March of Dimes, 25 - 15th ave., so., St. Cloud, Minnesota 56301.

Glenmore At Crookston Has Drug Program

Glenmore foundation at Crookston presently operates a residential chemical dependency treatment center for both adults and adolescents; an out-patient clinic; and a short-term subacute detoxification center (usually about 72 hours) in its building at 600 College Avenue in Crookston. These health care services are for persons having problems with alcohol or other mood-altering drugs.

Treatment at Glenmore involves "medical, psychological, social, and spiritual care," says Robert C. Wittenstrom, executive director of the foundation. "The Glenmore treatment model is a holistic approach to dealing with one of the most serious health care problems facing our nation."

Chemical dependency is an illness which touches almost every family. A chemically dependent person is said to effect at least six other people and these people are spouses, parents, children, other relatives, friends and sometimes even employers or employees.

Patients come to Glenmore from all over Minnesota and from other states. Average length of time that a residential adult patient stays in the Glenmore center is about 35 days. Glenmore center serves both adolescents and adults, and the residential stay for adolescents is now about six weeks.

Recently, the Glenmore foundation developed a new program for its young adults. The professional staff providing the treatment services in this unit are under the direction of Dr. Dennis Brekke, an adolescent chemical dependency treatment specialist.

Glenmore strongly supports the philosophy of Alcoholics Anonymous and encourages patients and their families to participate in the fellowship of A.A., Narcotics Anonymous, Al-Anon and-or Al-Ateen.

Adult patients either admit themselves to the center or are referred to Glenmore by their family doctor, a clergyman, or by another community professional such as a community counselor, attorney or social worker. Many of Glenmore's adult referrals are made by family members.

Young adults are often referred to Glenmore by their parents, a school counselor, a judge, or sometimes by a probation office.

Glenmore foundation is licensed by the state of Minnesota as a chemical dependency treatment center.

Treatment at Glenmore is provided on a fee-for-service basis. Both Glenmore's residential treatment and Glenmore's out-patient treatment are covered by most health insurance and by the state department of social services.

Edroy J. Anderson, MSU, ACSW, is the supervisor of treatment services at the Glenmore center. Anderson has worked hard to develop a strong family program at the center. "Treating the whole family is an intricate part of treating any patient," Anderson stated.

Willard Kotts, Glenmore's public relations director, recently helped to produce a slide presentation entitled, "The Glenmore Story." This presentation portrays what happens within the Glenmore center. As part of its outreach program, Glenmore is showing this film to any concerned community group free of charge.

For further information about any of Glenmore's treatment programs, the public is encouraged to contact Edroy Anderson at the Glenmore center, 281-3123. To make an appointment to have the Glenmore film shown at any community meeting, contact Willard Kotts.

RURAL ROADS take a beating whenever water levels get too high. This roadway was washed out along the airport road near the Wallace Reierson farm this morning, with most of the damage apparently taking place last night. Other road damage is being done in places where snow had been plowed to both sides and melting snow saturated the roadway.

DNR Listens To Ideas On Hunting Season

deer range can support from 20 to 25 deer per square mile at the height of its spring population. Present populations are at about half that figure, he said. The department would like to maintain a program of allowing hunting every year without restriction on the number of hunters, but must make adjustments in the season to limit the number of deer taken.

Objectives of the department program were stated to be as follows:

(1) Manage the deer population by maintaining the breeding population at the highest level that the habitat and landowner will tolerate;

(2) Allow maximum recreational opportunity tolerated by the deer population while minimizing landowner and hunter conflict; and

(3) Standardizing a consistent season framework to be followed each year. Holmes noted that a moose season will be held again this year with 685 permits to be issued in parties of four. There will be 25 zones in the state with the general opening being October 13, he said. Agassiz zone will be open December 1-9.

Most questions at the meeting centered on the deer season with opinions varying from having a closed season to maintaining the current practice of a longer season with antlered deer only to be taken. Only a few questions on waterfowl, upland game and trapping were presented.

Problem of deer depredation to hay and crops in the farming area was brought up for discussion. Several persons requested assistance in providing wildlife habitat or food plots for wildlife on private lands.

L. Hanson Enjoys Unique Occupation

by Kim Blaeser
Times Reporter

"I'm the type of person that likes to do something everyone else isn't doing," says Lorna Hanson, 1979 young career women for Thief River Falls. Employed as jail coordinator at Pennington county law enforcement center, Lorna seems to be fulfilling her yearn for individuality.

When asked how she got into the male dominated field of criminal justice Hanson laughs and says, "I fell into it." While attending Northland community college to earn her associate of arts degree Lorna took a few law enforcement classes and liked them. When someone from the college spoke to her class about a new four-year program in criminal justice opening up at St. Cloud state university and called in an open field for women Lorna's individuality flaired. 'She got into the program and "just totally enjoyed it."

At the beginning of Lorna's study in criminal justice she planned an emphasis in corrections but soon changed her mind. "I had a male student in criminal justice ask me what area I was going into," she explains, "and I said corrections. 'That the field all you women go into,' he said, 'You don't divert at all' So I dropped corrections the next day," Lorna laughs. "I decided if he thought that was the only area of criminal justice women could work in, that wasn't where I was going to be."

At the University of South Carolina, where Lorna earned her masters degree in criminal justice, her emphasis was education. In the future, she says, "I'd like to combine both my education area of criminal justice and the jail area either working parttime in both or teaching a class on the side."

Lorna, who earned the Thief River Falls young career woman title in March competition sponsored by the local business and professional women's (BPW) club, went on to earn second place on the district level. A 1971 graduate of Lincoln high school, Lorna is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Evan Hanson. She has been employed at the Pennington county law enforcement center as jail coordinator and substitute dispatcher since January of 1978.

Her duties as jail coordinator vary from working on plumbing in the jails to doing the monthly bookwork. She handles requests from those in the jail and answers questions family or friends might have on persons in jail on warrants or commitments.

Overseeing those in jail under the Huber law is another of Lorna's duties as is the ordering of jail supplies and generally making sure the jail functions smoothly. Her immediate supervisor in this area is Sheriff Chuck Richards.

Hanson is also on call 24 hours a day although she says this does not prove to be much of a hinderance. If a female is brought in after hours on a DWI (driving while intoxicated) charge and the female dispatcher is not on duty Lorna will be called. She must then report to search the woman, book her and remain at the jail during the six hour period persons in on DWI's are generally held. Hanson estimates she is called an average of two or three times a month after hours.

When she began her work at the law enforcement center Lorna had some obstacles to overcome. Fellow employees first looked at her as a "meek female" and teased her about being "a little mother coming in to tuck in her prisoners." I had to show them that I was working more towards a contitutional, humane type jail situation and not just coddling the prisoners," Lorna explains.

Her parents also expressed some concern over Lorna's working in what they thought might be dangerous circumstances. "I have found that I just don't talk about my work that much — not the things that they might have some worry about," Hanson says. "Occasionally I will ride along when a female prisoner has to be transported someplace else and I will serve as a female guard matron. I've also taken a few prisoners by myself. Things like that I tell my dad — if he finds out at all — after I get home," she laughs.

Asked whether she herself ever experiences any fear when dealing with angry prisoners, Lorna says, "I have a very strong Christian belief and that figures an awful lot into what I do. I feel when I walk into the jail my God is protecting me. I have confidence in my God and in myself. He has given the abilities to do this job and to react in the proper way and by doubting my ability to go in and do it, I'd be doubting my faith. So I don't have a real problem with fear in the jail."

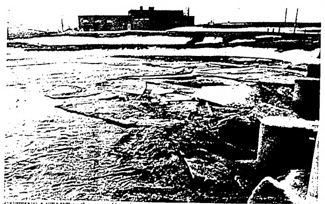
"However," Lorna admits, "it has been a real eye-opener here at times. I've had a real sheltered, old fashioned, home-life background. I've been surprised, for example, at what people are like when they are drunk."

Lorna's performance in her position, according to a letter of recommendation submitted to the young career woman district selection committee by chief of police Ken Forschheiser, has been enthusiastic. "She deals with the prisoners in the law center," says Froschheiser, "and has shown a great empathy for their problem. The situation at times demands a firm position, and she has been able to meet each situation as it arises and handle it well."

Lorna's immediate boss Sheriff Richards writes, "Lorna is always willing to return to the law enforcement center at any time of night or day, any day of the week when a special problem arises and her assistance is needed. She has an ability to guido and receive the cooperation of those that would be termed a "special problem" in a jail setting."

Hanson feels that, being a female, she actually has less of a problem with prisoners. "They are not quite so ready to use foul language or whatever with me as with a male." Her long term goal is to become the warden of a state prison. "I like administration," she says, "but I also like the contact with the people."

Undoubtedly Lorna will also continue to express her individualty. "I want to be treated as a person," she says, "not as a female or a male. I am confident with what God can do with my life and with what he has given me the ability to do and I want to be judged on my qualifications and ability as a person."



GETTING A START on the annual break-up of ice in the Red Lake river, these large ice floes were lodged against the power plant dam in Thief River Falls this morning. Downstream from the dam there are a number of stretches of open water and the river is running along the banks in areas where ice still holds firm. Warmer temperatures the past several days have accelerated the run-off, increasing flood threats in the area.

List Top LHS Basketball Scorers

A telephone call from Bruce Strand of the West Central Daily Tribune in Willmar, who keeps a listing of 1,000-point scorers in Minnesota high school basketball, got us rummaging through the Thief River Falls Times files to uncover a pair of Lincoln high school players who belong to that prestigious 1,000-point club.

All-time leading scorer in Thief River Falls basketball history is Dave Hanson, a 6-5, 218-pound center who completed his basketball career here in the 1957-58 season with 1,088 points. Remarkably that includes only 87 points in his senior year when he was declared ineligible for a state high school league rules violation after just four games. He had scored a single season school record 577 points as a junior in 1956-57 after a 424-point sophomore campaign.

Art Johnson, a 6-5 center, also belongs among the 1,000-point scorers, finishing his high school basketball career in the 1953-54 season with 1,012 points.

Just missing the prestigious 1,000-point listing was Ron Hanson. The 6-8 center finished with 993 points, including a single game school record 40 points against Crookston on Dec. 16 of his 1960-61 senior season.

Only other Thief River Falls scorers breaking the 900-point barrier were 6-8 center Wayne Peterson who graduated after the 1974-75 season with 948 points; 5-11 guard Steve Enderlein who just completed his fourth year with the Prowlers with 945 points; and 6-2 center Sheldon Joppru who graduated following the 1968-69 season with 901 points.

Joppru and Ron Hanson share the No. 2 spot behind Dave Hanson in the single season scoring charts with 503 points apiece, a figure Ron Hanson posted in 1960-61 and matched by Joppru in 1968-69.

Fourth on that single season scoring list is Art Johnson with 482 points in 1953-54; followed by Wayne Peterson 453 in 1974-75; Rog Williamson 426 in 1951-52; Dave Hanson again with 424 in 1955-56; Dale Hanson 415 in 1970-71; Art Johnson again with 409 in 1952-53; and Wayne Peterson again with 389 in 1973-74.

Ron Hanson's single-game 40-point performance bettered a 39-point effort by Dave Hanson vs. Kennedy on March 14, 1957.

Miscellaneous

+Fosston high school swimming star Eric Rustad indicated he may attend Bemidji State University next year.

+Fergus Falls high school basketball fortunes are expected to improve next winter with the transfer additions of 6-3 Lonnie Meade from Iowa and 6-foot Bob Roers from Wisconsin.

+Ron Stolski of Brainerd, named Region 8 high school football coach of the year, is one of eight candidates for the title of Minnesota high school football coach of the year, an annual honor accorded by the Minnesota high school football coaches association. The winner will be announced at a banquet in Minneapolis May 4. Stolski will serve on the North coaching staff for the July 27 Minnesota high school all-star football game.

+Senior Doug Hedman was named most valuable player on the 1978-79 Mahnomen high school basketball team. The Indians named Murray Hanson, Tim LaVoy and Dave Muckenhirn as 1979-80 tri-captains.

+Thief River Falls' Dave Wold, a senior, is a member of the Moorhead State University tennis team. Coach Dave Olson says the 19-man Dragon squad "is the strongest team I've seen here since 1972." He's hoping for a .500 season and a third place finish in the NIC conference meet.

Hoppe, Geatz Are Named '79-80 Hockey Captains

For the first time since the 1969-70 season, the Lincoln high school hockey team will be served by more than one captain when the 1979-80 season unfolds. Wade Hoppe and Dave Geatz were named co-captains of next year's squad, succeeding Scott Sabo, at the annual post-season team banquet Monday in the Lincoln cafeteria.

Ten years ago Dennis Johnson and Dan Sullivan served as Thief River Falls co-captains. Btu the past nine years the Prowlers have featured just a single captain.

Sabo and Mark Huot were named winners of senior awards Monday based upon a vote among teammates. Sabo was named the team's most valuable player and Huot was selected as the squad's most improved player.

Bill Jury and Sabo were also presented with certificates as members of the 1978-79 Section 8 all-section hockey team, and Sabo was given a plaque to commemorate his year as team captain.

Also singled out were Jeff Schmitz, who received a special plaque from coaches Wendell Grand, Dave Peterson and Bill Poole for serving as the team's student manager for the past four years, and Jeff Myers, who received an autographed stick from the team members who voted him the Prowlers' No. 1 fan.

Athletic letters were presented to seniors Joe Dee, Murray Dicken, Myles Lund, Todd Trickle, Huot, Sabo, and Schmitz; juniors Tom Bjorkman, Paul Drees, Bob Fitzgerald, Bill Holmes, Tony Loeffler, Brian Ranum, Chris Simons, Jim Thompson, Jeff Ulrich, Jury, Geatz and Hoppe; and sophomores Jeff Mongoven and Scott Wiebolt.

Hoppe and Geatz will be the 60th and 61st captains to lead the Prowlers since the 1944-45 season when hockey made its debut as an official Minnesota State High School League-sponsored activity.

Northmen Lose To Mayville State 7-2

A 7-2 loss at Mayville State Monday opened the 1979 season for the Northland community college tennis team.

Freshman Bernie Brandon (Mahnomen) figured in both Northland wins as he beat Bert Ready 3-6, 6-2, 6-4 in third singles and then teamned with freshman Chris Kays (TRF) to defeat Terry Sullivan and Steve Louvas 5-7, 7-5, 6-1 in first doubles.

"Brandon was a bright spot for us," mentioned Northland coach Irv Smith. "Brandon and Kay played very, very well together."

Sullivan, a former Lincoln high school and Northland tennis standout, played first singles for Mayville, easily beating former teammate Gary Laidley 6-2, 6-1.

Louvas handled Kays 6-3, 6-4 in second singles.

In other singles matches won by Mayville, Alan O'Neil defeated Glenn Mosher 6-2, 6-3 at No. 4; Marlin Kemmer knocked off Pete Lee 6-0, 7-5 at No. 5; and Rick Nikunen handled Mike Carriere 6-4, 6-1 at No. 6.

Ready and O'Neil brushed off Laidley and Mosher 6-2, 6-0 in second doubles while Kemmer and Nikunen downed Lee and Joe Ranum 6-2, 6-2 in third doubles.

"We haven't played enough tennis yet, obviously," pointed out Smith.

Northland was scheduled to host Bemidji State today (Wednesday) at 3 p.m., but that match has been tentatively rescheduled for the Bemidji courts — if they are made playable. The Northmen will be at Willmar Friday at 2 p.m. and will be in Fergus Falls Saturday to play Fergus Falls at 10 a.m. and Brainerd at 12 noon.

Lincoln Swim Team . . .

Pinkerton, Schoonhoven Selected As Co-Captains

Jon Pinkerton and Dan Schoonhoven were named co-captains of the 1979-80 Lincoln high school swimming team Tuesday as the Prowlers put the finishing touches on their 1978-79 season at a banquet in the Lincoln cafeteria.

Seniors walked off with the four individual awards presented by head coach John Kopari. Dave Beito was named the team's most valuable swimming and also the hardest worker. Dan Winjum was selected as the most improved swimmer and Kevin Murphy was given the coaches award as he earned his fifth swimming letter.

Thief River Falls finished the 1978-79 season with a 5-4 dual meet record. Six multiply team outings featured a first place tie in the Prowler relays and a runner-up finish in the Thief River Falls invitational.

"We didn't win all of our meets," acknowledged Kopari. "But that's not important. What is important is that all of our kids improved their times during the year. That's why individual sports are so near."

Mark Storhaug, a graduate of the Lincoln swimming program and now an NAIA All-American swimmer at Bemidji State University, was a special guest speaker at the banquet.

Athletic letters, were presented to seniors Bruce Storhaug, Carl Kuyath, Beito, Murphy and Winjum; juniors Dennis Booth, Dan Thorstad, Schoonhoven and Pinkerton; sophomores Tom Eckstein, Nate Gjovik, Mark Isaacson, Kevin Grochow, Steve Poissant and Marty Pluth; freshman Keith Growchow; and student managers Marci Pluth, Deb Williams and Bob Kinsman.

Pinkerton and Schoonhoven will serve as the 17th and 18th captains of the Prowlers since Lincoln first fielded an interscholastic swimming team for the 1971-72 season. They were presented with the Jim Harris memorial captain's plaque, named in memory of a Thief River Falls swimmer killed in an automobile accident in 1977.

Weather Hits LHS Tennis, Baseball Teams

Postponements hit the Lincoln high school athletic department this week, with too much snow cover wiping out a tennis match and a baseball game.

A Tuesday tennis match at Detroit Lakes was rescheduled for Mon., April 30. A Thursday baseball game at Red Lake Falls has already been scrubbed, with no new date announced.

Both teams are still scheduled to be in action later this week. The tennis squad is slated to entertain Bemidji and Fergus Falls in a triangular tournament Friday beginning at 2 p.m. and will follow that with a trip to Hibbing for an eight-team tournament Saturday beginning at 10 a.m. The baseball season opener is now scheduled to take place at Moorhead Friday at 4 p.m.

Prowlers Are Fourth In Pirate Jaycee Relays

Third and final 1979 indoor meet appearance in the Winter Shows building in Crookston for the Lincoln high school track team produced the Prowlers' top finish to date Tuesday during the annual Pirate Jaycee relays.

Warren won the 23-team event with 94 points, followed in the top five by East Grand Forks with 65 points, Crookston 44, Thief River Falls 36 and Borup 28. A year ago the Prowlers were 14th in a 19-team field.

"We made a remarkable improvement," pointed out Thief River Falls assistant coach Bill McGann. "Everybody's times are coming down. We are very pleased."

Thief River Falls' top performances were second place finishes by Jim Shirley in the 70-yard dash and Mark Larson in the 880-yard run. Steve Johnson of Crookston won the 70 in 7.72, with Shirley a hair behind at 7.75. Mike Blowers of Clearbrook took the 880 in 2:13.18, with Larson, forced out of his two-mile specialty since the race wasn't run, coming up with a close 2:13.77.

Third place Thief River Falls finishes went to Jeff Osied with a 19-2 long jump and the medley relay team of Shirley, Tom Ose, Tom Brosseau and Greg Ness in 3:28.31. Mike Bolzoni of Fertile-Beltrami won the long jump with a 19-9½ effort and East Grand Forks took the medley relay in 3:26.44.

Elsewhere for the Prowlers, the 760-year relay team — Shirley, Ose, Brian Culkins and Jim Thompson — placed fourth; Ness was fifth in the mile; Oseid was fifth in the high jump and sixth in the 70-yard high hurdles; Brosseau was sixth in the 440; and Bruce Johnson was seventh in the mile.

Terry Babbler of Borup was named the meet's top performer with a pair of meet records in the hurdles. He ran an 8.66 in the 70-yard highs and ran an 8.55 in the 70-yard intermediates.

Warren came up with four winners as Brian Fanfulik tossed the shot 50-11; Bob Lubarski high jumped 5-10; Mitch Carlson ran the 440 in 54.29; and the Ponies' 1520 relay team ran a 3:16.29.

Other winners included Mike Beuing of Twin Valley with a 4:46.2 mile; Dave McGee of Mahnomen with an 11-0 pole vault; Gordy Olson of East Grand Forks with a 35.23 in the 220; and the Crookston 760 relay team in 1:27.86.

Thief River Falls' first outdoor meet of the spring is scheduled Monday on Roseau's all-weather track, beginning at 4:30 p.m. The Prowlers are scheduled to run at East Grand Forks Tuesday at 4:30 and host Crookston Thursday at 4.

Great Lakes Region Director Is Named

Harvey K. Nelson, 54, has been appointed regional director of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service's Great Lakes regional office, director Lynn A. Greenwalt announced. He succeeds Jack Hamphill.

Nelson will be responsible for administering the Interior Department agency's programs in Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota. Now serving in Washington, D.C., as the service's associate director for wildlife resources, he is expected to assume his new position in mid-May.

"I consider Harvey Nelson one of the finest professional fish and wildlife administrators in the federal government today," Greenwalt stated. "His performance while in his current assignment has made a substantial contribution to the effectiveness of operations at the Washington level of the service. We can expect similar achievements in his new responsibilities as a regional director."

Nelson has broad experience with fish and wildlife management and research programs at both the state and federal levels, with primary emphasis on migratory birds and land management. As associate director for the last several years, he has supervised the operation of some of the service's major programs, including national wildlife refuges and fish hatcheries, migratory bird management, wildlife law enforcement, and animal damage control. Earlier in his career he developed new research programs related to migratory bird problems, and in his present position he has continued to coordinate these and other wildlife research and management activities in the continental United States, Alaska, Canada and with other countries.

Nelson, a native of Evansville, Minnesota, graduated from Evansville high school in 1941. After serving with the U.S. Navy in the South Pacific from 1943-45, he entered college and received a B.S. degree in zoology and fish and wildlife management from the University of Minnesota in 1950. He earned a M.S. degree in resources development from Michigan State University in 1957 and has since continued graduate work at George Washington University in Washington, D.C.

He joined the fish and wildlife service in 1950 and worked on field projects in South Dakota, North Dakota, Minnesota and Michigan until 1957 when he was transferred to the regional office in Minneapolis. There he served as, assistant regional supervisor in the division of wildlife refuges until 1963, when he was appointed director of the Northern Prairie wildlife research center at Jamestown, North Dakota. He held this position until 1974, when he transferred to Washington, D.C., to serve as deputy associate director for wildlife. In February 1976 he was promoted to the position of associate director for fish and wildlife resources. In December 1978, fisheries resources activities were set up under a separate associate director and Nelson continued as associate director for wildlife resources.

Nelson and his wife, Gene, have four children.

Netting Effects Are Minimal On Leech Lake

A survey conducted by the Department of Natural Resources and the Leech Lake reservation business committee last year shows the harvest of game fish by Indian gillnetters is a minor part of the total fish harvest for Leech Lake.

The survey was carried out during the spring and fall at a dozen areas of known netting activity. DNR fisheries personnel monitored one area each evening and recorded the footage of net set. Catch estimates for gillnets were based on actual checks of the nets when lifted.

Catches were examined by conservation officers from the DNR and the Indians.

During both the spring and fall, whitefish was the dominant fish in the catch. During the spring suckers and bullheads were the next most numerous of the species noted in the catch followed by walleye, northern pike and tullibee.

Spring survey began on May 13, the opening day of the game fish angling season and continued through June 23, by which date netting activity had ceased. Nets were observed in only three of the survey areas and an estimated total of 34,078 feet of net was noted during the 42 day period.

Fall gillnet survey began on Sept. 14 and ended Nov. 12. Most netting activity took place in October and two areas accounted for 85 per cent of the netting effort.

Estimated gillnet footage for the 60 day period was 384,660 feet. An estimated 11,604 whitefish were taken while the catch of walleyes, which ranked second in the harvest, amounted to only 1,952.

Charles Burrows, DNR fish and wildlife director, said the average annual take of walleyes by sport fishing on Leech Lake is 150,000 with a total weight of more than 200,000 pounds.

By contrast, the estimated gillnet harvest by the Leech Lake Indians is 2,225 with a total weight of 4,625 pounds.

He said the survey also disclosed that an estimated 1,464 northern pike were taken by gillnetting compared with nearly 59,000 taken by sport fishing during an average year.

Although the number of walleyes taken by Indian gillnetters is relatively insignificant, said Borrows, a large proportion of those taken in the fall during commercial whitefish netting are larger fish important as brood stock.

Fifteen photographs — chosen from more than 10,000 entries — have been named prize-winners in National Wildlife magazine's ninth annual photo contest. The color photographs, which depict wildlife in America and people enjoying the outdoors, appear in the April-May issue of the National Wildlife Federation's bi-monthly publication.

Grand prize winner, which appears on the cover of National Wildlife, was taken by Rick Kramer, of Salt Lake City, Utah. Kramer caught a wapiti bull elk as it was browsing near Old Faithful in Yellowstone national park. A 29-year-old telephone company employee, Kramer travels to the Wyoming park once a year to photograph wildlife.

GRAND PRIZE winner in the 1979 National Wildlife magazine photo contest was Rick Kramer of Salt Lake City, Utah who caught a wapiti bull elk as it was browsing near Old Faithful in Yellowstone national park.

TOP WINNER in the wildlife in America category of the ninth annual National Wildlife magazine photo contest was Jeff Vanuga of Logan, Utah for this shot of a pack of nine hungry raccoons on the Wachie river in Florida.

Top winner in the "wildlife in America" category was Jeff Vanuga, a 22-year-old student from Logan, Utah. His winning photo was of a pack of nine hungry raccoons which "surprised the heck out of us" as he and a companion paddled a canoe down Florida's Weekie Wachie river.

In the "scenic America" category, first place went to Grace Alspach of Akron, Ohio for her photograph of a Navajo woman perched atop her horse and framed in a patch of sunlight in Arizona's Monument Valley. The 73-year-old amateur photographer came upon the scene while touring the region with her husband.

Harold Jenssen, a commercial photographer from New York, N.Y., won first place in the "people in the outdoors" category with his shot of a solitary walker roaming a stretch of pock-marked beach at Homer Spit, in southwest Alaska's Kenai peninsula.

The eleven finalists, who along with the grand prize and first place winners will share $2,000 in prize money, are:

Alaska — Larry Aumiller, of King Salmon, for his photograph of two young red foxes romping with each other at the McNeil River Game Sanctuary; Louis Gwartney, also of King Salmon, who shot two frolicking young brown bears, also at the McNeil sanctuary; and Mark Rauzon, of Anchorage, who photographed a male red-footed boobie bird bringing nesting material to his mate on Tern Island in the Hawaiian Islands national wildlife refuge.

Arizona — Alexander Clay, of Hereford, for his shot of a hover fly (which resembles a honeybee with huge red eyes) atop a yellow senecio in southeastern Arizona near the Mexican border.

California — Terry Liggett, of Burbank, who took a striking shot of northern California's Mt. Shasta and Mt. Shastina, whose now-covered peaks appeared magenta-colored in the early morning sunlight.

Colorado — Dave Fritts, of Boulder, for his close-up shot of a bighorn sheep grazing in the snow in Yellowstone National Park.

Connecticut — Robert Carissimi, of Waterbury, who photographed two Japanese barberries dripping with rain in his backyard; and Kenneth DalPian, of West Hartford, who spotted three saw fly larvae lined up with their tail ends in the air as they fed on a mountain ash leaf in his backyard.

Maryland — Michael Smith, of Upper Marlboro, who photographed a female osprey and her two young from a blind he set up on the Wicomico river. Smith visited the blind every other weekend for more than two months to observe the birds' behavior.

Michigan — Melvin Clay, of Lincoln Park, for his photograph taken in a nearby state park of a yellow crab spider inside a yellow lady's slipper flower.

Texas — Wyman Meinzer, of Benjamin, who intercepted a female roadrunner with her beak firmly around a doomed collared lizard.

Entries for the 1980 national wildlife photo contest are now being accepted. Deadline for entries is October 15, 1979. A total of $2,000 in prizes will be awarded. In addition, a trip for two to a National Wildlife Federation conservation summit in the Blue Ridge, Adirondack, or Rocky mountains will be awarded to the grand prize winner. All winning photographs will be published in the April-May, 1980, issue of National Wildlife.

Theme of the 1980 contest is "Nature in America." All entries must be in color, must be taken within the U.S., and all plants or animals depicted must be indigenous to the U.S. Slides are preferred, but prints up to 8"x10" are acceptable. Entries are limited to five per person.

Each entry must bear the name, address and telephone number of the photographer and should be sent with a brief description of where, when, and how the shot was taken, the make and model of the camera and lens used, and the exposure setting. Originality and execution will be the criteria for judging.

All entries will be returned by January 31, 1980, and should be accompanied with a self-addressed, stamped envelope. Send entries to: Photo Contest, National Wildlife, 225 East Michigan Street, Milwaukee, Wisconsin 53202.

FISHIN' TIPS

from . . . Tom Mann

How much noise can a fisherman make without spooking fish? Every thinking fisherman has wondered about this. Some think it is important to be quiet, while others say it doesn't make that much difference.

Well, my Indian ancestry has made me a stealthy fisherman, especially where BIG fish are concerned. I know that smaller fish, or fish in a feeding frenzy, aren't bothered much by a fisherman's presence. But, those "ol' biggums" we all seek got big by being smarter.

Big fish sense our presence by hearing, or feeling, vibrations. So I approach from the upwind side and let the wind take me close enough to cast. The only noise I want that fish to hear is my lure falling on the water. Fish can hear vibrations up to 13,000 per second, so I'm as quiet as a burgler around a slumber party.

Talking doesn't bother fish, but beware of anchor noises, outboard or electric motors, noisy tackle boxes on boat bottoms, etc., when close to big fish. Remember: the only sound they should hear is the lure you want them to hit.

Ever notice how some fishermen seem to come home regularly with fish, while others have a hard time catching enough to mess up a skillet? Some call it luck, but I call it skill.

A good fisherman gets that way by fishing a lot, by observing and remembering what he experiences, and by going every chance he gets. He also fishes numerous lakes and streams, not just one or two.

This is important because lakes and streams have their good and bad cycles. I keep notes on dates and numbers of fish caught, and try to figure which places are in their good cycles. Another wise way is to ask questions of your fishing buddies, tackle shops, guides, etc., where fish are being caught and on what.

A good fisherman also keeps his tackle in tiptop shape so it won't malfunction on him, and he keeps his lures in motion all day long, letting the fish tell him which one, or color, they want. Yep, fishing can be luck but most of the time it's a matter of dedication and knowhow.

BRER TOM'S CLOSING TIP: Always take a rain suit while fishing. It will keep you warm in cold weather, dry in a rain, and enable you to keep fishing during the rain when fish often go on a wild feeding spree.

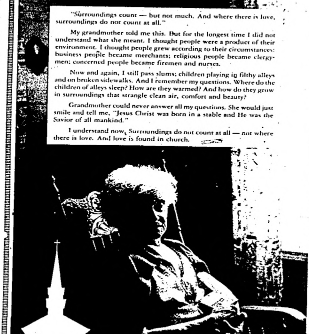
Slow down and live

GULLY . . .

Mr. and Mrs. Terry Sorenson, Shelly and Tory of Ada spent Saturday to Sunday at the Wally Mattsons. Other Easter dinner guests were Mr. and Mrs. Randy Bakke and Michelle and Mr. and Mrs. Bradley Eck and Melissa.

Margie Paulson, Mr. and Mrs. James Charles and family of Bemidji visited Thursday at the Ted Nyland home and brought the dinner.



"Surroundings count — but not much. And where there is love, surroundings do not count at all."

My grandmother told me this. But for the longest time I did not understand what she meant. I thought people were a product of their environment. I thought people grew according to their circumstances: business people became merchants; religious people became clergymen; concerned people became firemen and nurses.

Now and again, I still pass slums; children playing in filthy alleys and on broken sidewalks. And I remember my questions. Where do the children of alleys sleep? How are they warmed? And how do they grow in surroundings that strangle clean air, comfort and beauty?

Grandmother could never answer all my questions. She would just smile and tell me, "Jesus Christ was born in a stable and He was the Savior of all mankind."

I understand now. Surroundings do not count at all — not where there is love. And love is found in church.

Where there is love

Driving Technique Can Help Save Gas

Driving technique of the preson behind the wheel is the most important factor in improving the gas mileage of a particular car. A careful driver should be able to get 30 per cent better mileage than an average driver, according to the Minnesota energy agency, which lists the following recommended driving techniques.

Start out smoothly and moderately. There are jackrabbit starters and very slow starters, but the driver who starts out smoothly and accelerates moderately achieves the best mileage.

Cars use gasoline most efficiently at 30 to 40 miles per hour. They also offer their mileage performances in higher gears, when the running is smooth and even.

Therefore, with a manual transmission, you should move into the next gear as soon as possible without "lugging" the car. Lugging the engine will cause a low-vacuum carburetor condition, resulting in more fuel consumption. With automatic transmission driving after the car is rolling, let up on the accelerator, easing into high range quickly.

Anticipate driving conditions: Keep an eye on the traffic at least two cars ahead and anticipate traffic conditions to avoid gas-wasting sto--and-go situations.

Varying highway speed by as little as five miles per hour can reduce fuel economy by as much as 1.3 miles per gallon. Keep the vehicle at an even speed.

Each time you double your rate of acceleration, you use twice the amount of gasoline you normally would if you would have been at that speed in the first place.

Braking destroys the momentum you accelerated to achieve. Coast up to stoplights; red lights will probably turn green before you reach them.

Turn right at red lights when traffic allows instead of idling gas away waiting.

Build up speed early when approaching a hill to reduce the amount of gas needed on the upgrade. On smaller hills, early momentum will help the car over the crest and gravity will help carry it down the other side.

Choose a less hilly route if you have a choice and get increased gas mileage.

Combat wind resistance. Rapidly increasing air resistance is the main reason higher speeds and increased horsepower mean lower gas mileage figures.

Keep the exterior of your car streamlined to aid its aerodynamic design. Use luggage or ski racks only when needed; remove them when not in use to save gas.

Drive with windows closed. It's more economical to use air conditioning than to drive with windows open at 55 miles per hour. Using the car ventilating system is still, however, the most economical practice at speed.

Don't carry more weight in a car than necessary. An extra 100 pounds decreases fuel economy about one per cent for the average car.

Avoid idling. An idling car gets zero miles per gallon. Enough gas to drive a mile is wasted for every two minutes of idling. Keep in mind it takes less gas to re-start a car engine than to let the car idle for only 30 seconds.

There are more easy ways to save gasoline dollars, including good trip planning, car maintenance and car pooling.

For further conservation tips, write the Minnesota Energy Information Center, 980 American Center Building, 150 East Kellogg Boulevard, St. Paul, Minnesota 55101 or phone 612-296-5175 or toll-free 800-652-9747.

28.349 GRAMS OF PREVENTION ARE WORTH .453 KILOS OF CURE

Most of us remember the days when anybody that spoke of "grams" was probably referring to crackers. Today, the metric system is inching itself into our lives and revolutionizing the way we measure things up.

To the health care professions, the metric system is nothing new. It is the standard method of measurement for purposes of diagnosis, research and scientific analysis.

While to the average person the thought of a foot no longer being a foot, but rather 30.5 centimeters, and the freezing point being 0° Celsius instead of 32° Fahrenheit seems frigthening, there are many advantages. By bringing the American system in line with the system used worldwide, we will have a freer and easier exchange of methods, equipment and information. This will effect all phases of life, including trade and health. In our world of complicated computers and high cost technology, anything that will simplify the task of communication and application of information is welcome.

With the metric system, the terminology will change, but the principles will not. This is especially true as it applies to your health and your body.

— Whether you measure weight by grams or pounds, you better start worrying about your food intake and habits if your weight is more than 5% over the recommended norm for a person of your build and make-up.

— Whether you like to inch yourself through life or millimeter yourself through day to day activities, you better look twice at your waistline if the flab hangs over the measuring tape.

— Whether you count your smokes by packs or centimeters, it would be wise to start thinking about the risk you are facing when you pollute your lungs.

— Whether your dosage of medication is measured in ounce units, milligrams or simply pills, better think about the risk and dependence inherent in drugs. Better think about a way to use the body's natural recuperative powers.

CENTIMETER
MILLIMETER
GRAM

— Whether you drive everywhere at a rate of 55 miles per hour or 90 kilometers per hour, it would be wise to start thinking about getting out of the car and walking. The pace is slower, but the exercise is better.

— If your food intake in ounces, pounds, or meals contains too much fat, junk and processed foods, it would be wise to start measuring out a diet that is well-balanced and nourishing.

Perhaps this is all a cute way of saying that it is time for Americans to take stock of themselves. And if it takes a new measurement system to do it, why not? It's a good way of changing our values about health.

Interestingly, the structure of your body is also measured in millimeters by the doctor of chiropractic to determine its balance and structural integrity.

The doctor of chiropractic examines the relationship of the bones and tissues of the body. Postural deficiencies often are the cause of health problems. That is why the American Chiropractic Association recommends spinal health examinations on a regular basis. It's the best way to "meter" your health.

GREAT VALUES STOREWIDE!!!

We said "Firestone 23° tractor tires can save you time and money!"

"The Mean Machine proved to me I haven't been careful enough in choosing tires. You outdid them all which is really important. And what good's a tractor if tires can't deliver the horsepower to the drawbar?"
Darwin Fisher
5500 Acres,
Ypsilanti, North Dakota

"That Mean Machine! I couldn't believe it until I rode in it and saw it work. Now I can see how you can make the best product."
Myron Schnaithman
1480 Acres,
Garber, Oklahoma

We invited farmers using other brand tractor tires to come see any tires* they wanted tested against Firestone 23° tires at our Columbiana Test Farm.

These farmers who had been using competitive tires, said,
"PROVE IT"...and PROVE IT, WE DID!
WITH THE MEAN MACHINE!

Using Firestone's one-of-a-kind Mean Machine, that can dial in the drag of almost any farm field and job in the world, we proved to these farmers that the switch to 23° tires could make these kinds of differences in their farm day: they could get into wetter fields sooner, they could finish working a field up to an hour sooner or get in four of five extra acres a day. This means real savings in terms of labor costs on a given job. As one farmer said, "There's a feeling among farmers that there's no real difference in name brand tractor tires. I wish every farmer could come here and see how wrong that is."

*Tire tests included the following: Dynamic Buckle Test — Firestone Field & Road versus Co-op Agri-Power, Goodyear Power-Torque and Armstrong Hi-Power Lug; Dynamic Slip Test — Firestone Deep Tread and Firestone Field & Road versus Goodyear Super-Torque and Goodrich Power Grip 30; Maximum Horsepower Test — Firestone Field & Road versus Goodyear Super-Torque and Goodrich Power Grip 30. All tires size 18.4 x 38.

Chevrolet's first economy car of the '80s.

Citation 4 Door Hatchback

CHEVY CITATION.

Citation goes a long way on a tank of gas. But that's just the start. Citation has the traction of front wheel drive, rack and pinion steering, front disc brakes, and a transverse mounted engine that's cradled in rubber-cushioned mountings to reduce engine vibration. Sleek Citation is easy to park, yet big enough for five adults and lots of cargo. See Chevy Citation for yourself. And to really appreciate it, get behind the wheel.

EPA ESTIMATED MPG 24 CITY ESTIMATE
38 HIGHWAY ESTIMATE
With standard 4 cylinder engine and manual transmission.
Remember: Compare the estimated MPG to the "estimated MPG" of other cars. You may get different mileage depending on your speed, trip length, and weather. Your actual mileage will be lower in heavy city traffic, and your actual highway mileage will probably be less than the estimated highway fuel economy. The "estimated MPG" is more likely to reflect actual overall mileage than the "combined estimate".
Chevrolet cars are equipped with GM built engines produced by various divisions.

TEST DRIVE THE ALL NEW CHEVY CITATION.

Washdays Not Blue

Following article was written by Marian Loch Lenzen of Sidney, Neb., and published recently in Framland News:

Washday can be any hour of the day any day of the week, because I have an automatic washer and dryer. But it wasn't always so. Now, with energy costs rising, I try to wash only when I have a full load. I have always "hung out" my wash in nice weather simply because I enjoy the tranquility, the fresh air, the opportunity to meditate, and the excellent exercise from all the bending and stretching.

Even the new homes in the area are sporting backyard clotheslines as the younger generation adopts this method of saving energy. I heartily approve, but I must admit my Grandma would shake her head in disapproval of their slipshod method of hanging clothes. Grandma taught me the proper way to do the washing and, believe me, there was nothing slipshod about it.

Grandma washed on Monday. It was an all-day job. Grandma used her wash to impress the neighbors. If it was necessary to wash and hang clean clothes to fit all the line space, so be it.

For Grandma, washday was a challenge. She was determined to be the first in the block to have sheets swinging briskly in the breeze each Monday morning. Not only must she have the first sheets on the line, they must be the whitest sheets in the neighborhood.

We all rose early on Monday mornings. While Mother fixed breakfast and did the dishes, Grandma filled the washer and placed the rinse tubs on the benches. One tub was filled with warm water, the second with cool, and the third was cold with bluing added. By the time my brothers and I were ready to leave for school, Grandma had stripped the beds and sorted the laundry into piles according to color and material.

Whites, such as sheets (no colored linens in those days) pillowcases, tea towels and white dress shirts were always washed first, unless there was a baby in the household. Then diapers were soaked overnight, rinsed, boiled and then washed along with all other baby paraphernalia first. After whites came colored cottons, such as housedresses, children's clothes; then bath towels, work clothes, and, last, rags, rugs and mops. A bushel basket lined with oilcloth or newspaper was used to carry the clothes to the backyard line.

The wash water was so hot at the start that clothes had to be fished out with a pole. A large pan of hot starch was sitting nearby and collars and cuffs of men's dress shirts and little-girl dresses were stiffened enough to rub the skin sore whereever it was not protected by underwear.

Grandma was about five foot two in all directions, but she moved with agility and grace from back porch washer to backyard clothes line. Prop poles were strategically placed under the stretched wire to prevent the heavy wet clothes from dragging on the ground. Woe to the dog that picked Monday morning to chase a cat through the back yard.

There was a correct way to hang everything. Sheets were folded lengthwise, the corners together and hung from the selvedge edge. They were never draped over the line. The corners were overlapped so one pin held the corner of two sheets. This procedure was followed through the hanging. Pillowcases were hung from the top and shirts from the tail. Grandma took personal pride in seeing her wash, hung in the proper tidy manner, waving gently in the wind.

If I wasn't aware of it being washday when I left for school, I was aware of it when the family sat down for supper. If we were having bean soup, it was wash day. Cooking a big pot of beans required little attention. By adding a ham bone or a couple pieces of bacon for flavoring, the soup provided a delicious nutritious meal, served along with home made bread and butter.

Hanging my laundry is a pleasant experience because I do it by choice. Poor Grandma didn't have that choice. She hung out the wash even when it froze stiff almost as fast as she could pin it to the line. Later the frozen stiff clothes were brought in and draped over everything to thaw and finish drying enough to be ironed.

I must admit I too have grown careless in hanging my laundry. Grandma would turn over in her grave if she could see me drape a bedspread over the line. I leave my clothespins pinched on the line permanently. Grandma always used a special bag for her clothespins and brought them in so they wouldn't get dirty.

I never remember to wash the line before I hang up the sheets, or the overalls, whichever I happen to wash first. I leave bit spaces between socks and shirts. I excuse myself by saying "Who's to know?" My nearest neighbor is two miles away. But I know that excuse wouldn't wash with Grandma. "You do things right because you take pride in doing them right," she used to say.

Still I think Grandma would be pleased that I do still hang my clothes out to dry. It does take more time, but there are benefits. Grandma would notice the weeds in the garden and the plums getting ripe. She enjoyed the fragrance of the roses. I'm sure she thought about the events of the day and reached conclusions while hanging up the clothes.

It gives us something in common. I enjoy the song of the meadowlark and laugh at the scampering rabbit. I am amazed at the speed and dexterity of the swallows as they play tag and follow the leader. I think about taxes and welfare reform and what to get the grandchildren for their birthdays. There is a personal satisfaction in knowing that I am saving energy and money and enjoying myself at the same time.

Better Than Rationing

Following editorial is by Bob Johnson in the Wadena Pioneer-Journal:

Once again the country is in the throes of an oil shortage. And once again everything from rationing to gasless Sundays to higher prices is being considered. Everything, that is, except the most obvious, fairest and simplest of all — strict enforcement of the 55 mph speed limit.

And there would also be the saving of human lives. Highway traffic deaths dropped by a dramatic 9,000 in the year following the adoption of the 55 limit. The rate has since climbed steadily as more and more drivers have ignored the limit in the almost sure knowledge they won't be stopped unless they go over 62.

The government safety people admit the 55 speed limit would save more lives than their costly air bags. By dropping the air bag requirement, they could save future car buyers an estimated $150 each. And the extra miles per gallon from the slower speed would be the equivalent to a cut of about a nickel a gallon in the price of gasoline.

Slower speeds would also make the smaller car more attractive to buyers. The 350-horse chariot is designed for comfort at high speeds. At lower speeds, a lighter car can serve as well, especially if the driver is relieved of the pressure of the big cars at his tailgate.

Politicians tell us the public won't let them enforce the speed limit. They say the problem is bigger than the state patrol can handle.

If that's a problem, what do they think rationing will be with cheating, black marketing and counterfeiting. And who do they think will be hurt most by rationing? Certainly not the man with the money to buy extra coupons.

The government was correct when it imposed the 55 limit in 1974. Congress should not be buffaloed now by the speeders who think an hour of their time is worth more than an hour of anyone else's. The limit should be enforced.

What's A Million?

One of the better descriptions we have seen of how to determine what a million dollars are is provided in this list which appeared in a publication by a Hawaiian bank. Here is what the bank says a million dollars would buy today:

A trip to Europe once a month for 27 years;

An Army tank;

1,538,461 hotdogs at Aloha Stadium;

200 Toyotas;

The interest on the National Debt for about 5 hours;

22,222 expensive permanent waves or 40,000 cheaper ones;

500,000 plates of Chinese noodles;

285,714 men's haircuts or that many movie tickets to Star Wars;

A week on Oahu for 3,092 visitors;

50 B.A. degrees at an average mainland college;

50 new proof machines for the bank;

2,500 jade bangle bracelets;

Almost 5 hours of school for every school-age child in Hawaii;

10 houses that cost $100,000 each;

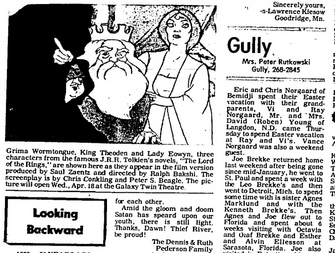
49 years of postage for Kalihi Branch;

300,000 softballs . . . or 1 million tennis balls . . . or 740,741 golf balls;

548 feet of the Alaskan pipeline . . . or 236 feet of the H-1 Freeway;

OR . . .

O.J. Simpson's salary for 3 years.



Grima Wormtongue, King Theoden and Lady Eowyn, three characters from the famous J.R.R. Tolkien's novels, "The Lord of the Rings," are shown here as they appear in the film version produced by Saul Zaentz and directed by Ralph Bakshi. The screenplay is by Chris Conkling and Peter S. Beagle. The picture will open Wed., Apr. 18 at the Galaxy Twin Theatre.

Letters to the Editor

To The Editor,

We see a ray of light! Let us reflect it! This past December our family enjoyed a Prowler hockey game. Our six and eight-year-old daughters were very much delighted with the cheerleaders. They were extended a special treat by being able to talk with them.

This past week our six-year-old received a card from one of those cheerleaders, Dawn Ode. We don't personally know Dawn or her family, but we are impressed by a teenager who will add joy to the life of another in even this simple little way. No it is not little. We'd sooner think it a big example of the kind of unselfish concern Christ would have each of us to have for each other.

Amid the gloom and doom Satan has speard upon our youth, there is still light. Thanks, Dawn! Thief River, be proud!

To the Editor:

I have just read the editorial entitled, "No Trespassing." I agree with the first section, and also the last two columns, but I disagree with the middle part 100 per cent.

It concerns the question of selling State land to farmers. We live in an area where most of our land has State land on one end or the other. We know what State land is since some of our land is surrounded by it on three sides. I think this land, DNR land as it is now called, is a menace to the country around here.

To make this a nicer place to live in, I think the land suitable for farming should be sold. I would rather see a healthy crop of wheat in place of swampy, brush-filled land laden with mosquitoes. Also, I think the game would like this more. If tourists are interested in that type of scenery, they can travel to Lake Agassiz. It's not far and there's plenty of land of that type there.

I have noticed that some farmers living near Thief River think this land should be reserved for wildlife. I am sure they would change their minds if they were living next to it. I doubt if our good editor would think it so great if he had a parcel of DNR land behind his house making it necessary for hunters to journey through his property to reach it, or to post there while the rest chase out the deer to be shot.

From early September, when the bird season opens, until the end of the month-long deer season in November, we are pestered with hunters. Our side roads cannot freeze up properly with hunters traipsing over them all November. (This could be helped by a shortened deer season; possibly 3 or 4 days.)

A year ago last fall, after an early snow and before the land froze, a gang of hunters drove on our field road, got their 4-wheel drive vehicle stuck, found a tractor to pull them out, and left a muddy mess. It was not much fun haying over their foot-deep ruts.

They barged in approximately 10 feet from a 'No Trespassing' sign. Had there been a deer there, I do not know how they could have seen it since they couldn't distinguish that sign. Did they not know that the land right next to ours was DNR land and perfect for hunting? Looks of surprise are received from hunters when, in response to questions of hunting sharptails, they are told to go and hunt on the DNR land.

In regards to cover for wildlife, I believe there are plenty of brush and wooded areas on the farmer-owned land. In my opinion, wildlife do not need thousands of acres to hide in.

If the state wants to own land, I feel they should not pay only the taxes on the land they own, but due to the inconvenience it causes, also help with the taxes on the adjoining land.

It appears that our good Editor would have us believe it would be unthinkable to have a State land sale. On the contrary, I speculate the possibility — with correct Legislature and a DNR commissioner. Our new commissioner seems reasonable, more so than those of the past, and this should help.

If they do have a sale, and do sell the land the farmers desire, I believe most of the farmers would welcome the hunters.

Sincerely yours,
-s-Lawrence Kiesow
Goodridge, Mn.

My SINCERE THANKS To:

Dr. A. F. Schouneman, Northwestern Hospital, L. B. Hartz Co., and especially to the Minnesota State Highway Patrol who took command of a difficult situation and performed admirably.

Respectfully Yours,
D. Shand

Mobil Travel Guide Announces Five-Star Awards

The last time you were a guest at a hotel, did you notice how long it took to get room service, if the staff was courteous or whether there was any dust on the lamp shades?

Does your favorite restaurant provide adequate space between tables, is your meal prepared to order and is your waiter knowledgeable about the menu?

Each year 20,000 hotels, motels, resorts and restaurants across the country are rated by a trained staff from the Mobil Travel Guide. One-star—for places that are better than average—to five-stars for those that are among the very best in the country are awarded by the Mobil Travel Guide staff.

The Five-Star Award is the most respected accolade in the food and lodging industry. This year only 33 establishments received this prestigious award.

Key criteria in rating hotels and motels include cleanliness, maintenance, quality of furnishings, scope of facilities and service, and the degree of luxury. Standards for resorts are similar, but extra recreational services must be available, including those of a social director.

Restaurants are checked for quality of the food and its preparation, completeness of the wine cellar, and for cleanliness, maintenance and furnishings.

SIKORSKY DELIVERS FIRST SPIRIT™ HELICOPTERS

The Sikorsky SPIRIT, a 12-passenger transport-category helicopter, is specifically designed for commercial operators.

The first three of 14 SPIRIT™ commercial helicopters ordered from Sikorsky Aircraft by the Air Logistics Division of Offshore Logistics, Inc., are now playing an important role in offshore oil production in the Gulf of Mexico.

When he presented the three 12-passenger, blue and white aircraft to Offshore Logistics, Sikorsky President Gerald J. Tobias said the delivery "represents the climax of a mammoth effort on the part of both Sikorsky and its industry associates to produce the first transport category helicopter specifically designed for commercial operators."

Offshore President Kenneth M. Jones expects the SPIRIT "to expand the market potential for our division due to its increased range, speed and productivity."

Eleven more of the revolutionary new helicopters have been ordered by Offshore.

Sikorsky has received orders for 210 SPIRITS from 55 operators in 19 countries. With a gross weight of 10,000 pounds, the SPIRIT can travel at speeds up to 178 mph for distances of 460 miles. It is powered by two Detroit Diesel Allison 250-C30 turbine engines, each providing 650 shaft hp. This allows a climb rate of 1,350 feet per minute and a service ceiling of 15,000 feet. Its base price is $1,125,000.

Sikorsky is a division of United Technologies Corporation.

YOU BE THE JUDGE!

How Much Government "Protection" Is Too Much?

GOVERNMENT "PROTECTION"

The fear of cancer is a real one for Americans, but most of them think the public, not the government alone, should decide whether a product potentially linked with cancer remains on the market.

More than 80 percent of the population want the chance to decide for themselves whether the risks of using a product like saccharin—suspected of causing cancer—are outweighed by the benefits, according to a Union Carbide-sponsored nationwide survey conducted by Cambridge Reports Inc.

But they want to know all the facts about the risks involved,' and they want them in plain English. Two-thirds of the 1,500 people polled said they just aren't getting enough information to decide whether or not to use a product that is a suspected carcinogen.

Gene Pokorney, senior vice president of Cambridge Reports, said that this poll, which has been confirmed by other polls conducted by his organization in recent years, found that fewer Americans are willing to leave decisions affecting their lives to public officials. The "democratization of the decision process" is what he labels this trend.

The public's stance on government bans of products suspected of causing cancer is closely related to the benefits they think they can gain from using those products.

Asked about the government's proposed ban on the artificial sweetener saccharin, 52 percent disapproved, 24 percent approved, 21 percent weren't sure, and the rest hadn't heard of it.

On the other hand, when asked about the ban on certain food dyes used in products like cherries and hot dogs, 51 percent approved of the government's action, 26 percent disapproved, and 15 percent weren't sure.

"The public sees different degrees of benefit to saccharin and food coloring, and makes different choices with regard to each," Pokorney said.

Three-fourths of those polled said they'd be willing to give up certain products if they felt the risks of using them were too great, but they want to make the choice. Eighty-two percent said they want companies to tell them in plain English what the possible dangers are in a product—as with cigarette packages—and then leave it to the consumer to decide whether or not to use it.

Most people think cancer is on the increase, the study found, and they want to know what causes it. And, the public wants both industry and government to provide extensive information regarding risk and benefit, to develop better scientific understanding of carcinogens, and within the context of appropriate scientific safeguards, to develop a variety of reasonable regulatory strategies.

U.S. Senator

Rudy Boschwitz reports to Minnesota

531,600 Tons of Money

This week marks the first chance I'll have as a member of the Senate Budget Committee to do something about the growth of government spending, and I'd like to share with you an idea of what the budget process is like.

On April 3 our committee began the tedious, but very necessary, steps known as "mark up". This means we go through — frequently line by line — the 16 categories in President Carter's proposed budget as we decide whether or not we agree with how much he wants to spend: for defense, agriculture, social services and so on.

By the end of the "mark up" period next week, our committee is to have its own bill ready, setting limits on the spending of the federal government for fiscal year 1980 (October 1, 1979 through September 30, 1980). We'll also have to be sure our bill agrees with the one drawn up by the House Budget Committee.

The above description sounds fairly simple; the reality is much more difficult. For one thing, the sheer magnitude of the federal budget is mind boggling. If you translated Carter's proposed budget of $531,600,000,000 into actual dollar bills, you'd be faced with a pile weighing 531,600 tons.

This year's budget is greater than the entire Gross National Product of every other nation in the world except West Germany, Japan, and the Soviet Union. And, all by himself, Joe Califano as head of HEW controls more money than is contained in the entire budget of any government in the world other than the Soviet Union.

In other words, with a budget so large that clumps of zeroes are knocked off numbers in order to save space and where a million dollars is written as .001. . . well, too often, Congress has tended to lose track that that million dollars is really a lot of money.

I believe that this year's Congress and the budget committees are going to be much more likely to keep track of all the government's expenditures, to be more aware that a million dollars here and a million dollars there do count up. They've heard the voters' message.

After the budget committees have set the spending limits, those limits then guide the other Congressional committees over the summer as they authorize spending for the programs under their direction.

I must say the decisions we are making right now are not easy or pleasant ones. Deciding among priorities is often tough. And, of course, it's tempting to make the cuts — but in someone else's favorite program, not in our own.

But this is definitely the time when the hard choices are needed. I'm convinced that we can continue to serve our nation's needy while still cutting waste in programs. I also know that the waste won't be eliminated till Congress forces the issue by setting tight limits.

The alternative is to watch the rate of inflation — to which excessive government spending is a major contributor — grow even faster.

And, we are doing no one any favor when we allow inflation to continue to handicap the purchasing power of Americans and to impoverish those on fixed incomes.

INFLATION-FIGHTING FOOD IDEAS

Cool Rice Desserts With Summer Fruits

Light but nutritious, a fluffy rice dessert that subtly suggests lovely weather is a wonderful way to satisfy your family's "sweet tooth" and balance meals, too.

Ranging from simple to elaborate, rice desserts typically contain rice and milk and usually contain less sugar than many other sweets. Few other desserts are as easy or as nearly foolproof to prepare.

They're economical too. The cost of a half-cup serving of cooked rice is about three cents. And rice pudding can be combined with seasonal freshly sliced summer fruits, natural or sweetened, to make luscious desserts.

Among the more delicious dishes you're likely to find is this Pineapple-Strawberry Delight that takes its cue from strawberries that blend so well with the crushed pineapple mixed with the cooked rice and whipped cream or topping.

PINEAPPLE-STRAWBERRY DELIGHT

1 pint fresh strawberries*
Sugar
1 envelope (1 tablespoon) unflavored gelatin
1 can (8-1/4 ounces) crushed pineapple (drained; reserve syrup)
2 cups cooked rice
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
2 egg whites
1/4 teaspoon salt
1 envelope (1-1/2 ounces) whipped topping mix, prepared or 1 cup of heavy cream, whipped and sweetened

Wash strawberries; remove stems. Sprinkle with 1/2 cup sugar. Set aside. Soften gelatin in pineapple syrup. Heat to dissolve. Combine gelatin, pineapple, rice, 1/2 cup strawberries (including some juice) crushed, and vanilla. Whip egg whites with 3 tablespoons sugar and salt until stiff but not dry. Fold into rice mixture. Spoon into individual molds (about 1/2 cup each). Chill until firm. Unmold onto cold plates and top each with a dollop of whipped topping and remaining strawberries. Makes 6 servings.

*Or use 1 package (10 ounces) frozen strawberries, thawed.

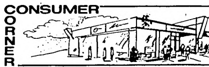
CONSUMER CORNER



HELPFUL HINTS ABOUT MICROWAVE COOKING

Major technological advances that bring about changes in our habits are generally paralleled by an information explosion—and, microwave cooking is no exception. This opinion is expressed by Consumer Information Specialists for Corning Glass Works. "We are being flooded with new cookbooks, newspaper stories, columns on microwave cooking and an increasing number of magazine articles on the "do's" and "don'ts" of microwave cooking," they say.

Corning Glass Works hosted a conference comprised of people from all three segments of the industry—microwave oven manufacturers, cookware manufacturers, and food companies. They heard about opinion surveys on the industry and shared concerns and cautions that must be stressed. One of the highest priorities at the conference was given to the need for more and better consumer information to prevent misuse and dissatisfaction with microwave oven cooking.

There is a proliferation of new microwave ovens, each with features that make it different from others, and each manufacturer has its own warranty and use-and-care instructions, complete with its cautions.

Also, a growing number of cookware manufacturers are identifying their cookware as ideal for microwave. This use-and-care and warranty information should be read carefully to avoid consumer dissatisfaction.

This emphasis on caution extends to choosing foods and recipes being used in the microwave oven as well as the oven and dishes in which the foods will be cooked. Foods of various texture and characteristics create different reactions—thus they cook differently.

"Watch carefully for qualifying statements, which when overlooked can result in problems with products," Corning emphasizes. "For example, recently there has been a lot written and said about the use of metals and foils in the microwave oven. Manufacturers of the ovens, by and large, warn against the use of metal utensils or containers. However, news coverage given a study presented at the International Microwave Power Institute in Ottawa, Canada, has created some misconceptions—some of which are causing costly problems for microwave oven owners. The speaker at the conference cushioned his remarks in a number of qualifying statements and emphasized the need for consumers to read the manufacturers' instructions. These cautions weren't in the headlines and sometimes not in the stories."

Consumers have also read that cardboard and paper products can be used in microwave ovens, which is true. However, occasionally, the paper or cardboard products have foil linings, not readily apparent to the consumer. This is worth checking and comparing with the oven manufacturers' instructions:

RECOMMENDED FOR MICROWAVE OVENS
MW
BY CORNING

To help consumers identify suitable cooking accessories for microwave ovens, Corning prints this symbol on its packaging. The words "Recommended for Microwave Ovens" accompany the visual MW symbol.

With a growing number of plastic utensils on the market it is important to identify which of these plastics are suitable for microwave oven use. Not all work well in microwave ovens.

While virtually all glass and glass-ceramic products can be used in microwave ovens, this is not true of all plastics. Again, be sure to read the manufacturers' instructions on this subject. Corning encourages using a microwave insignia on ware and packaging to identify its appropriateness for microwave oven use.

The oven, the cookware and the food make a unique triangle where each is an important part of successful microwave cooking operations. It is important for consumers to read the instructions and the articles being written.

UTILITY SHEDS caught the brunt of an attack by floating river ice in the Basswood Trailer court Wednesday afternoon. The mobile home in the background, which is situated on a point in the river, was threatened by the rising waters and heavy ice but escaped unscathed.

Council Examines Proposed Projects

First street widening was one of approximately 20 project proposals discussed by the Thief River Falls city council at an adjourned regular meeting held Thursday, April 19. Also among the proposals were airport, sidewalk, alley, signal, parking lot and other street projects. Basic information about each of the proposed projects was given by city engineer Doug Stewart with cost estaimtes available for some of the proposals. However no council action was taken on any of the projects Thursday evening.

Cost estimate for the previously approved First street widening from Main to Pennington was $52,000 and one of the decisions the council must make in regards to this project is how it will be financed. With special dispensation from the Mn-DOT commissioner state aid funds could be used but the amount used would be deducted from the city's needs and ultimately deducted from its state aid allocation.

Council must also decide whether to proceed with the street widening during the 1979 construction season or wait for the signal project for which construction will not begin until 1980.

The signal project, also previously approved by the council, was another of the project proposals discussed at the Thursday meeting. Bids for the project are scheduled to be received in October of 1979 with construction to begin in the spring of the following year. Total estimated cost to the city is $84,500 of which $74,500 is eligible for the use of state aid funds.

Alley improvements discussed were for blocks 35, 36, 37, the alleys between Main and LaBree from 4th St. to 2nd St. and the alley between LaBree and Horace from 3rd to 2nd, and the alley between the clinic and Northwest Regional library. Estimated cost for concrete replacement in blocks 35, 36 and 37 is $75,300 or approximately $38

County Officers Make Changes In Schedule

Beginning May 1, the offices in the Pennington county courthouse will be open from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. instead of the previous schedule of 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m., according to C. W. Rodekuhr, county auditor.

Decision to change the hours was made at a meeting of department heads. Offices will remain open during the noon hour. The new hours will be considered a summer schedule but may be adopted on a permanent basis in the fall.

$40,000 FIRE destroyed two large stacks of flax straw bales early Sunday along the airport road about two miles south of Thief River Falls. All indications point to arson as a cause of the blaze, according to Patrick Barry, deputy state fire marshal stationed in Thief River Falls. Firemen received the first call about 3 a.m. Sunday when one stack close to the airport road was engulfed in flames. The second stack burst into flame as the department arrived and was arranging its hoses. Firemen confined their efforts to wetting down a number of other large bale piles in the area and were able to prevent the spread of fire to other stacks. Water was pumped from a nearby ditch as well as from fire truck tanks. An estimated 950 tons of flax straw were destroyed with the loss placed at $40,000 by James M. Amundson of Moorhead, field supervisor for the Olin Corporation which has regional headquarters at Watertown, S.D. Firemen kept watch on the fire until about 6 p.m. Sunday and checked it periodically after that time. Barry reminds the public that arson is a felony-crime and that the state "Arson Hot Line" may be called with information leading to arrest and prosecution of persons committing the crime. Hot line number is 612-645-8882 and awards up to $1,000 are available for information on arson cases.

SOLID CHUNKS OF ICE formed an ice jam around noon Thursday in the Red Lake river at the east edge of Thief River Falls in the Sherwood Forest area (top photo). The jam caused water to rise rapidly behind it, forcing a number of residents to hastily sandbag low-lying areas by their homes. The ice swept a number of docks and trees with it as it ground its way downstream. Throughout the afternoon the ice pack shifted further downstream, causing its last jam in the late afternoon near the Third street biedge. About 6 p.m. the main body of ice reached the municipal power plant dam (bottom photo) where the water level was at its highest since the 1930's — surpassing the 1965 mark of 18.3 feet by three-tenths of a foot. The high water was believed to have helped the dam flood gates handle the ice, which worked its way through without major problem despite the fact that much of it was in the form of large, solid floes. Rumors of damage to the dam circulated throughout the community but were unfounded, according to the city power plant employees. Flow of the river well past the peak of the rushing waters was measured at 9,600 cubic feet per second or 4,300,000 gallons per minute.

Spectacular Ice Jams Mark River Break-Up

Spectacular ice jams on the Red Lake river Thursday caused rapid rises in water levels and threatened a number of homes but generally minor damage resulted. Several partial floodings of basement have been reported. Highest water level in 40 years was recorded at the municipal power plant dam where a reading of 1118.6 feet above sea level was noted Thursday, surpassing the 1965 high mark of 1118.3 feet.

Only in the late 1930's when a group of angry farmers blew out a dam on the Thief river in the Mud Lake area was the water level higher, according to Morris Owen, former superintendent of utilities for the city of Thief River Falls. He said that rush of water ran over the top of the walkway on the dam and made it necessary to sandbag the doors of the power plant itself.

River flow was placed at about 13,000 cubic feet per second on Thursday but has since decreased to 9,600 cubic feet per second on Saturday, 5,000 cubic feet per second on Sunday and even less today. Reading taken at the First street bridge in Thief River Falls at 1 p.m. Friday—well past the peak of the rushing river waters—indicated a flow of 9,600 cubic feet per second.

Charles Anderson, hydrologist for the Red Lake river watershed board, said that flow computes to about 4,300,000 gallons per minute. That would be equivalent to more than three days of the normal water supply required by the city of Thief River Falls passing the First street bridge in one minute's time.

Anderson said that at St. Hilaire on Friday at 11 a.m. the flow had been measured at 10,100 cubic feet per second and at Red Lake Falls at 10 a.m. Friday a reading on the Red Lake river showed 13,600 cubic feet per second. At Crookston, where the Red Lake river crested Friday night, the peak flow was recorded at 21,000 cubic feet per second.

Normal summer low water flow on the Red Lake river at Thief River Falls is approximately 800 cubic feet per second.

Municipal power plant employees said that the water level on the downstream side of the dam was the highest in 25 years. The high mark of 1118.6 feet recorded on the upsteam side of the dam compares with the normal flow mark of 1115.3 feet established by the U.S. army corps of engineers.

Rumors were circulated throughout the community in the past several days about damage occuring to the dam. The rumors are false, power plant employees said. The dam was inspected in 1978 and a report filed with the city.

John T. Anderson, superintendent of utilities, commented following the report: "It

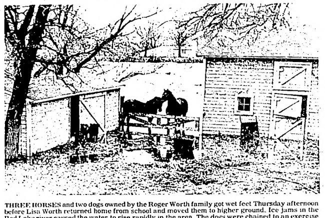
Theatre Group Sets Auditions

Chameleon Theatre Company, Inc. has announced that they will be holding auditions for a June dinner theatre at Lon's. Auditions will be held Monday, April 23 and Wednesday, April 25, at 7 p.m. in the meeting room at Northwest regional library. Three one-acts are being planned with Carol Peterson, Frank Womack and Bunny Engelman to serve as directors.



THREE HORSES and two dogs owned by the Roger Worth family got wet feet Thursday afternoon before Lisa Worth returned home from school and moved them to higher ground. Ice jams in the Red Lake river caused the water to rise rapidly in the area. The dogs were chained to an exercise wire up the hill and the horses tied to a fence where they quietly munched hay as the flood waters swirled past their barn.

Local WCTU Plans For Youth Temperance Week

Members of the Thief River Falls Alice Mae Stuart Woman's Christian Temperance union (WTCU) met Monday afternoon, April 16, at Our Saviour's Lutheran church.

The purpose of the meeting was to prepare for the observance of Youth Temperance Education week, which is noted nationally from April 22-28. The local union had ordered 4,500 youth temperance education leaflets, which were divided and later distributed to the local schools and churches. It was noted that the leaflets cost $89.

The meeting began with a devotional meditation opened by singing the hymn "This is My Father's World." Mrs. Earle Ripley was in charge of the meditation based on "Heritage, a channel to the future." She read 1 Peter 5: 2-4. She said that Christ had received His church as a charge from the hand of His Father. He redeemed it by His blood. As prophet, He was to teach His church, conveying to it the lessons of divine wisdom; as priest, He was to make atonement for the sins of His people; as King, He was to rule over them in gentleness and sanctity; but as Chief Shepherd, which combines the various principles of Christ's charges, He imparts the wisdom and goodness which instructs, the grace and mercy which unfolds, the power that rules, the authority which legislates, and the inward peace that comes from the knowledge that He maintains life. As a Good Shepherd, He guarantees abundant green pastures, still clean waters; new paths into fresh fields, freedom from fear, and the assurance of quietness and contentment. He desires that people live on a higher plane.

Mrs. Ripley also read from the Upper Room devotional booklet, and "Meditation Moments," by Millie Stamm. She concluded by saying "Resurrection is not a dream. It is a reality."

Joining the group for lunch were Times editor Marvin Lundin, together with Mayor Bob Carlson, Brian and Kristi Risberg, who posed for the Youth Temperance education picture, and Mrs. Dale Risberg.

During the social hour, cards were signed for Mrs. Olga Engelstad, Mrs. Tessie Netteland and Mrs. Marion Green.
